CALL FUNK TODAY IN LORIMER CASE FOR BRIBE EXPOSE

Harvester General Manager to Tell Details of Solicitation by Hines.

TALE ALREADY BACKED UP

Roger Sullivan, E. S. Conway, and Weyerhaeusers All Expected to Testify.

FULL LIGHT ON INQUIRY SOUGHT

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.

Washington, D. C., June 25.—[Special.]—When Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester company, undergoes examination tomorrow by the Lorimer investigating committee of the senate, he will have behind him a record of supporting evidence which it will be extremely difficult for the counsel of Senator Lorimer and Edward Hines to contravene.

It has been established that Mr. Funk promptly reported the conversation he had with Hines wherein the latter solicited a contribution of $10,000 from the harvester company for the Lorimer expense fund, to Cyrus H. McCormick, president, and Edward A. Bancroft, general counsel of the company. He subsequently related it to Herman H. Kohlsaat, editor and publisher of the Chicago Record-Herald. In advising Mr. McCormick and Mr. Bancroft of Hines' statement and of his refusal to comply with his request, these two witnesses have stated they understood Mr. Funk did so because he had been approached as an official of the company and it was his duty to inform them, his chief and the company's counsel, of the occurrence.

So far as Mr. Kohlsaat is concerned, Mr. Funk conveyed the information to him, as the editor testified, because of the personal friendship which existed between the two men.

Severe Examination Expected.

It is to be expected Mr. Funk will be subjected to a severe examination, to ascertain the exact language used by Hines in the original conversation, to establish whether in discussing the conversation with Mr. Kohlsaat he had stated Hines said he had seen or had arranged for contributions from Roger Sullivan, E. S. Conway, one of the Weyerhaeusers, and a man now dead, and to learn the language of Hines in the second conversation, twenty months later, when Mr. Funk asserts he endeavored to muddle his [Funk's] memory.

In an attempt to destroy the effect of Mr. Funk's testimony the Lorimer counsel are expected to cross examine him upon the relations of the International Harvester company and Mr. Lorimer or his friends, upon his relations with Hines, and they may even seek to attack his character.

Mr. Kohlsaat spoke of Mr. Funk in the highest terms; and it is not probable the committee will be disposed to permit any wanton reflection upon a man who stands as high in the business community of Chicago as does the general manager of the International Harvester company.

Hines and Tilden to Follow.

Probably Mr. Funk will be the only witness examined tomorrow, since he is such an important stone in the arch of evidence. When he has completed his testimony, the committee will examine Hines and Edward Tilden, both of whom are in Washington awaiting a call to the witness stand.

The conduct of Mr. Hines will be thoroughly inquired into, beginning with his activities in Washington in connection with the Illinois senatorship, his conversations with Senators Aldrich and Penrose, his telephone conversations from Washington to Chicago, his talks with Funk, and various other details which will be most illuminating.

Mr. Tilden will be asked if he were the collector of the Lorimer fund and will be required to show all books and papers relating thereto. Christian F. Wiehe, Hines' brother-in-law, W. H. Cook, and William O'Brien also are here prepared for examination in reference to Hines' telephone conversation with Springfield on the morning of Lorimer's election when he urged that everything possible be done and it is alleged said he was going to the state capital with all the money required.

Roger Sullivan Will Be Called.

In addition the committee has called Gov. Deneen, John Broderick, Cyril Jandus, D. W. Holstlaw, and others who have first hand knowledge of the senatorial transaction. Besides these witnesses Roger Sullivan, E. S. Conway, and the Weyerhaeusers will be examined. Others will be summoned as their names are mentioned in the proceedings.

It is apparent the committee is determined to make a most exhaustive inquiry into the Lorimer affair in order that when it makes its report to the senate there may not be the slightest shadow of doubt as to the correctness of its verdict. It is the kind of an inquiry the country wants.

Every member of the committee is participating in the examination of witnesses. Counsel for the committee is expected to bring out the facts, and counsel for Senator Lorimer is expected to develop his side of the case, but the committee reserves to itself the right to ask any and all questions it may be or seem pertinent.

Voluminous Record Assured.

A voluminous record already is foreshadowed, and the committee will try to keep out of it as much irrelevant matter as possible.

It is expected the investigation will not be concluded for some weeks.

It is the desire of the committee to complete its inquiry as early as possible and make its report to the senate at the present session.

COUNCIL MAY ASK IMMEDIATE GAS RATE OF 77 CENTS

LATER TO REDUCE FURTHER

"Not an Attempt to Take Wind Out of Sails of League," Says Ald. Carl T. Murray.

EXPECTS TO GET ACTION TONIGHT

An attempt will probably be made at tonight's meeting of the city council to give Chicago immediate lower gas rates. Ald. Carl T. Murray of the Twentieth ward announced yesterday that he would introduce an ordinance calling for a 77 cent rate for six months, pending definite action on the five year contract. Ald. Murray will endeavor to have the rules suspended and the ordinance passed at once because of the approach of the vacation period.

"I see no reason why Chicago should not take advantage of the report of the city expert, W. J. Hagenah, and have 77 cent gas, rather than 85, until it has been decided whether the 70 cent rate can legally be enforced," said Ald. Murray. "If I can obtain a copy of the ordinance and draft the necessary amendments in time, I shall introduce the measure at Monday's council meeting, and ask for immediate passage by a suspension of the rules.

Thinks Support Should Be Given.

"It does not seem to me that the supporters of 70 cent gas should refuse to support this measure," he continued. "It is not an attempt to take the wind from their sails, but to obtain some immediate relief for the city pending their investigation. A reduction of 8 cents a thousand feet of gas is better than none at all, and if we can get that for six months or a year, perhaps the 70 cent investigation will have approached an end and the people will have been the gainers irrespective of the result. A vote for such an ordinance would not be a violation of a 70 cent campaign pledge, for such an ordinance would not be for the five year period involved, and would be merely a makeshift of great economical value to the consumers."

Must Ascertain Legal Effect.

Mayor Harrison, when informed of the Murray plan, said it was a matter that would require reference to the corporation counsel to ascertain the legal effects.

"I would want to know whether, if the city agreed on 77 cent gas for six months, it would be permissible under the legislative act," said he. "Also, whether we might not be bound—being limited to contracting for five year periods—to carry out the six months' agreement for the full period."

A number of the members of the committee on gas, oil, and electric light were noncommittal about the Murray ordinance and their action on it tonight. The views of those who would talk were divergent.

Good Thing for City.

Ald. Pringle had not heard of the Murray plan, but thought it sounded reasonable, and if sufficient strength could be mustered that it would prove a good thing for the city.

"I think perhaps we had better wait until we clean up the gas work we have on hand," Ald. Sitts said, "and hereafter drop these experts. At any rate the committee will meet this week and I think the matter should be referred to it for consideration.

The proposition was a new one to Ald. Block, but he saw some good points in it, "if the figures in the Hagenah report are correct."

Ald. Beuler, who is president of the Seventy Cent Gas league, was in Milwaukee yesterday. Chairman Twigg could not be located.

Mahoney and McGregor Favored.

There is a possibility of Mayor Harrison naming a new building commissioner and city physician tonight. For the latter position Drs. John J. Mahoney and John D. McGregor are considered to have the best chances.

The mayor will call the council's attention to the failure of the new building ordinance to forbid the erection of towers above the 200 foot height limit.

The local transportation committee will hear two subway plans explained this afternoon. Representatives of the Continuous Transit Securities company will present their idea of moving sidewalk transportation. J. W. Perl, formerly of the subway division of the city engineer's office, will talk on his plan to save street space by varying levels.

The judiciary committee meets in the afternoon and may act on the "perpetual peddlers" question if the legal opinion is received in time from the corporation counsel. The license committee meets in the morning and may take up the Harkin saloon ordinance amendment.

TO FIX PEDDLERS' "YELL ZONE."

Ald. Britten Would Hush Hucksters in Some Residence Districts and Give License Elsewhere.

A "yell zone" in which peddlers may cry their wares is the latest plan suggested by Ald. Fred A. Britten as a means of settlement of the hucksters' strike and a solution of the "noise" problem. He has outlined the plan to Mayor Harrison and will present it to the council. Ald. Britten proposes to establish Hyde Park, the Lake Shore drive, and kindred districts, where housewives are less prone to bargain with peddlers, as "zones of quiet." In other sections where the residents strive to beat down the "high cost of living," hucksters are to have full rein for their leather lunged announcements.

IMPERIAL NUN OF BONAPARTES DEAD

Princess Clothilde, Mother of French Pretender, Succumbs in Italy.

GAVE LIFE TO CHARITY.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ROME, June 25.—Princess Clothilde Bonaparte, imperial nun of the Bonapartes, died today at Montcalieri. Her son, Victor Napoleon, pretender to the throne of France, was at her bedside with Dowager Queen Margherita of Italy and Dowager Queen Maria Pia of Portugal.

The princess was 68 years old and a member of Italy's royal house. She was only 16 years old when, to seal the treaty alliance between France and Italy, her father, King Victor Emmanuel, betrothed her to a cousin of Emperor Napoleon III., Prince Napoleon, son of Jerome, the youngest brother of Napoleon I.

Leaves Paris in State.

With the downfall of the empire Princess Clothilde left Paris on the same day in 1870 Empress Eugénie fled in disguise. The princess, ordinarily the most simple and unobtrusive of women, caused her open state carriage to be brought to the principal entrance of her residence at the Palais Royal, and drove slowly and publicly to the Lyons railroad terminus, at the other end of Paris.

She was greeted everywhere and even in the most revolutionary quarters of the then turbulent city with the utmost demonstrations of regard and respect.

The people could not forget that throughout the empire she had been the sole member of the reigning family who showed by her conduct that she had at heart the dignity of the name of France, and who, by her boundless yet unobtrusive charity and piety, had endeavored to atone in the eyes of the people for her imperial rank.

Leads Life of Nun.

Effecting a friendly separation from her gifted but profligate husband, who visited her once a year afterwards, and whom she nursed through his last illness at Rome, she had led ever since 1870 the life of a Sister of Mercy in the habiliments of a nun at her castle of Montcalleri, near Turin, which she had converted into a hospital and into a foundling asylum, devoting her existence to its inmates, and venerated from one end of Europe to the other as a saint, she won the title of "the angel of the house of Savoy."

From the day she left Paris the princess never returned until in 1903, when she nursed her dying sister-in-law, Princess Mathilde Bonaparte.

Princess Clothilde leaves two sons. Besides the pretender, Victor Napoleon, there is Louis Napoleon, who has been a general in the Russian army and served in the war with Japan. Victor was disowned by his father because of his many vices. "Plon Plon," as his father was called, left directions that his eldest son should not be allowed to attend his funeral.

"Brains" of Bonapartist Party.

Princess Clothilde for years was regarded as the brains of the party which favored Bonapartist restoration. She also held the purse strings. Clever as she was "Plon Plon" married her largely for her money. The sister of King Humbert was known even then as the ugliest princess in Europe. She kept the control of her finances and allowed her husband to squander but little of her gold. When she was married France bound itself by treaty to pay her $40,000 a year for the remainder of her life.

FIRST AUTO RIDE FRIGHT FATAL.

Bay State Woman Dies of Heart Disease Taking Initial Trip in a Motor Car.

Stockbridge, Mass., June 25.—[Special.]—The shock of her first ride in an automobile killed Mrs. Ralph Dissell, aged 55, of West Stockbridge today. Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Blake invited her for a ride. They had gone a little way when Mrs. Dissell collapsed. Physicians say she died of heart disease.

MISTAKES WIRE FOR ROPE; GRASPS IT; ELECTROCUTED.

Peddler Wraps Rubber Coat Around Hands and Detaches Girl's Hold—Children Have Narrow Escape.

Mistaking a dangling electric light wire for a piece of rope, Miss Fanny Wakechs, a nurse in the employ of Henry Beneke, 506 Stratford place, was electrocuted, and two children of her employer, Olga, aged 6, and Edward, aged 8, narrowly escaped death on Cornelia street, near Evanston avenue, yesterday. The nurse had released the children's hands a moment before she seized the wire.

The accident was witnessed by two Greek peddlers, Nicholas Kars, 400 West Huron street, and Michael Kritikos, 411 West Superior street, who ran forward to Miss Wakechs' assistance. She still grasped the deadly wire, but Kars wrapped his hands in a rubber rain coat which he wore and detached her hold.

Carrying her body to the home of her employer, the Greeks summoned Dr. H. A. Swartz, who declared the current, which was of 2,100 volts, had killed her instantly.

The wire, which is the property of the Commonwealth-Edison company, was broken by the storm early yesterday morning.

WIN HUSBANDS AT RAFFLE; ONE GIRL BREAKS CONTRACT.

Bashful Swain Remains Bachelor, but Fat Prize Proves Acceptable to Philadelphia Maiden.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 25.—[Special.]—The much heralded matrimonial raffle took place last night. It was only partly successful. Neither girl knew what kind of a man she was going to get. One drew a bashful man, the other a fat man.

Miss Mary Doyle, at St. Gregory's church, won William Bowers, the bashful swain. After inspecting her winning she declared she would not marry a man she could get for 10 cents, and he was raffled off again, this time the proceeds to go toward the purchase of an organ.

Miss Catherine N. Flanagan, at the fair of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, drew Thomas Skelly. Miss Flanagan looked at his 280 pounds and at first demurred. But she thought it over and changed her mind. The wedding will take place soon.

"JACK KNIFE BEN" HAS FARMER ARRESTED IN DIAMOND DEAL.

Stockyards Character Says Iowa Man Gave Him Worthless Check for $150 Stud.

Edward Israelski, 232 East Forty-third street, better known as "Jack Knife Ben," who has a novelty shop in Exchange avenue, near Halsted street, in the stockyards, caused the arrest yesterday of John M. Athey, a wealthy Blairtown, Ia., farmer on a charge of operating a confidence game.

Israelski alleges that Athey, who owns a 200 acre farm near Blairtown, gave him a check for $150 on Friday in payment for a diamond stud. The check, Israelski says, has been returned as worthless.

Athey says his arrest is the result of a mistake and that matters will be straightened out today.

AMERICA'S "FIZZ" BILL HALVED.

Nation Also Gets Along with Fewer Diamonds, Economizing to Extent of $7,000,000.

Washington, D. C., June 25.—A wave of economy is sweeping the country, according to figures of the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor, which disclose the fact that Americans cut their imported champagne bill in two and adorned themselves with fewer diamonds to the extent of $7,000,000 during the past eleven months than in the same period last year. At the same time, the United States managed to increase its imports over the corresponding period of 1910 by more than $146,000,000.

WOUNDED AGENT DROWNS IN PARK

George G. Gerrish Found in Jackson Lagoon with Two Cuts on His Scalp.

MYSTERY TO HIS FAMILY.

The body of George Gage Gerrish, 6446 Ingleside avenue, an insurance man, was found floating in Jackson park lagoon yesterday. A gash in the back of his head and a severe bruise with abrasions on his right shin indicated violence. The wound in his head had been dressed and several stitches taken in it.

The injury to his leg was covered by a bandage; a second bandage, which apparently had been used about his head, was in the pocket of his coat. His watch still was running and showed the correct time when his body was taken ashore by the police. There was a dollar and a half in change in his pockets.

He was an old resident of Woodlawn and a man of regular habits. His friends declare he was a strong swimmer. His family and friends do not consider suicide a possible explanation of his death. Inspector Clancey agrees with them.

Leave Office Saturday Afternoon.

Saturday morning Mr. Gerrish went down to his office in the New York Life building, where with A. G. Mackie, 7301 Adams avenue, he represented the United States Casualty company. He left Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Nothing is known of what he did between that hour and 6 o'clock Sunday morning, when he was found dead, except that he received the wounds discovered on his body and that they were dressed.

"He may have been struck by an automobile," Lieut. McCann of the Hyde Park station said. "After the wounds were dressed he may have thought he was able to go home. Evidently he was not. He may have fallen unconscious in the park, partially recovered consciousness, and stumbled into the lagoon. Or he may have been slugged. But how to explain the surgeon's dressings?"

Mr. Gerrish recently had changed his custom of going home on the South Side "L" to using the Cottage Grove avenue cars. Mrs. Guy Gerrish, his daughter-in-law, said he must have met with some accident, visited a physician, and then taken a Cottage Grove car.

"He might have boarded a Cottage Grove and Fifty-fifth street car," she said, "got dizzy and confused, and so have ridden on to the end of the line near the Fifty-seventh street entrance of the park. If he got off the car there in such a condition that he didn't know just what he was doing, he might have got drowned."

Mrs. Ella Gerrish, his wife, has been ill of late and now is prostrated by her husband's death. He spent Friday evening with his family, planning to celebrate his fortieth wedding anniversary, along with the fifth wedding anniversary of his son, Guy D. Gerrish of Gary, Ind., next week.

"Mr. Gerrish had a prosperous business and his family life was ideal," said Charles H. Eldredge, manager of the casualty agency, last night. "He had been married more than forty years. While there is an annoying mystery about his death, I feel sure that he did not jump in the lagoon."

An inquest will be held this morning at the undertaking rooms of Charles F. Bilger, 5133 Lake avenue.

Drowns at Summer Resort.

Chicago friends learned yesterday of the drowning of Michael Geltenane, assistant treasurer of the Chicago Screw company, while bathing at a summer resort near Kouts, Ind. Kouts is near Valparaiso.

Geltenane, who was accompanied on his vacation trip by his wife and four children, had a seizure of cramps and sank while many resorters on the banks witnessed his silent struggles. He was 45 years old and had been in the employ of the screw company for more than twenty years.

LAW FOR SANE 4TH NOW IN 50 CITIES; PAGEANTS IN 1911

Municipal and State Recruits Reported from Over Country in Anti-Death Fight.

TWO CITIES IGNORE CRUSADE

New York Takes Step in Right Direction, Through Efforts of More Conservative Officials.

REFORM MAKES ACCIDENTS FEW

The progress of the movement to change the celebration of Independence day from an orgy of noise and carnage to a rational festival of commemoration shows greater advance this year than it has in any similar period since THE TRIBUNE began its campaign to that end, twelve years ago.

Correspondents of THE TRIBUNE in half a hundred cities report the enactment or amendment of ordinances of varying degrees of stringency, regulating or prohibiting the use or fireworks and firearms, many of them dated or effective since last Fourth of July.

Revision of impracticable laws has taken place, making them more reasonable and more rigid. Sterner penalties have been provided, and in many cities where enforcement has been lax official promise is made that this year there will be no concession to the pseudo-patriotic inclinations of those who mistake the meaning of the day.

Detailed information concerning the development of the reform is submitted in the accompanying table, which shows the provisions of the laws now in force, the date of enactment, and the punishment for violation.

Insane Day in New York.

In only two cities of importance has the crusade been officially ignored—New York and Jersey City. In the former there is a law restricting one person to the use of $25 worth of explosives on the Fourth, and Mayor Gaynor and a number of conservative citizens are engaged in a movement to minimize further the insane propensities of the celebrants. Last year there were six killed and 129 injured in that city. In Jersey City one may shoot one's head off between midnight of July 3 and midnight of July 4 without interference from the authorities. One man availed himself successfully of this suicidal privilege last year, and forty-four others made the attempt. The only regulation there forbids the sale of fireworks in more than one shop in a single block.

The Massachusetts state law which went into effect just before last Independence day was not strictly observed because of the protest of the dealers that they had purchased their wares in ignorance of its impending passage. Even then it resulted in a great reduction of the number of accidents. Reports from the principal cities of the state say that this year it will be enforced to the letter.

In Minneapolis, where last year only small firecrackers and small fireworks were sold, the traffic this year will be entirely prohibited. Mayor Haynes has instructed the police to seize every explosive of any kind whether before or after sale.

Escaped Fire or Casualty.

San Francisco and Washington retain their moderate regulations which, insistently enforced in 1910, resulted in the residents of those cities escaping without a fire or a casualty. The St. Paul ordinance, which has been a dead letter for several years, is now resurrected by Mayor Keller, who says that nothing but firecrackers, four inches or less in length, may be exploded by the patriots of that city.

Pittsburg, where there were as many killed last year as in New York, will have the lid on this year in an endeavor to reduce the casualties, and in Los Angeles the dealers, discouraged by the sanity of the last Fourth, offer nothing in the way of pyrotechnics or explosives for sale whatever. In Spokane the city commissioners have decided to enforce their strict ordinance to the letter, and the cities of the vast irrigation belt to the west have legislated, largely through the influence of their university clubs, against the frenzied Fourth for the first time. The observance in the larger towns of the inland empire within a radius of 150 miles of Spokane will be largely educational.

Three Sacrificed to Dealers.

There were three persons killed and 112 injured in Milwaukee in 1910 because the new law, at the behest of the dealers, was not enforced. Warning was given, however, that powder patriotics would be at an end thereafter, and the police department has been instructed by the mayor to see that only the mildest of explosives are placed on sale.

In Cincinnati and Cleveland general displays of fireworks are permitted under proper supervision, but the deadly torpedoes and similar contrivances are under a rigid ban. Atlanta, Ga., which has had fewer Fourth of July accidents, perhaps, than any other American city, will as usual enforce its rigorous law, which has been actively in effect since 1876. There have been only thirteen casualties there in the last five years.

Meantime, with the passing of the meaningless tumult of fire and powder, there has arisen naturally a movement to give a saner outlet to the Independence day spirit. Taking the place of the childish and barbarous celebrations in many cities are historical pageants and festivals embodying social, patriotic, and intellectual elements. Open air concerts, games, plays, dances, military evolutions, and other forms of entertainment and instruction have been substituted for the pin wheel and dynamite cracker.

Children Forget "Devil Chaser."

In some centers those in charge of the celebrations aim to teach the young to commemorate not only American independence of another country, but American independence, in part at least, of slavery, intolerance, and bigotry. In Springfield, Mass., for instance, the school children have forgotten the fascinations of the "devil chaser" in the instructive joys of the pageant—in which they impersonate Indians and forefathers, tories and whigs, blue minute men and scarlet Britishers, and dames in brocade and crinoline.

Elsewhere an attempt is made to pattern the observance after the French festival in commemoration of the fall of the Bastile, without, of course, the distinctive Gallic features of that gay celebration. Even in centers as yet officially unawake to the futility and dangers of the unrestricted use of explosives, the custom wanes and gives way to the new order of safety and sanity.

In this neighborhood, outside of Chicago, the festival idea will predominate in several cities. There will be a pageant in Indianapolis to be reviewed by President Taft, who will deliver an address and participate in other portions of the advanced program. Enthusiasm in Joliet will take the form of another pageant and similar episodes will occur in Danville and Springfield, and Janesville and Tomah in Wisconsin.

Ten Programs in St. Louis.

The St. Louis Sane Fourth association has divided the city into ten districts and has arranged in each a program of athletic and other events similar to the old fashioned small town celebrations, with greased pole contests, foot races, and other such diversions. There were no fatalities in St. Louis last year, although four persons were killed and 163 injured the year previous.

Concrete evidence of the effect of the agitation and resultant legislation is found in the statistics which show that the deaths from Fourth of July causes have decreased from 466 in 1903 to 131 in 1910. The decrease, of course, was greatest in those communities where the campaign was waged most vigorously. Massachusetts, for example, had but one-seventh the accidents it had the year before; Missouri reduced its casualties to one-third, and Illinois and Ohio to one-half. For the first time in four years St. Louis and Boston, both centers of the crusade, reported no deaths and greatly reduced injuries. Perhaps the most eloquent testimony to the extent of the reform was the failure during the year, of the most extensive manufactory of pyrotechnics in the country, its sales and profits having decreased in proportion to the decreased number of the maimed and killed on Independence day.

EDISON PARK IS SANE.

The program will begin with flag raising and will progress through sports, races, and other contests to a basket dinner and a band concert in the evening. Invitations have been extended to neighboring suburbs to participate in the celebration.

POLICE RAID LOOP HOTELS OF QUESTIONABLE CHARACTER

Inspector Hunt Orders Crusade Against Alleged Dives—Women and Escorts Arrested—Man Tries to Escape.

The second raid in a crusade against loop hotels of questionable character was made last night when detectives descended on the Clark hotel, 175 North Clark street, and arrested Harry Soder, proprietor, and six men and women who were seen entering the place. One man ran down the fire escape from the third to the second floor and jumped to the ground. An officer followed and arrested him after a lively chase.

The first raid was made Saturday, when the "hotel squad" kept watch over couples entering the Quincy hotel, 12 Quincy street, and later arrested eight men and women. After both raids the prisoners were taken to the Harrison street station and released on bonds pending hearings today.

The raids were ordered by Inspector Nicholas Hunt as the result of complaints of women accosting men on the streets. The inspector declared that he would start out to rid the loop of hotels which allow such women to enter them.

AEROPLANE ON A RAMPAGE; HURTS FOUR; WRECKS ITSELF.

Airship at Garden City, L. I., Starts as Aviator Tries to Enter Seat—Exciting Chase Follows.

New York, June 25.—A wild aeroplane romped over the aviation field at Garden City, L. I., for twenty minutes today, injured four men and finally wrecked itself on an embankment.

Andre Harpert, an aviator, stepped out of the aeroplane while the engine was going at half speed to adjust a rear plane. As he tried to reënter the seat the aeroplane started and he was thrown to the ground.

It dragged him 200 feet and when he released his hold he was badly bruised. Half a dozen mechanics gave chase and were bowled over in succession, three of them being cut and bruised. The aeroplane remained on the ground during the runaway.

PLAN AIRSHIP DUEL FOR GIRL.

Young Woman Intimates She'll Award Hand to Aviator Suitor Who Flies Highest.

Lima, O., June 25.—[Special.]—A duel in the air between aviator rivals for a girl's hand will be a feature of the one day aviation meet here tomorrow. Two of the aviators, Jack Bachellor and Bert Chambers, have been laying siege to the heart of Miss Dorothy Dale of Tiffin, O. Miss Dale refused to choose between them and at the recent meet in that city made a trip into the clouds with each. Now she has promised to make her decision here, and intimates that she will accept the one who makes the highest altitude record during the day.

SIX SAVED FROM DROWNING.

Three Children, Two Women, and Man Taken from Sinking Launch by Police.

New York, June 25.—[Special.]—Six persons were rescued today from the launch Baby, which went out of commission in Jamaica bay in a squall. Save for the appearance of the police launch and the bravery of Patrolman Edward Tank the six would have been drowned. In the party were John Hammond, who owns the Baby, his wife, and two children, a woman friend, and her child. The party kept the boat from sinking by bailing.

FT. WORTH STOCKYARDS BURN.

Flames Destroy Twenty-seven Acres of Pens Besides Several Buildings—Loss Estimated at $100,000.

Fort Worth Tex., June 25.—Fire swept through the Fort Worth stockyards for three hours this afternoon and caused a loss estisated at $100,000. Despite the efforts of the fire companies from the Swift and Armour packing plants, and a half dozen companies of the city department, the flames destroyed twenty-seven acres of pens, three scalehouses, two mammoth hay and feed barns, the loading docks, viaduct driveways to the packing houses, and the yardmaster's office.

ONE BABY IN FAMILY ENOUGH

Olive Schreiner Says Wife Should Not Be Parasite.

SHE OUGHT TO GO TO WORK.

Writer Gives Idea of Twentieth Century Woman's Duty.

Cambridge, Mass., June 25.—[Special.]—"One child is enough for the twentieth century family," says Olive Schreiner in her new book, "Woman and Labor."

"The woman who doesn't earn her own living is a parasite," continues the author, "except for that small portion of her time when she is engaged in propagating the species; but for that time she should be paid.

"Wherever in the history of a nation great numbers of its women have become parasitic that nation is on the road to downfall and decay. America is, therefore, on the road to degeneration unless its women of leisure can be allowed—or induced—to exchange their vanities for labor.

Defines the Woman Parasite.

"The woman parasite, whether in modern Paris or New York or in ancient Greece, Rome, or Assyria, is the woman who, relieved of manual labor by the prosperity of her class or nation or by the invention of labor saving machinery, will trade on her unused potentialities of motherhood for her support.

"Unless she can or will enter the industrial field or some other line of productive activity she has no right to live on the labors of man except in the primitive or decimated nations, where the duties of motherhood extend over a greater period than the half dozen years now necessary out of her three score years and ten.

Would Be Happier if Working.

"The woman of leisure today, like that hothouse specimen so notorious before the downfall of Rome, who seeks madly by pursuit of pleasure to fill the void left by the lack of honorable activity, would be far happier if she had plenty of work to do, and the race would be correspondingly healthier and more efficient."

JOHN D. DOES VANISHING ACT.

Cleveland, O., June 25.—[Special.]—John D. Rockefeller surprised the members of the Baptist church at Tarrytown, N. Y., this morning by driving down to service with two friends. No one in Cleveland knew of his departure from here. Rockefeller is in Tarrytown, friends here declare, to complete arrangments for building a $500,000 home in New York as a gift to his son.

BLACK HAND SLAYS A MERCHANT

Cleveland Victim Just Recovering from Throat Wound at Hands of Blackmail Band.

RIVALS IN LOVE; BOTH DEAD

Victim of Disappointed Suitor's Bullet Dies in Hospital.

GIRL TELLS OF TRAGEDY.

Refused One, Not Pledged to Other; Slayer Killed Resisting Arrest.

The rivalry of two young men for the regard of Miss Inga Bjorkan, 1351 West Ohio street, resulted in a second tragedy yesterday. Harry Rooke, 1612 West Erie street, who was shot by Thomas Erickson, 1351 West Ohio street, when the two men came together at Miss Bjorkan's home last Saturday night, died yesterday morning in the county hospital. Erickson was killed in a revolver battle with detectives who sought to arrest him soon after the first shooting affray.

Tells of Both Men's Love.

Propped up in bed and under the care of a physician, Miss Bjorkan yesterday told something of the circumstances surrounding the double tragedy.

"I knew both Thomas and Harry loved me, but Tom was so much older than Harry that I never thought there was jealousy between them," she said. "I had known Harry since he was a small boy. Tom had proposed several times, but I had no thought of marrying him. Harry often intimated that he valued my friendship, but never spoke of marriage."

Rivals Meet; Shooting Follows.

Rooke had called on Miss Bjorkan, who lives in the same apartment building that Erickson occupied, early Saturday evening. He was accosted by his rival as he was leaving the porch. An argument followed and Erickson drew a weapon and shot Rooke in the left side. The injured man walked a short distance and then collapsed. Erickson went into his own flat.

Several detectives heard the shot and ran up. They broke down the locked door to Erickson's flat, the latter opening fire as they entered. In the return fire Erickson was shot through the head and died instantly. It is thought that he contemplated suicide after killing his rival from a note which the detectives found. It inclosed $120 and instructions to bury his body as cheaply as possible and turn over the amount remaining and the furniture of his apartment to some poor Norwegian family.

CONFIDENT DENEEN WILL WIN

Friends Say Waterway Bill Will Pass Senate Wednesday.

HOUSE AIDS ARE ACTIVE.

Administration Forces Oppose Any Compromise at Present.

Springfield, Ill., June 25.—Friends of Gov. Deneen predict tonight that the administration waterway bill, which is to be reintroduced tomorrow afternoon in the senate, will be passed by the upper body at an early morning session on Wednesday.

The compromise talk which was started yesterday apparently has not struck a responsive chord among the senators, many of whom say it will be time to talk compromise only after the bill has had another chance to pass the house.

According to the program, the house waterway adherents will be present late Tuesday night prepared to remain in their seats until the end of the week and fight out the battle. The leaders say they will not be caught napping again. Awake to the parliamentary practices used last week, the waterway supporters in the house are planning to meet any new contingency which may arise. How successful they will be is only a matter for speculation.

RESIDENTS OF NORTH SHORE TO ORGANIZE TO STOP CRIME.

Property Owners Will Form Association to Put an End to Lawlessness in the District.

An organization, one of the chief purposes of which will be to put an end to attacks on women and other forms of lawlessness and rowdyism on the north shore, will be formed tonight by property owners residing in the neighborhood of Wilson avenue. It will be known as the North Shore Improvement and Protective association.

In its efforts to accomplish its aims the new association probably will coöperate with the North Shore Improvement association, an older organization. The meeting will be held at the North Shore Congregational church, Sheridan road and Wilson avenue, at 8 o'clock. A constitution and bylaws will be drawn up and officers elected. It is expected that provision will be made for organizing vigilance committees, should they be required.

Drastic regulations for bathing beaches and saloons in the district will be discussed.

TRAP RICH MEN IN SMUGGLING CASE

GEMS VALUED AT $300,000.

Jewels Given Mysterious "Helen Dwelle Jenkins" by Wealthy Admirer.

New York, June 25.—[Special.]—The smuggling into this country of $300,000 worth of jewels given to "Mrs. Helen Dwelle Jenkins" by an aged millionaire admirer is soon to result, it was learned today, in the indictment of a New Yorker who is at the head of one of the largest banking and brokerage houses in the city.

Two other men of great wealth and influence in their communities—one a southerner, the other a westerner—also will be indicted.

Four, and possibly six customs house inspectors will be charged by a federal grand jury with having connived with the three millionaires to admit free of duty—in consideration of bribes—the gems which "Jenkins" showered upon the woman.

Richard Parr, deputy surveyor of the port, whose clever and persistent detective work for more than a year unearthed the smuggling, has about completed his task, and a wonderfully romantic story will be revealed when he takes the witness stand.

Mr. Parr not only knows all about the smuggling but likewise all about the sensational robbery of "Mrs. Jenkins," at the Hotel Lorraine, late in 1909, when she declared all her jewels had been stolen.

Story of the "Jenkins" Gems.

The secret agent could not be induced to talk much today, but from a source equally as well informed was learned nearly the complete story of the jewels. It is this:

On June 25, 1909, "Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jenkins" arrived in New York on the Lusitania from Europe. They had been making a whirlwind tour of the old world for more than three months.

"Jenkins" was the name assumed by the western millionaire admirer of the woman. They were accompanied from Europe by a southerner, who had known the woman before the westerner became infatuated with her and when she was having a Chicago career. He had been with them on most of their tour.

Through the westerner's interest in the woman and her friendship for the southerner the latter had been enabled to borrow large sums of money from the millionaire with which to finance some southern enterprises.

Trunks Filled with Costly Apparel.

The pair brought back on the Lusitania eleven big trunks and three smaller baggage contraptions. The trunks were filled with the most costly laces, gowns, dress goods, gloves by the hundreds of dozens, specially made in Naples, lingerie, etc.

The southern companion, according to the story told by "Mrs. Jenkins" to the government officers, was the chief medium in the smuggling of the tens of thousands of dollars' worth of jewels the western man had bought for his woman companion and also for his wife and children in their western home.

The customs men accepted the declaration of "J. W. Jenkins" that he and "Mrs. Jenkins" had brought back from Europe only $100 worth of dutiable goods—the amount allowed by law.

A reporter today saw the original declaration made by "Jenkins." It contained also a sworn statement that they had carried away with them furs, jewelry, and other like articles to the value of about $8,000. These of course were not dutiable.

Examination Made a Farce.

The customs inspectors assigned to the baggage of the "Jenkinses" went through the farce of examining their trunks and hand bags, and cleared the entire lot in a jiffy.

Then, off to the Hotel Breslin went "Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jenkins" and their southern friend.

"Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins" occupied rooms 621-22 at the Breslin for a few days and then departed for Chicago, where a year before the millionaire had installed the woman in a fine mansion in Sheridan road, the cost of which is not known. It is known, however, that he spent $24,000 on interior decorations alone for the house.

After the story of the robbery of the jewels was published, customs officials became active, and the investigation revealed that smuggling on a big scale had been accomplished.

TREASURER'S AIDS GOBBLE UP FUND

Over $190,000 of $200,000 Appropriated for 'Extras' Spent by County Official.

STILL NEEDS MORE MONEY

O'Connell Points to 'Quick Service'; Says He Had to Pay 'Overtime' to Expert.

BY OSCAR E. HEWITT

[Late Deputy Commissioner of Public Works.]

One Cook county office where the "extra" force of employés has been materially reduced is the county treasurer's. Presumably it was necessary—for the money is practically all gone.

Of an original appropriation amounting to $200,000 for "extra" help over $190,000 had been spent to May 31, and the June pay roll probably will be between $5,000 and $6,000. That is a record for fast spending in this office. Nineteen-twentieths of the annual appropriation has been paid out in one-half of the year.

An additional appropriation of $12,000 has been given the county treasurer for "extra" labor, and later a transfer of about $14,000 from the regular salary account, which has been saved, will be asked. Still more will be necessary unless the speed of spending is reduced.

The "extra" pay roll for the first half of this year is nearly $60,000 more than the cost of "extras" during the same period of last year. That is an average of approximately $10,000 added expense a month. The questionable practice of paying overtime to the assistant treasurer has been continued.

O'Connell Gives the Reasons.

The additional expenditures for "extras" has not established any remarkable record in an increased amount of taxes collected. The exact figures are not available, but the treasurer's office does not claim it has collected more than the natural increase due to increased property values.

The reasons for the unusually heavy expenditures for "extra" employés was sought from William L. O'Connell, county treasurer. He explained as follows:

"The law does not give sufficient time for the payment of taxes. The books were turned over to me a little late. You have written stories of the awful rush to pay taxes, when women were crushed and fainted. I decided to get sufficient employés to get every one waited upon in the shortest possible time. I almost doubled the extra force. My sole desire was to give the taxpayers the best and quickest service, and having accomplished that, I take it that it makes no difference whether I spend my appropriation in three months or in nine months.

"Employés were limited to twenty or thirty minutes for lunch and on no day did we have any one waiting for a receipt after 4 o'clock. I think the latest time was eight minutes to 4."

"Were there not other contributing causes to the expense?" was asked.

Points to "Quick Service."

"We changed a number of employés," replied the treasurer. "Often the old employés were retained until it was evident that the new ones thoroughly understood the work. For example, Assistant Treasurer Werner was retained for two months after I obtained the services of Marcus Jacobowsky from a bank for that position. It would be reckless to put a new bookkeeper on the treasurer's books, no matter what his qualifications were, unless he had had experience in this particular line of work.

"That cost some additional money. I employed the most competent men I could find, my purpose being to at least maintain and perhaps increase the efficiency of the office. Party affiliations were not the first consideration. There are employés in responsible positions of the office now who have worked under the Republican administrations for years. I have saved about $14,000 on my regular pay roll, although I have spent perhaps nine months of my extra appropriation in six months. But I have given the taxpayers better accommodations and quicker service than they ever had before.

"I have turned over to each tax expending body all the money they desired and on the exact day they wanted it. City Controller Wilson, when I was elected last fall, asked for a schedule of the dates and amounts of money I would turn over to the city. I asked that he suggest a schedule. He did and I approved of it and have lived up to it."

What Is Benefit to Public?

That the treasurer has turned over money promptly to the city is indicated by the city controller's copybook. There is a letter dated April 15 last, signed by Walter H. Wilson, which reads:

"As I am about to relinquish the office of city controller, I want most sincerely to thank you for your prompt remittances to date of taxes due the city. Also to commend your public spirit in agreeing to a schedule of remittances during the balance of the year. This will be of great benefit to all taxpayers."

The paying of taxes to the city of course has an indirect bearing on the expenditures for extra help. John R. Thompson, former county treasurer, also was commended by Mr. Wilson for doing the same thing. It is not contended that the "extra" employés in such large numbers were necessary to collect the taxes before they were disbursed, because the former treasurer collected the taxes with a considerable less number of "extra" employés, in the same amount of time.

Of the value of increased and better service to the public, perhaps the best judge is the public itself. Regarding the paying of overtime to the assistant treasurer, it is contended that only precedent has been followed. Indeed, it was asserted that years ago, before Otto Rexses was made chief clerk, the high salaried officers and employés received double allowance for overtime. It was not argued by Mr. Jacobowsky himself that the precedent is above criticism.

"I was compelled to work hard," he said. "Sometimes I was here until 2 o'clock in the morning. I could not leave until every book and record was put away. I was forced to stay at a hotel some of the time and I also had to buy meals, and don't you think I was entitled to reimbursement?"

Question of "Overtime" Pay.

The former assistant treasurer also received overtime. Mr. Jacobowsky's overtime ran from $20 in February, $21 in March, $112 in April to $92 in May. The former assistant city treasurer last May received $182 in overtime. If the present assistant treasurer worked every night and Sunday that any other employés worked it appears that he did not charge as much as was given to subordinates.

If some technical lawyer were contesting the overtime payments in court, it is highly probable that he would argue that the appropriation bill does not give the right to use any of the $200,000 for overtime.

There is a law prohibiting the use of public money for any purpose other than that for which it is appropriated. The appropriation bill reads:

"Extra men by the day, including nights and Sundays, 50 to 250 men, to be employed as required, average 150 men, $200,000."

About the same phraseology is used for similar items in other offices. That makes no reference to overtime for regular employés. It does not prescribe the salary which shall be paid any of the extra men. It has been the practice for many years to pay overtime out of this lump appropriation, and it also has been the custom to pay extra men at the rate of $4 a day, $2 for the three hours between 6 and 9 p. m. and $4 for the five hours between 6 and 11 p. m.

The pay rolls have forms for that schedule and also $4 a day for Sundays. It has been the practice in the treasurer's office to pay $5 for Sunday work. The pay rolls, however, give no information regarding this Sunday rate. The rolls show that when a man works a Sunday he has worked one and one-quarter Sundays. In that way the employé receives $5.

High "Extra" Work in May.

The result is that certain items on the pay rolls look ridiculous. For example, a name sometimes appears on the pay roll for five Sundays in a month when there are only four, and an employé is credited with working thirty-two days in a month when the calendar shows only thirty-one.

Mr. O'Connell explained that he did not make the appropriation. He added that the estimates of the needs of his office were made by his predecessor and he did not change them. The former treasurer asked for $212,000 for "extra men," instead of the $200,000 first appropriated.

The present treasurer reached his high water mark in hiring "extra" men in May when the total numbered 677. May, a year ago, 405 "extras" were on the pay roll. This roll for last month was in excess of $60,000, while for the corresponding period of last year it was less than $45,000.

The controller's figures for the treasurer's "extra" roll for the first six months are $190,470.50. The controller's figures for the same purpose during the same period of 1910 are $132,711. The difference between the two shows the additional cost of "extra" employés this year over last year.

Some on Three Pay Rolls.

It is difficult to ascertain what part of the "extra" men expenditure any regular or extra employé obtained. It is possible for an employé to be—and many of them are—on three pay rolls of the treasurer's office. Some are made in alphabetical order and others are not. Some are made according to salaries received and others are not. One roll is for the salaries of the regular employés.

Another is labeled "extra man" and it contains the compensation of extra employés and overtime of regular employés, unless they have been working on delinquent tax lists. This delinquent tax list roll purports to show the compensation of all employés, whether regular or extra, who have worked on these lists either in regular or overtime hours. The champion worker on the "extra" men list for period between April 24 and May 16 is Joseph Carroll, 736 Forty-fifth street. He received $224. The record shows that he worked twenty-seven days, two evenings between 6 and 9 o'clock, twenty-three evenings between 6 and 11 o'clock, and five Sundays. The "five Sundays" means only four in fact.

Dennis Malloy, 141 Whipple street, takes second honors with $222, and Clayton Butler of Oak Park won the red ribbon with $221.

The chief defect of this pay roll, as with all others for "extra" men, is that it does not give the slightest indication regarding the character of service rendered by each employé.

Swedish Beauties; Winner Popularity Contest.

Despite intermittent showers, which continued throughout the day, about 10,000 Chicago Swedes flocked out to Elliott's park, twenty-six miles south of the city, yesterday, and spread themselves in droves over the hills of the park and the rolling pastures adjoining. The occasion was the midsummer festival of the Svenska National Forbundet, the Swedish national association of Chicago.

A Swedish band and choir of male voices rendered excellent musical programs. There was present a Swedish minstrel, Torkel Scholander of Stockholm, who made a hit by singing old folk songs.

The picnic yielded $700 for the Vahalla Home for the Aged, which the Order of Vikings in Chicago plans to erect on the shore of Deep lake, near Lake Villa, Ill.

The popularity contest between eight young women of the order of the Ladies of the Vikings was won by Miss Jennie Johnson of Ragnhild lodge No. 6.

COW BELL DOWNS FERVOR

Neighbors of Persian Mission Outjangle Members of Congregation

SCUFFLE ON AT THE MISSION.

Churchmen Get Possession but Police Attend Night Services.

The neighborhood around the Persian Pentecostal mission, at 821 North Clark street, has endeavored consistently for months to discourage the religious ardor of the mission's patrons.

The religious ceremonies of the order include "Speaking in Tongues" and some of the speakers make themselves heard for blocks.

Tongue of Bell Speaks.

But a cowbell, jangled from the end of a pole, yesterday afternoon, was the first agency to quiet one of the stormy, hysterical services offered to the missionaries as an effective fervor remedy.

During an opening hymn, when all members of the congregation were either shouting or dancing, the cow bell was inserted through an open window, clanging an interruption that the Persian Pentecosts could not ignore.

Then came a sacrilegious spectacle of the pastor, the Rev. Andrew Urshan, and one of the deacons, seizing hold of the pole on which the bell was fastened, and scuffled about the mission house for its possession.

Disturbers Routed by Churchmen.

The disturbers—that is, the disturbers of the disturbers—lost the tug of war and a perfectly good cowbell, but retired upstairs to the rooms over the mission, serene in the knowledge that no sound of pentecostal enthusiasm came up from the floor below.

No arrests were made. Two detectives attended the mission last night to "hold down the soft pedal." The pastor declared he would go to jail before he would caution his parishioners against an excess of fervor. But the mission congregation seemed much subdued in their devotions last night.

AUTO GANG STEALS 6 CARS

Three Taken from in Front of Hotels Where Owners Dine.

SHIPPED TO OTHER CITIES.

Police Believe Robbers Send Them Away and Remove Markings.

Automobile thieves stole four cars last evening, the total value of which is $15,000. The theft of the machines within such a short space of time leads the police to believe that an organized gang is at work, and that stolen cars are being shipped from Chicago to other cities and disposed of after marks of identification are destroyed.

During the last month an unusually large number of automobiles have been stolen. Most of them, however, were recovered. Those that were found by the police, after having been abandoned by the thieves, were restored to their owners. But these machines, the police say, were stolen by persons who wanted a "joy ride," and not by regular thieves.

Victim of Robber Gang.

Last night's victims of the robber gang were:

John A. Carpenter, 212 East Superior street, Lozier car, license No. 247; stolen from in front of the Congress hotel.

Frank W. Lenhof, 5636 Prairie avenue, Chalmers car, license No. 18906; stolen from in front of the Congress hotel.

Dr. H. P. Skiles, 2340 West Monroe street, Stoddard-Dayton car, license No. 3310; stolen from Robey street and Washington boulevard.

L. Markle, manager Buick Auto company, 1452 Michigan avenue, Buick car, license No. 8,177, stolen from in front of the Art institute.

Mr. Carpenter, with a party of friends, was taking dinner at the Congress. He left his car at 5:30 o'clock, and it was stolen soon afterward.

Car Taken as Party Dines.

Mr. Lenhof and party also stopped at the Congress for dinner, and his five passenger car was taken between 8 and 9 o'clock.

Dr. Skiles was making a professional call when a thief got into his machine and drove away.

Mr. Markle and party were dining at the Stratford when his auto was taken from in front of the Art institute.

"It looks as if an organized gang of automobile thieves was at work," said Sergeant Duffy of the Harrison street station, who took charge of the search for the two cars stolen from the Congress hotel. "We have been pretty lucky in finding most of the machines that are stolen, because they are taken by boys who want a "joy ride" through the parks. Stolen machines which we do not recover are shipped out of the city, their marks of identification destroyed as far as possible, and then they are resold."

J. L. Pfaelzer, 4931 Grand boulevard, Stoddard-Dayton, license No. 24058; stolen from in front of La Salle hotel at midnight.

Overcome by Heat; Taken Home.

George Teal, 253 South Campbell avenue, was overcome by the heat at North Fortieth avenue and West Lake street yesterday. He was given medical attention and taken home by the police.

GIVES EDICT IN UNION WAR: A. F. OF L. UPHOLDS PLUMBERS

Executive Council Recommends the Revocation of Steamfitters' Charter—Officials Declare Fight Will Continue.

New animus was injected into the war between the rival steamfitters' unions yesterday, when the report was received that the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, in session at Washington, D. C., has decided in favor of the plumbers and recommended the revocation of the charter of the International Association of Steamfitters.

The recommendation of the council will go to the next convention of the American Federation of Labor, to be held in Atlanta, Ga., in November. Its object is the formation of one organization of steam pipe workmen.

The unions which are supporting the steamfitters are the carpenters, bricklayers, lathers, hoisting engineers, painters and building laborers, with an aggregate membership of 45,000. The unions in the Building Trades council that are supporting the plumbers are the electrical workers, sheetmetal workers, structural iron workers, architectural ironworkers, elevator constructors, machinists and cement workers, with a membership of about 8,000.

In indorsing the plumbers in the war they have made on the steam fitters the executive council of the American federation of labor indirectly places its stamp of approval on the United Association of Steam Fitters, whose business agent, "Moss" Enright, is now being held without bail on the charge of killing Vincent Altman and William (Dutchy) Gentleman in the labor feuds.

TROLLEY CRASH HURTS FIVE.

Special on Chicago and Milwaukee Electric Bumps Into Local Train in Heavy Fog.

Five passengers were bruised and cut by flying glass when a Chicago and Milwaukee Electric railway special train crashed into a local at the Fourteenth street station, North Chicago, last night.

The wreck occurred shortly before midnight and was due to the heavy fog. A southbound local was at the station on the through tracks. The special came out of the fog and was within 100 feet when the motorman started to apply the brakes. The heavy train slid on the slippery rails and crashed into the rear coach of the local. Passengers were thrown from their seats, and those in the front car of the special and the rear coach of the local were showered with splinters of glass.

A call was sent for a wrecking crew and the injured passengers were attended by doctors who were called.

GIVE WORDS WEIRD MEANINGS

High School Students in Unique Definitions at Examinations.

"FELON—A KIND OF BIRD."

Pupil Explains "Superfluous" as "Something Grand."

Shades of Noah Webster! How that old definer of words and maker of dictionaries would groan in anguish could he see some of the examination papers credited to Chicago high school pupils at the closing of the present term.

A teacher furnishes THE TRIBUNE the following instances of word definitions culled from papers turned in by second and third year high school students:

TRANSIENT—A fainting spell; easily seen through; by the day; staring like.

PHENOMENA—Face.

SURPLICE—That which remains after something has been taken.

SUPERFLUOUS—Something grand.

ISOLATION—Protection; insulation.

INDISPENSABLE—To be poor; cannot be seen; not stopping.

PRESENTIMENT—To introduce; giving something to another person.

INGENIUS—Opposite to genius; not able to do things easily.

DISCERNIBLE—A person who tends to his own business; that which can be taken apart.

FELON—Some kind of a bird.

PRIMITIVE—Prim or stiff; beginning in primary.

RUMINATING — Intolerable, disgusting; moving to and fro; to ruin or destroy.

PROSTRATION—To torment.

Some High School English.

Here also are a number of examples of "English as she is writ," taken from the same papers:

She is composed of a sweet, modest, and retiring disposition.

She had habitual manners.

Loan means to give things, but you have to pay double.

Margaret's avocation was a scratch given by the cat.

The avocation was a slap on the face by the duke.

She was rigid, beautiful, neat and prim.

She was determinate of principle.

"With the hundreds of thousands of dollars that are being spent annually in the city of Chicago to educate our youth, it would seem that the work of second and third year high school pupils ought to be of a higher standing," is the criticism of THE TRIBUNE'S informant.

Some Trouble with System.

"There is mentioned neither the high school nor the section of the city yielding such answers, but it is in a supposedly intelligent portion of the city. One might expect such ignorance in sixth grade grammar schools, but there must be something radically wrong with our system when pupils exhibit such a woeful lack in our high schools."

"I can scarcely believe that high school pupils gave such definitions or used such phrases," said Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of schools. "I should like to know the school from which they emanated—I would go out there and see what is wrong.

"There are high schools in the foreign sections where such slips might occur. There the students may not have mastered the language though they may be well advanced in other branches. Another thing, the teacher may be at fault in not pronouncing words clearly and in not placing them in sentences which indicate their meaning."

WOULD MAKE DIVORCE EASIER.

Louis F. Post, Editor of the Public, Tells Church Class Laws Are Too Stringent.

Instead of making it more difficult to secure divorces, Louis F. Post, editor of the Public, would make it easier to sever irksome matrimonial bonds.

In an address before the Current Events class of the First Congregational church, Evanston, yesterday, Mr. Post said:

"When real marriage is ended, when there is a separation in thought and feeling between the two, a divorce should be granted. It is foolish to attempt to continue the relations when real marriage is dead.

"Marriage," he continued, "is a sacred relationship, but the ceremony of marriage is a convention, necessary but without significance except as a public safeguard."

NO SALOON MEN IN FRONT PEW.

Father McNamee Tells Catholic Total Abstinence Union Church Should Follow This Rule.

Delegates to the number of about 600, representing fifty-two organizations of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of Illinois, met yesterday in Evanston.

The day began with a solemn high mass in St. Mary's church, followed by a parade with bands and military drills and closing in the evening with a public massmeeting.

Father Joseph McNamee, the pastor of Peotone, Ill., who is noted for refusing contributions from saloon owners, declared at the massmeeting that in no Catholic church should the saloon man be permitted to occupy a front seat.

ENDS JOY RIDE AT STATION

Host at Party Misses "Friends" as Police Are Approached.

"AM JUDGE DEVER'S CLERK"

Benjamin Juhnke, with 30 Cents Objects to Auto Trip Finish.

For five hours Benjamin Juhnke of 1436 West Erie street "entertained" a party of good fellows who had been picked up here and there as different saloons were visited last evening. The end came when John Ulrich, the chauffeur, had Juhnke arrested for his refusal to settle.

Despite his assertions that he was "clerk in Judge Dever's court, and that he would make the whole outfit look sick before he was through with them," Juhnke was arrested along with Lawrence Klengenberg, the only "guest" who remained long enough in the car to see the entertainment to an end.

According to the story told by Ulrich he was summoned by telephone to Murphy's saloon, Ashland and Grand avenues, for a fare who gave the name of Burns.

"I've waited a long time for that car," exclaimed Juhnke, according to Ulrich. "Yes, I'm Burns."

Picks Guests on the Way.

A minute later "Burns" and Klengenberg were whirled away from the saloon and the first lap of the joy ride was on. The machine was stopped at a saloon. "Burns" alighted and returned with two apparently boon companions. A third stop was made at another thirst parlor and with the auto filled with appreciative revellers Juhnke directed the chauffeur to turn in the direction of Humboldt park.

"Everything went all right until the boys began to sing about it lookin' like a big night tonight."

"When Juhnke showed me a city guide for a bank book after I had asked him who was going to pay for the ride, I decided to take him to the garage. He was recognized at the place as being Mr. Juhnke, and not 'Burns,' so I hurried the happy crowd over to the station."

Several of the "guests" evidently scented trouble. It was while Ulrich was "burning up" the road, dangerously near the speed limit, that the first one to bid adieu, swung out of the car at Center avenue and Washington boulevard.

Guests Gradually Fade Away.

Another passenger quietly opened a side door as the machine was bumping over the car tracks at Morgan street, and gracefully slid out. A third took his departure, when Ulrich slackened up to allow a fire engine to gallop past, and a fourth swung out a block farther along. How the fifth one reached the roadway is not positively known, but he missed his footing and rolled over and over on the muddy pavement. He was slowly limping away when Ulrich turned off Washington boulevard at Desplaines street.

"It was a joy ride, al right, but I'm glad it didn't last any longer," said Ulrich. Juhnke had only 30 cents when searched at the police station. I rather think he will settle for about $25 when his case is called in the morning. He ordered the machine, for I caught him as he was telephoning a second time for it."

"I'm not doing any talking just now," was the way Juhnke expressed himself. "A fellow named Burns ordered this car and I accompanied him. They've got the wrong fellow, that's all."

BUTCHER IGNORES DEMANDS; BLACK HAND WRECKS SHOP.

Bomb Explosion Follows Threatening Letters, Which Were Unheeded—Italian Colony Is Panic Stricken.

The police are at sixes and sevens over the latest Black Hand outrage, which occurred early yesterday morning, when a bomb with a long time fuse exploded in the doorway of the meat market of Vincenzo Morreale, 1166 Larrabee street. Morreale and his family, who live at the rear of the store, were thrown from their beds by the force of the detonation.

This explosion has thrown the north side Italian colony into a panic, as the district for the last few months has been practically avoided by the members of the Black Hand, who until lately have confined their operations to the south side.

The bomb blew out the whole front of the butcher shop, and shattered windows of adjoining stores.

Threatening letters were received By Morreale, but he told the police he had ignored them, and he believes the bomb is a consequence.

Two women yesterday afternoon declared they saw two men running away from the Morreale house a few minutes before the explosion occurred, but darkness prevented them getting an accurate description of them.

HELP MAN FROM CAR; ROB HIM.

"Dips" Rifle Cripple's Pockets While Assisting Him to Alight—Get Seventy Dollars.

While assisting him to alight from a street car at East Seventy-fifth street and Central avenue, Windsor Park, yesterday afternoon, two pickpockets robbed L. D. Robertson, 1022 South Humphrey avenue, Oak Park, of a pocketbook containing $70 and some valuable papers. Mr. Robertson is lame, and when two well dressed men helped him from the car he was profuse in his thanks. The men got on the car again. A few minutes later Mr. Robertson discovered his loss. The police are investigating.

Bakery Burns; Chimney Cause.

Fire damaged the bakery shop of David Aron, 2115 Potomac avenue, to the extent of $500 last night. The blaze started near the roof and was caused by an overheated oven.

CITY GOES AFTER TAX DELINQUENTS

Proceedings Against Makers of False Schedules May Open General Warfare.

$50,000 A YEAR LOST.

Corporation Counsel Says 50,000 People File Untrue Return; May Start Prosecutions.

Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton announces that today he will institute proceedings against a number of Chicago corporations and individuals. Some of them will be charged with having violated the law which requires the filing of sworn tax schedules. Others will be prosecuted for having filed falsified schedule affidavits with the board of assessors fof Cook county.

Among those in the initial prosecutions are said to be the following:

Diamond Rubber company.
Michelin Tire company.
Goodrich Rubber company.
Morton Salt company.
Morris Packing company.
National Auto company.
Empire Auto Supply company.

The promised suits are the result of a month's investigation under the direction of Assistant Corporation Counsel Henry S. Berger at the request of Frank Koraleski, Democratic member of the board of assessors.

"Trust" Firms Are Violators.

Mr. Berger, who will file the suits, said that the rubber and packing "trusts" apparently had been the principal violators of the tax laws and that their assessed valuations were much lower than those of "independent" firms in the same line of trade. He estimated that the county is losing from $40,000 to $50,000 a year from the firms who are to be sued today.

"We have discovered enough to satisfy us that gross injustice is being done the honest taxpayers," Mr. Sexton said. "We don't want to have to send people to the penitentiary, but we are going to get results. We are certain that personal property tax on from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 is lost annually in the county.

"My investigation of conditions in the board of assessors' office has brought to light the facts that from 25,000 to 30,000 property owners have filed no tax schedules this year; that 50,000 to 60,000 persons have filed false schedules; and that between 50,000 and 60,000 taxpayers are not on the assessors' rolls at all.

Law Provides for Penalties.

"The statutes define the failure to file a tax schedule as a misdemeanor, and the penalty is a fine not exceeding $200. For filing a false schedule the penalty is from one to fourteen years in the penitentiary—the punishment for perjury—or a fine not exceeding $5,000, or both."

According to the assistant corporation counsel and Assessor Koralesk, the worst violator discovered so far in connection with the schedule filing is the Diamond Rubber company, which, it is alleged, owns about $1,000,000 worth of property, and has a schedule already filed showing only $28,905 worth of taxable property. In this connection W. H. Weber, assessor and secretary of the board, is charged with violating the law in not demanding the company officials to make oath to the schedule returns and for giving his "O. K." to the schedule.

Mr. Weber, and indeed all the members of the board except Mr. Koraleski, are charged with trying to prevent the investigation of the board's records by investigators from the corporation counsel's office. Mr. Weber yesterday denied this charge as well as the charge of irregularities in his office. He said that the "whole affair was started because Koraleski was denied political patronage in the office."

Not Given Information Asked.

"We have been hampered at every turn by the men in the board of assessors' offices in our inquiry," Mr. Berger said. "When I went with a letter from Mr. Sexton to Secretary Weber, I was told that the office was only clerical, and that the place for me to go was the board of review. I was not allowed to look at the schedule files of previous years, under the excuse that they were being listed and put in place.

"As to what, if any, action will be taken against the assessors for allowing the violations I cannot say yet. The law provides that such violations as we have discovered form good cause for removal from office as well as for criminal prosecution. Of course, action of that sort would have to be taken through the state's attorney's office.

Violations by the Diamond Rubber company will, unless efforts are made to collect the legal tax on their actual property, beat the county out of about $15,000 worth of taxes. They have $700,000 worth of stock on hand alone. Other automobile firms are in about the same boat and the assessors' office cannot escape some of the responsibility for this state of affairs.

"In the cases of many big companies we find that their assessed valuations run along about the same for several years back, although their business has grown rapidly from year to year."

SEE QUITS SPIRIT; LINES WITH SHAW

"Prophet's" Lawyers for the Time Desert Spook to Show Client as Moralist.

ASK REMOVAL OF TEMPLE

Racine Avenue Neighbors Seek to Have Owners Cancel Lease on Notorious Flat.

By comparison, Evelyn Arthur See's attorneys, James E. Callahan and Francis J. Callahan, hope to prove that the writings of the "God of Passion" are no more shocking than those of Bernard Shaw and Walt Whitman.

They do not wish to admit that See's writings are as bad as those of Shaw; they merely desire to prove that they are not sufficient to send their client to the penitentiary—Shaw still being at large. On the other hand, it is generally known that Shaw was never charged with practicing his teachings, and that the most of them have some definite moral object in view.

Points Out the Similarity.

Examples of the extracts which the Callahans expect to introduce into the evidence today, or as soon as they have the opportunity, follow:

SEE—If husband and wife desire to part, let no man stand between them. —"Manuscript 12."

SHAW—When every young man can afford to marry, and marriage reform makes it easy to dissolve unions, . . . bachelordom will die a natural death.—"Getting Married."

SEE—Why should there be enmity between former husband and wife and between former wife and husband? They should live in peace.—"Manuscript 18."

SHAW—I divorced you to get you rid of me. . . . And you are most unkind to say that I didn't care for you. You know I'm quite fond of you.—"Getting Married."

Use Lines by Whitman.

Among Walt Whitman's writings, the defense will introduce selections from "Leaves of Grass."

"We do not wish to give the impression that Mr. See advocated immorality," James E. Callahan said yesterday. "We only wish to show that there are other men writing worse things, who remain out of jail."

Demands that Arthur Evelyn See and such of his "Absolute Life" as remains clinging about the "temple" at 2541 Racine avenue get out of the neighborhood are being made by property owners in the vicinity.

A petition to have the "temple" purged is being quietly circulated. When enough signatures are attached it is to be presented to F. A. Anderson, who owns the See flat and occupies the lower floor of the same building.

"If the petition is not successful," one of the signers said yesterday, "we will find some other way of making See move. I won't say just what it will be, but there are certain methods of making things unpleasant to undesirables."

Want See Out of Midst.

The petition follows:

We, the undersigned, resident property owners of Racine avenue, hereby protest against the further residence in our midst of the man known as Evelyn Arthur See and the woman known as Mona Rees. In consideration of the undesirable notoriety which their presence has given to this section of Chicago, we consider their further stay prejudicial to this portion of the community. It is a matter of public knowledge that since the opening of this man's trial the woman known as Mona Rees has continued her residence at the property known as 2541 Racine avenue, and that See has been a frequent visitor there. Without attempting to judge of See's guilt or innocence of the charges with which he stands accused, we feel that his character has been so impeached as to make him a drawback to the neighborhood.

Has About Twenty Signatures.

The circulators of the petition refuse to make the names of the signers public. They say that so far it has about twenty signatures.

"I have done nothing to offend the neighborhood or anybody in it," Mona Rees said yesterday afternoon. "We have at all times led an exceedingly quiet life. I am sure that we can have offended no one. There is no legal, moral, or other right by which I can be compelled to move, and I intend to stay here just as long as I please."

"Is it true that Mr. See has visited you since the beginning of the trial?" was asked.

"Certainly it is true," answered Miss Rees. "I don't see, though, where it is anybody's business except our own."

See Laughs at Petition.

See laughed on being told the news.

"Why, there's no possible way in which we could be evicted," he said. "The rent on the flat is still being paid and until it has been proved that we are guilty of any sort of immoral or objectionable conduct, there is no law in the land which would support any once who protests against our continued residence in our home."

It was noticeable that both Mona Rees and See in speaking of the flat referred to it as "our home."

After about an hour and a half of further reading from the "Book of Personality" today, Frederic Burnham, assistant state's attorney, says he will call Mona Rees to the stand.

Mona Outshines Mildred Bridges.

Her testimony is expected to be similar to that of Mildred Bridges. Mona is given the credit of being brighter than Mildred, as well as better instructed in the innermost doctrines of the "life." The state, on the other hand, has the advantage of being able to ask her questions regarding the "Manuscript 18"; questions which it was unable to ask the Bridges girl because, at the time of her testimony, the manuscript had not yet been introduced into the evidence.

Mona was fairly beaming with confidence yesterday.

"I am so glad," she exclaimed, "that I will be allowed to go on the stand. I don't believe there is any one except Evelyn who knows more about the "truth" than I do."

"What will you do when the prosecuting attorney asks you the meaning of the things read from Manuscript 18?" was asked.

Will Swear to Revelation.

Into her eyes came the rapt expression characteristic of See, when he is discoursing upon the "Absolute Life."

"I do not know. I know I shall answer it in the truth as it is revealed to me. The truth reveals itself to the trained consciousness. For those whose consciousness is not trained only falsehood reveals itself. It will be part of my task not only to make the truth plain, but to lift the falsehood from the souls of those who have no perception of the truth."

Frances Jennings Found Dead in Bed.

Heart disease is supposed to have been responsible for the death of Miss Frances Jennings, 35 years old, who was found dead in bed at her home, 906 Washington boulevard, yesterday morning.

BISHOP VINCENT INVENTS RITUAL

Finds Methodist Church Lacks Ceremony When He Is to Dedicate Parsonage.

SEES PERIL IN BOARDING.

Tells Asbury Church Congregation One Needs Home for Parental Training.

Bishop John H. Vincent, the founder of the Chautauqua movement which made prominent the pursuing of courses of study by parents in the home, originated the ceremony and ritual which was used for the first time in Chicago yesterday when he dedicated the parsonage belonging to the Asbury Methodist Episcopal church, Parnell avenue and Thirty-first street.

The parsonage adjoins the church.

The ritual of the Methodist discipline does not contain, it was said, a form for the dedication of parsonages. Bishop Vincent, therefore, met the occasion by writing one himself. After the preaching of the morning sermon he called the trustees before the altar of the church and dedicated the parsonage as the home of the pastor and his family to live to the glory of God and the building up of the kingdom of God on earth.

Points to Peril of Boarding.

"Neglect of the family is one of the perils of our times," Bishop Vincent said. "We have turned the education of our children over to the public schools, their Bible study and religious training over to the Sunday school, their social life to the church and other outside social agencies.

"The habit of boarding instead of keeping up the individual home has increased in a marked degree. The result of it all is there is marked laxity in parental government and control until it constitutes a peril in the nation."

Bishop Vincent pictured the parsonage as the center of the home life of the church, but cautioned the people against intruding upon the private rights of the minister and his family.

"The parsonage belongs," he said, "to the church, but it belongs also to the minister and his family. Wise people will know when to leave the parsonage alone."

In connection with the ceremony $4,800 was subscribed, which, it was announced by the Rev. James Rowe, secretary of the City Missionary society, who solicited the money, was sufficient to pay all the indebtedness. The parsonage cost $6,000. The Rev. Ira R. Aldrich is pastor of the church.

Scores Women Who Ignore Poor.

Fashionable women who count themselves above serving their poor sisters were denounced by the Rev. F. W. Gunsaulus yesterday afternoon at the Chicago Training school for city, home, and foreign missions.

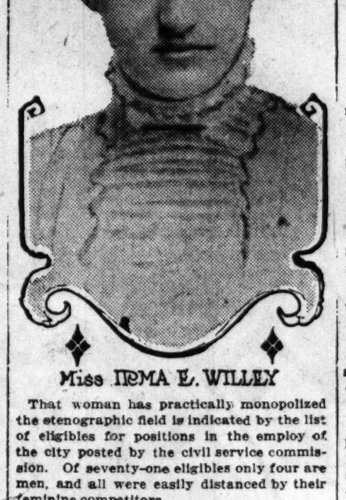

The sermon was preached in connection with the summer season of the training school, in which the students are carrying on a special course of investigation of public and private welfare institutions.

"There are," he said, "three classes of women who have wealth, education, and social position to whom the poor woman appeals. One class says: 'I am rich, gentle mannered, and have social standing. The poor woman has need to have some one give her help, but let another do it; I can't soil my hands.'

"The second class says: 'I have wealth, education, and social position, but in spite of that fact I will sacrifice myself and give her help.'

"The third class says: 'Because I have wealth, education, and social position I will give her help.' The trouble with the first class is they are too busy hunting crowns."

Calls Women Best 'Stenogs'; Proves It.

Miss IRMA E. WILLEY

That woman has practically monopolized the stenographic field is indicated by the list of eligibles for positions in the employ of the city posted by the civil service commission. Of seventy-one eligibles only four are men, and all were easily distanced by their feminine competitors.

The explanation, according to Miss Irma E. Willey, 6802 South Peoria street, who heads the list, is that stenography is essentially a woman's work, and she prepares in a thorough manner, with the sole idea of specializing in that particular line. Men, she says, merely prepare themselves as stenographers as a means to something better.

Miss Willey, in addition to heading the present list of eligibles for city positions, gained the same honor two years ago in the county civil service examination for stenographers. She holds that the expressed preference of many city department heads for men stenographers is overcome by the result of the examination.

PUZZLING FIRE RAZES PLANT

Blaze in Elizabeth Street Foundry Causes Police Inquiry.

SEE WORK OF FIREBUGS.

Rapidity with Which Brick Building Burned Arouses Suspicion.

Fire of a mysterious origin destroyed the plant of the Elizabeth Street Foundry company, Fifty-ninth and Elizabeth streets, last night, and has led officials of the police and fire departments to start an investigation.

The building in which the fire started covers nearly half a block. The fact that the flames swept through the building, which is of brick with only a small amount of inflammable material inside, pointed to incendiary origin and the use of oil or some other fire agent.

Blaze Looks Incendiary.

"The burning of the building is surrounded by suspicious circumstances," said Assistant Fire Chief Thomas O'Connor. "The blaze was discovered almost as soon as it started. The alarm was turned in promptly and the engine companies responded just as promptly. But when the first company got there the fire was all over the building."

The fire was discovered by John Poltse, a watchman in the plant. He said it began in the shipping room at the north end of the building.

Damage Put at $15,000.

When the blaze was extinguished only the brick wall shell of the plant was left standing. One fireman was overcome by smoke and was taken home in a police ambulance. The damage was estimated at $15,000.

FINDS NEW CLEW TO STONEHENGE

American Sees Similarity Between English Riddle and Cyrene Discovery.

MYSTERY OF CENTURIES.

Prof. Robert Norton Thinks He Has Unveiled Ancient Mystery.

Boston, Mass., June 25.—[Special.]—The mystery of Stonehenge, the unread riddle which has for hundreds of years perplexed savants, is believed to have been unveiled by Prof Richard Norton of Harvard, according to reports which have reached this country from Cyrenaic (Greek Libya).

Prof. Norton, who is the son of Charles Eliot Norton, has just reached the American School of Classical Studies at Rome. He will soon announce discoveries made by the American archæological expedition in the excavation of the Greek city of Cyrene, founded 631 B. C.

The connection between the discoveries at Cyrene and the mystery of Stonehenge is said to lie in the similarity of the megalithic or great stoned columns common to each.

Has Stood for Centuries.

Stonehenge is located in Wiltshire, England, and was there centuries before Christ. It was the chief temple and seat, according to some writers, of Druidical justice. The outer circle carried on the top a continuous line of large, flat stones of the same width.

A link between the two ruins is believed by some to lie in the great stones of the lowest courses in the Jewish place of lamentation in the temple at Jerusalem, these stones being thought to date from the temple wall of Solomon.

The parallel between the remarkable megalithic groups discovered in the Cyrenaic and the great circular Stonehenge is said to be most striking, the Cyrenaic monument, according to scientists, being the outer circle of continuous trilithons of Stonehenge simply stretched out straight.

Found Subterranean Necropolis.

The theory now advanced is that the trilithons, or three stoned structures, are actually in part an improved sort of dolmen, or sepulchral manument, the horizontal stone being supported by two upright stones used as legs instead of by three or four after the cruder fashion.

The Harvard expedition found a subterranean necropolis, which will be explored. The tombs, however, had already been rifled, so that the finds in them were limited to fragments of sculpture and inscriptions and a considerable quantity of broken pottery.

DIVINE ACCEPTS PARENTS' CALL

The Rev Delno C. Henshaw Leaves Chicago to Fill Pulpit Near Old Folks' Home.

The Rev. Delno C. Henshaw, for nineteen years pastor of the Galilee Baptist church, preached his farewell sermon last night and is scheduled to leave this week for his new charge at Hartford, Mich., but probably will be detained by the illness of a child.

He was chiefly moved to accept the Hartford call because his aged parents, living at Kalamazoo, of which Hartford is a suburb, desire that he live with them. They will move with the pastor to Hartford.

"My mother is 78 years old my father 80," the Rev. Mr. Henshaw said yesterday. "They begged me to accept the Hartford call. It is a beautiful little church. I accepted."

REFUSES TO BE SUBURB DUMP

Jackson Park Highlands Objects to Woodlawn's 'Old Vegetables.'

CAUSE ARREST OF DRIVERS.

Protest to Improvement Body May Halt the Hostilities.

Jackson Park Highlands has refused officially to pose any longer as a back yard for the suburb of Woodlawn. Consequently two officials closely connected with the refuse department of Woodlawn are under bond to appear before a "Highlands" tribunal and make answer to the charge of casting on that suburb bushels of odium and wornout tomatoes.

It appears that since early spring Woodlawn has been in the habit of using a lot at Jeffreys avenue and Jackson park as a sanctuary for her useless cans and ashes. Although the lot is within the confines of Jackson Park Highlands no objection was made until several weeks ago, when Woodlawn began to give the Jackson Parkites large quantities of useless vegetables.

Send Protest to Suburb.

Thereupon the residents of Jackson Park Highlands called for help. The improvement association sent a protest by envoy extraordinary to the Woodlawn improvement association. Tin cans and ashes were all right; other things were straining the bond of sisterly affection a little too far. Would Woodlawn kindly cease? Woodlawn would not.

Saturday war was declared. W. F. Armstrong, 6810 Euclid avenue, and J. S. Baxter, 6817 Euclid avenue, both of the Jackson park forces, stationed themselves at the dump. Presently two wagons drove up, and the drivers, whistling merrily, proceeded to cover the moist, green turf of Jackson Park Highlands with tomatoes, cabbages, cucumbers, and other early summer vegetables which had aged before their prime.

They were reproved and continued to whistle, whereupon Mr. Armstrong, being inspired by example, whistled himself, and two policemen sauntered forth and arrested the teamsters. They were taken to the police station and later released on bonds.

Mrs. Faulkner Promises Relief.

Mrs. Marcia P. Faulkner, head of the Woodlawn association, declared last night that she would see that Jackson Park Highlands was troubled no more.

"We have a permit from the McCormick estate, which owns the property, to use it as a dump," she said. "If the contractor has been permitting garbage to be dumped there, I shall insist that it be stopped."

"It had better be," is the attitude of the Jackson Park Highlands association.

R. J. Conroy won a dozen jars of sliced bacon for having the largest family on the grounds—five in all. In the baseball game Cullom's Hoosiers beat Walsh Meagher's outlaws after a strenuous contest, the score standing 5 to 3. A seven inning game had been agreed upon, but the score stood 3 to 3 in the seventh and two extra innings had to be played to decide the winner.

Events and the Winners.

In the field day sports there were plenty of contests for women and the children. The events and the winners were as follows:

Married men, 100 yards—Anton Sorwyl.
Married women, 75 yards—Mrs. Duffy.
Boys—Hirman Fuller.
Girls—Miss Rose Duffy.

The sports were under the direction of Rudolph Shapira, John Dockter, and Fred Kerbs.

DEMOCRATS PLAN ANNUAL FETE.

Will Gather at Brand's Park on Saturday, July 29—Gaelic Dance and Contests Features.

The County Democracy yesterday announced that its Twenty-second annual picnic will be held on Saturday, July 29, at Brand's park, at which time the majority of the Democratic judicial candidates will speak. A Gaelic dance by eight girls and eight boys will be a feature. The athletic feature is expected to be a strong one and a long list of prizes will be offered. Two tug of war matches of nets have been scheduled, one between city hall and county building employés and the other with the north and south side court bailiffs as competitors.

MENACE OF BOMB IN INDIA TO STAY

Tilak Trial Brings Out Attitude of Native Patriots Toward Government.

PUBLIC FOR PRISONER.

Alleged Faulty Translation of Two Seditious Articles Basis of Conviction.

BY GEORGE A. DORSEY, PH. D., LL. D

POONA, Bombay presidency, India, April 27.—I am not defending B. G. Tilak. Mr. Tilak did that himself. At the bar of Indian public opinion he was acquitted. That is why the fight goes on.

It is unfortunately too true that along with other instruments of progress introduced by the west, the bomb has come to stay. And it will be a live bomb—and this was Tilak's chief contention—as long as British government in India remains what it is. He was convicted on an English translation—faulty, he maintained, and proved in court—of certain articles which appeared in the Kesari. In his memorable speech for his defense he reviews the whole literature of unrest in India, introducing the results of famous sedition trials in England and Ireland, and the case of Peter Zenger, to which I referred the other day.

Special Jury Unfair.

It was urged in vain by the defense that a special jury would defeat the end which a trial by jury really contemplates, namely, men taken from the people, who know the language of the accused, and are, therefore, the fittest judges. A special jury of Europeans would have to judge of the effect of Mahratta articles upon people who differ from them constitutionally in a thousand ways. Furthermore, a special jury of the rulers would sit in judgment upon a subject for his alleged rebellious spirit and under the other charge the accusers would sit in judgment upon the accused for exciting hostility against themselves. "This is opposed to all the fundamental principles of justice and jurisprudence."

Defense of Tilak.

Mr. Tilak maintained that if his Kesari articles were seditious he should have been tried for his evidence before the parliamentary decentralization committee, in which he said:

"The mere shifting of centers of power and authority from one official to another is not, in my opinion, calculated to restore the feeling of cordiality between officers and people prevailing in earlier days. English education has created new aspirations and ideals among the people, and so long as these national aspirations remain unsatisfied it is useless to expect that the hiatus between the officers and the people could be removed by any scheming of official decentralization, whatever its other effects may be."

Tilak's explanation of the card on which were written the names of two textbooks on explosives was that shortly after the explosives act was passed he wished to criticise it and especially the definition of explosives. Hence he desired to consult the literature on the subject. From a catalogue of books in his library he had taken down the names of two, that he might send for them from the Poona or Bombay library. In an article which he expected to prepare about the matter he intended to show that repressive measures alone could not prevent the recurrence of bombs.

His Article on a Bomb Outrage.

The first article put in evidence was labeled "The Country's Misfortune." The Muzzafurpore bomb outrage had just been committed. "Every one will feel anxious and sorry to see India's mild and peace loving people beginning the methods of Russia," he wrote. "The outrage will inspire hatred against the people belonging to the party of rebels. Similar occurrences in Russia are now taking place. But no one looked for such deeds of violence in India. No one thought that the obstinacy and perversity of the bureaucracy would so soon inspire with utter disappointment the young generation solicitous for the advancement of their country and impel them so soon to follow the rebellious path.

"The bomb throwers were not actuated by hatred for individuals, nor was the bomb the act of a madcap. The thrower of the bomb regrets that two innocent ladies and not Mr. Kingsford were the victims. The secret society which instigated the bomb had no idea that it could cause British rule to disappear by the manufacture of a hundred muskets or five or ten bombs.

Warning of Terrible Deeds.

"But because of the spread of western education this condition cannot last. However enlightened the ruler's self-interest may be, India must remain a loser. To prevent this lost power must pass into the hands of Indians. This view gains ground in India. To check the spread of such views the bureaucracy eagerly suppresses writings, speeches, etc., which produce that impression.

"And if they had been able to drive the course of administration solely according to their views many oppressive enactments, like the seditious meetings act, would by this time have been passed and India fully would have become another Russia. The desire of the people of Swaraj grows stronger and stronger.

"If they do not get these rights by degrees the people will be filled with indignation or exasperation and will embark upon the commission of terrible deeds. Mr. Gokhale himself pointed out this to the government in the presence of the viceroy. When Lala Rajpat Rai was deported without trial other native editors had plainly given the government to understand that if they resorted to such Russian methods of administration Indian subjects, too, would be compelled to imitate, partially at least, the methods of Russian subjects."

Second Seditious Article.

About a month later appeared the second seditious article, "These Remedies Are Not Lasting," a political dissertation on repression. For, meanwhile, an act to regulate newspapers had been passed. Tilak declares that the fact that the fiends of repression should swarm with the Liberal party in power and with Mr. Morley expounding the principles of Liberalism, makes it evident that the wise men themselves have abjured their ideals.

"There is a difference between Indian and European bombs," he wrote. "The bomb in Bengal comes form excessive patriotism; in Europe it is the product of the hatred of selfish rich men. The Bengali are not anarchists; they have brought anarchists' weapons into use. The anarchist who murdered the president of the French republic is one type of man; the madcap patriot of Portugal who throws a bomb at the king because he suppressed a parliament is another; the anarchist in America is another; the exasperated Russian patriot who throws a bomb in despair because the czar's officers do not grant the rights of the duma is another; the Bengal bomb thrower is like the anarchist in Portugal and in Russia."

PLANS NEW FRENCH CABINET

Fallieres Probably Will Ask Caillaux to Form Body.

NO CHANGE IN PROGRAM.

Defeat of Government Came on Issue Alien to Policy.

PARIS, June 25.—No decision has been taken with reference to the formation of a new French cabinet. Immediately on his return from Rouen this morning President Fallieres visited Premier Monis, who is still confined to his room as the result of injuries received at the aerodrome several weeks ago.

M. Monis offered to the president the resignation of the cabinet. In doing so he indicated that Joseph Caillaux, the minister of finance, in his opinion, was best fitted to succeed in the organization of a new ministry.

It is pointed out in political circles that the defeat of the government on Friday on a matter foreign to the general policy of the government in no way implies a change in the government's program, and M. Caillaux is considered on all sides best qualified to carry on the policy of the ministry, of which he is a member.

He has also demanded indemnity for losses incurred by the company for which Reitter was working. The government has ordered an investigation of the charges.

MORGAN PICTURE THE ORIGINAL.

English Art Expert Declares Duchess of Devonshire Portrait Is the Work of Gainsborough.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, June 25—David Croal Thomson, the English art expert who examined the portrait of the Duchess of Devonshire in J. P. Morgan's collection with C. M. Q. Orchardson, head of the King's college school of art, when Morgan bought the picture, says that the portrait is undoubtedly the original, though possibly it was partly repainted by Gainsborough.

DIPLOMATS DINE FOLKS FROM HOME

Envoys Resident in London Hosts to Representatives at Coronation.

MANY GUESTS AT REIDS.

Crown Prince and Princess Attend Function at the German Embassy.

LONDON, June 25.—According to the program in connection with the coronation arranged by the foreign office, this evening was set aside for the entertainment by the resident diplomats of the special representatives of their countries. All the embassies and legations, therefore, gave dinners which were largely family affairs.

That at the German embassy was the most brilliant, Crown Prince Frederick William and the crown princess and Prince Henry of Prussia and the princess being the principal guests.

Many Guests at Reids' Dinner.

Among those who dined at Dorchester house, the residence of Whitelaw Reid, the American ambassador, were John Hays Hammond, the special envoy representing President Taft at the coronation, Mrs. Hammond and Miss Hammond, Mrs. Robert Bacon, wife of the American ambassador at Paris; Richard C. Kerens, the American ambassador at Vienna, and Mrs. Kerens; John Rigley Carter, the American minister to Roumania, and Mrs. Carter; Consul General and Mrs. Griffiths, Lord and Lady Sandhurst, Col. James, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dodge, Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Taft and Miss Taft.

In honor of the visit of Special Envoy Hammond to Dorchester house, the decorations, which were one of the greatest attractions of coronation week, were again illuminated.

Hammonds Give Luncheon.

Mr. and Mrs. Hammond gave a luncheon at Stratton house, the guests including the hereditary Princess of Saxe-Weiningen, sister of the German Emperor, Baron Roden, of the staff of the princess, Ambassador and Mrs. Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Taft and the members of the special and regular embassies.

Mr. and Mrs. Hammond afterward went to Windsor in a royal motor car with other coronation visitors and looked over the palace. They repaired from there to Baron Leopold Rothschild's to attend a garden party. This was one of two important functions of the kind, the other being given by John Norton Griffiths, M. P., to the colonial visitors. Both, however, were spoiled by continuous rain, which obliged the guests to stay indoors.

The foreign churches in London, as well as the English churches, held coronation thanksgiving services. That at the Roman Catholic cathedral of Westminster was unusually impressive.

The king and queen will return to London tomorrow to begin another week of festivities, including gala performances at the Opera and His Majesty's theater, another royal progress through north London, a children's fête at Crystal palace, a garden party at Buckingham palace, and numerous important social functions.

ALBANIANS SLAIN BY TURKS

Army of 50,000 Massed Near Border of Montenegro.

CRANE TELLS OF HORRORS.

Ottoman Troops Said to Have Trapped Women and Children.

VIENNA, June 25.—Reliable advices have been received here from Albania that the situation there is extremely critical. Turkey has massed 50,000 troops within a day's march of the Montenegrin frontier.

Charles R. Crane of Chicago, who has just arrived at Vienna from Cettinje after traversing Albania, describes the conditions as intolerable. The Turks, he says, are devastating whole districts, killing prisoners, refugee women and children, burning houses and crops, and blowing up churches. A large body of Albanian women and children is caught between two wings of the Turkish army and escape is impossible.

Mr. Crane adds that 25,000 women and children have fled to Montenegro and are starving there, their only means of subsistence being boiled grass and various roots they are able to gather.

Montenegro Demands $750,000.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

VIENNA, June 25.—Newspapers here say that Montenegro has demanded $750,000 indemnity from Turkey for maintaining Albanian refugees. The porte will ignore the demand and will give Torgut Pasha carte blanche to pursue the refugees into Montenegro.

TELL GEORGE V. OF HIS PRANKS.

British King and Queen Chat with 140 Veterans at Review at Portsmouth.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, June 25.—The British sovereigns spent a quiet Sunday on board the royal yacht at Portsmouth. The only function of the day was the informal review of the local naval and military veterans. One hundred and forty old fighters lined up at the dockyard. Many of them were infirm and had been maimed in war. King George and Queen Mary chatted with the veterans. One said to the king:

"I was boatswain's mate aboard the Albert, sir, when you were there. You were the worry of my life, sir!"

Another reminded the king how, when a cadet aboard the Britannia, they pelted him with sugar.

THOUSANDS VISIT U. S. WARSHIPS

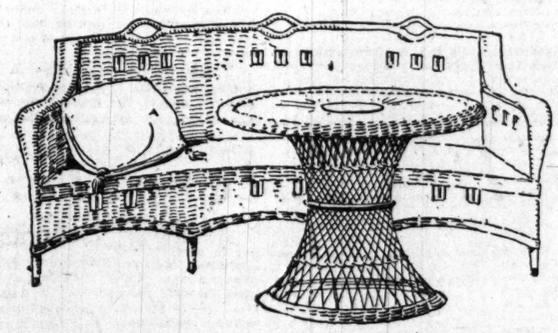

Battleships at Queenstown Opened to the Public—Will Sail for Kiel Tuesday.

QUEENSTOWN, June 25.—The United States battleships Iowa, Indiana, and Massachusetts with the naval academy midshipmen aboard, which arrived here last Sunday night, will sail for Kiel Tuesday.

Today the ships were open to the public and were visited by thousands. Baseball teams composed of American bluejackets played an exhibition game.

The officers and men have greatly enjoyed their visit and express regrets that they are obliged to leave so soon.

Lillian Russell's Beauty Secrets

Note:—Miss Russell will be glad to answer any question pertaining to womanly beauty. For years she has been a student of the art and is, as every one knows, a wonderful illustration of what her methods will accomplish.

Miss Russell has no affiliation with any special or professional beauty regime. She will talk and advise you of her experience just as a woman would to another woman friend. Write to her freely. She has agreed to tell the readers of The Tribune all the secrets of her toilet and give them all her tonic and cosmetic recipes, and more than any other American woman, Lillian Russell can tell what every woman should know who wishes to be beautiful. Those desiring a personal reply from Miss Russell should be particular to inclose an envelope properly stamped and addressed.

"Let's Start Right"—(Miss Russell's Introductory Article)

YOU CAN improve upon nature.

How often do you hear: "You cannot improve on nature; she knows her own business."

Well, if nature knows her business, she is a cruel joker and plays all sorts of tricks on the poor clay that passes through her fingers to come out in humanity's different molds. Sometimes one would rather be a bit charitable and think the good dame had made a mistake.

In a visit to the city jail in search for illustrations of the Lombroso theory a student said that all the men who were brought before him by an accommodating chief of police possessed that direct and manly gaze we are taught to associate with honesty of character, while the only upright man in the room was the one whose sinister expression of countenance was like that of a villain made up for the play.

Blonde women always have had the reputation for virtue, and yet the annals of history teem with the "particular Ned" that red haired women have managed to kick up, while some of the most self-sacrificing women the world has known have been those whose dark brows met across their noses and whose black locks still further accentuated the tradition of ugly temper and selfish aims.

We can improve upon nature. Let's be artists of ourselves as well as of our lives, and art, you know, is only giving to the world nature's highest ideals.

If she tricks us by planting ugly hair across the top of our noses it is quite on the cards that we can rectify the mistake by having them pulled out.

You do not for the moment imagine that the dear old dame really intends to be nasty when she puts hair all over the face of a woman when our ideas of beauty have been raised on the peachy tints of the smooth velvet skin of femininity.

No. Nature has made a slight mistake, and it is up to the woman with the hirsute luxuriance to see that her skin is of satiny texture and its tint that of the blushing rose.

Do you think that nature knows her business when she takes the hair off the head of a young man? Cannot he improve on her methods by calling up first aid to the injured in the shape of a toupee?

Cannot the dentist improve on nature every time when he puts white, even teeth in place of crooked, blackened, ugly things which the "lady-who-is-supposed-to-know-her-business" has bestowed upon the girl with a pretty mouth?

Noses can be straightened as well as eyes, ears made to lie back close to the head, wrinkles rubbed out, and hair that is growing scraggy and gray can be toned up and given the color and beauty of youth.

There is really no improvement that can be made upon nature when she is inclined to play one of her tricks that comes in for so much adverse comment as coloring one's hair.

"For one thing," says an objector, "it always looks unnatural."

Nonsense; there are half a dozen women and twice as many men of your acquaintance who color their hair whom you do not suspect for a moment. Nearly every woman in business, professional, or artistic life today has found that gray hair is a detriment to her work. It cannot be disassociated with age and age means lack of those powers which make for success.

Of course, gray hair is beautiful, and we revere it; but what does the woman who is still under 40 want of reverence? The woman who inspires reverence may be interesting, but in the nature of things she is out of the game of life. She must be placed on her little pedestal and worshiped and cared for—a delightful state of affairs if she has reached the point where time has blanched her heart as well as her hair, but if the red blood still throbs in her and she knows that her mind is perhaps keener in its maturity than at sweet 16 she unconsciously resents the reverence and respect, although it may be blended with the sincere admiration that is paid to her white tresses.

One never thinks of Bernhardt or Terry as old women, principally because they keep their heads crowned with the same colored locks that were theirs in youth, and their faces are as youthful as their hearts. On the other hand, Duse—a much younger woman—has allowed the white to streak her midnight hair, and the effect is most incongruous when she plays Camille and other characters depicting women young enough to invite love.

No; if nature knew her business she would turn every one's hair gray at the same age instead of allowing some women to keep their brown, black, or golden tresses until the age of three score and ten and blanch some other poor lady's crowning glory before she reaches 30.

A philosopher in one of the magazines said recently: "I have come to the conclusion that hoodwinking us is doubtless one of the ways in which Dame Nature amuses herself in her eternity of task. Think of the infinite variety possible to her infinite resources in that great kneading trough wherein she mixes souls and bodies, joining the slant eye and the saintly mouth, the lifted eyebrow and the praying lips, taking back in the chin what she grants in the forehead, contradicting herself, quizzing us, with that old challenge to find out if we can what it really means. Doubtless there are in all faces subtle indications of the soul behind, but I fancy that they are, for the most part, too fine for us to read, and that the great mother of us all, because, perhaps, she likes to see us play at wisdom, with humor unexpected, often so pointed that it amounts to wit, constantly makes misfit faces for our misleading."

By all means in your power strive to make over the misfits in your physical appearance to fit your soul, your mind, your emotions.

Remember—It is better to be good than beautiful, but it is best to be both.

To Every One Who Sent Me a Letter of Good Wishes:

Thank you again and again. It's just like making a curtain speech on a first night of a great theatrical success. I do not know what to say to express my gratitude and pleasure, but I want you to know that I am intensely pleased that so many have generously answered my letters asking for their good wishes.

I wish I could write each of you a personal note, but that is impossible, as many thousands of you have expressed an interest in my newest undertaking. You will find my "beauty secrets" very simple, but won't you please believe that I am telling you the exact truth about my beauty régime?

Any woman can follow it, and I am sure that if all women do follow it the world will not only grow more beautiful, but a better place in which to live, for one of the greatest factors in the making of real beauty is sincerity not only with the world but with yourself.

Again let me thank you for your friendly interest, and believe me I shall try to deserve it as long as you proffer it.

Lillian Russell's Answers to Her Inquirers

If those who received my letter were as interested in it as I have been in the answers to it that have come to me, they certainly have been having an enjoyable time the last few days. Taken as a whole the missives I have received have run the gamut of human nature, and they would be worth a great deal to the student of psychology. One thing I got from them which made me very happy, as from it I confirmed my theory of the sincerity and kindliness of the majority of the people.

Most of those who answered my call for good wishes anent my new undertaking responded with alacrity and good will. Young women, as well as their mothers, sent me the most delightful messages, and those who wished to be sarcastic and unkind did not have the courage of their convictions, but allowed their communications to be anonymous.

Some of the letters were funny and showed the oft-repeated fallacy that women have no sense of humor. One bright woman in Iowa City, Ia., ends her missive: "In the future, if you ever want to let the cat out of the bag in good shape, all you have to do is to wire or write me, and believe me, I'll be there with the goods."

One man, over 70 years of age, said: "Most certainly I wish you well in your new undertaking and assure you that I shall read your first article with interest, if only in return for the many genuine thrills and keen delights which I have experienced in connection with your stage activities for many years past."

In somewhat remarkable coincidence an old friend of my mother's in Clinton, Ia., wrote me that they were still using in their family a prescription for tan and freckles which my mother had given her mother. She said: "It cannot be denied that God gave you your beauty and you had a wise mother who helped you to retain it."

This tribute to my mother pleased me greatly, and as I believe that all beauty is God-given, and it is given to all women, I accept the first part of her assertion in the same spirit that it is given.

One man took the time to inform me pathetically that the wife to whom my letter was addressed "passed on to the beyond in August last, and I find that when the wife and mother passes from the home it is like taking the heart out of it." A sad comment, which brought tears to my eyes.

I have been so glad to get all the letters—good, bad, and indifferent—the many good ones warmed my heart, the few bad ones served to show that almost everybody in this world is good, and the here and there indifferent ones at least gave me a good laugh.

MRS. K.: You are in great luck not to have any wrinkles. I imagine from what you have written about wishing to reduce "fat around the waist line" that you are a plump woman, and a little plumpness is always becoming as a woman grows older.

I would advise you to scrub your face carefully each night with tincture of green soap and hot water, with a soft flesh brush, and then dab it over with cold cream, of which I will send you the recipe if you will send me a request for it with a self-addressed and stamped envelope for return. There are a number of ways of getting rid of flesh about the waist line. From your letter I judge you do not take much exercise. If when you arise in the morning you would strew a number of bits of paper or cloth about the floor and go around and pick them all up without bending your knees you would find that it would help to strengthen the abdominal muscles greatly and would reduce the fat. Also if you will stand directly in the middle of the doorway and, stretching on your very tiptoes, put your hands on each side of the door frame and stretch to reach as high as possible, you will find that this is a very fine exercise. If you care for it and will send me a note with your stamped envelope asking for other reduction regimens I will be glad to send them to you.

M. B.: It is impossible for me to make arrangements personally to see any one, as from the numerous letters which I have received I find my clientele so large that personal advice by word of mouth would be impossible. If you will read the note to Mrs. K. of Davenport you will find I advise her on the subject of a dark and oily complexion. Do not eat any rich sauces nor greasy foods. I am sending by mail two or three complexion recipes which I think are what you want.

M. J. R.: Bleaching one's hair is always more or less a disappointment. I presume that I have been accused more often than any other woman in the world of using something to keep my hair yellow; in fact, I have had two or three women walk up to me and examine the roots of my hair carefully and say: "Why, you do not use peroxide, after all." Others have had the audacity to put their hands upon my head to find out, as they explained, if I wore a transformation or a wig. If you will send me a self-addressed stamped envelope I will send you the recipe for the lotion with which I wash my hair. I am naturally a blonde. Even my lashes and eyebrows are light. Consequently I use mascara to darken them. I do not think that blondes are any more beautiful than any other type of beauty, so I would not advise the bleaching of any one's hair. Some time in the near future you will find a little sermon on standards of beauty that may help you.

M. B. G.: Of course it is impossible for me to recommend the work of any one in this column, but I shall have very soon an article upon chiropody.

MAME: Am very glad that your husband thinks you beautiful and that you do not need any beauty recipes of any kind. You must be a very happy woman.

E. A. M.: Thank you so much for your letter, and you will see from succeeding articles in THE TRIBUNE that I do not believe it is possible for any one to gain or retain beauty by cosmetics alone. Happiness, love, and content are the greatest beautifiers known. However, I do not believe in neglecting the physical for the cultivation of spiritual and mental charms.

M. J. H.: If you will send me a letter, with a self-addressed stamped envelope, I will send you recipes for the removing of freckles and tan and an astringent for large pores. In the near future I shall have an illustrated article on the hair, which is the crowning glory of womanly beauty. From your letter I imagine that you are not patient enough in caring for your hair. Remember any remedy will not prevent the hair from falling out if used only once or twice.

E. M. S.: Thank you so much for your kind wishes. As you say, the disposition has very much to do with beauty, and happiness and grief have their effects upon the complexion. A little later I will have an illustrated article on the treatment of the skin, and also one on makeup, which I think will please you.

Woman and Her Interests.

Summer Marriages.

BY LAURA JEAN LIBBEY.

[Copyright: 1911: By Laura Jean Libbey.]

WHEN single women about to start for their summer vacations part with each other, nine times out of ten one will whisper to the other: "Have a glorious time, dear; come back with rosy cheeks, a new stock of health, and, above all—a husband."

The word are uttered jocosely, but their seed sinks deeply down into the listener's heart if she be romantic or given to day dreaming. She has scarcely unpacked her trunk at the seaside hotel ere the loquacious hotel maid who assists her has informed her who among the male guests are married, who are widowers, and which ones are bachelors.

Not that she asked for the information. Certainly not; but the conversation just happened to veer around that way. She has ascertained, too, who the guests are, who are at the table at which she is to be placed—two middle aged married couples, two widowers of uncertain age, and two bachelors whose ages are still more problematic, and a very handsome, dashing young man. Then she arranges her toilet with the greatest care.

She makes the mistake of her life by twining a rose in her hair. "She is giddy," opines the widowers at first glance at her. "A coquette," the bachelors surmise. The rose suits the dashing young man; he sums her up as a "mighty attractive young woman."

In vain she looks appealingly to the widowers; their hearts seem so adamantine she finds it hard to imagine that love ever could have found an entrance to them, and concludes that when love departed the door was locked and the golden key flung away.

The bachelors talked pleasantly across the table, but always after dining were among those missing from the porch and the moonlit sands. The dashing young man was the only one at her beck and call. Summer love is a plant of quick growth; it is much like the mushroom, which springs up from the seed to the perfect plant over night.

There were early morning dips in the sun kissed breakers, forenoon strolls on the golden sands, long afternoons in shady nooks conning love poems, delightful evenings on the beach.

Ere the first month has waned she wears an engagement ring on her finger. He has proposed—on the "now or never" plan; she is to take him at once if they are to be married at all. He was an ardent wooer, well skilled in winning his way to the heart of a woman, and the consequence was she took the plunge into matrimony then and there.

Hasty marriages usually result in speedy disenchantments; the hottest love the soonest cools. Those who fall quick victims to the fever called love are wont to recover from it with equal rapidity. The glamor falls from his eyes when he is initiated into the disagreeable truth that the little love curls which first attracted and delighted him were not nature's own; neither was the soft pink of a cheek; and that a twenty-eight inch waist could be crammed into a twenty inch belt and a foot compressed into as cramped a space.

Marriage is a great eye opener in regard to defects. She thought she had wedded a delightful man who was simply perfection. She soon found that his budget of endearing love talk had run low; that he had concealed a fiery temper under his mask of smiles; that he is addicted to the use of liquor to an alarming extent, and—worst horror of all!—he has no particular occupation, but is one of those gentry who lives on his wits. It is not long ere she awakens to the fact that he possesses all the faults in the calendar.

She brings her romantic find home with her. She is a sadder and a wiser woman. She who is captivated by a stranger of whose antecedents she knows nothing whatever and marries him with as little consideration as she devoted to selecting a place in which to pass her summer outing has only herself to blame for her folly and wasted life.

Marriage is a solemn thing; the wise maiden realizes the wholesome wisdom of the advice to "winter and summer a lover" ere marrying him. The summer lover is wont to make violent love to girls, and suddenly hies himself to pastures new. Very foolish is the girl who has given her heart to such a man.

He may have a wife and a baker's dozen of babies at home, and has amused himself at a foolish girl's expense, having one more "violent flirtation" to tell his cronies about when he returns to town.

The girl who allows the summer young man to become anything nearer and dearer to her than a pleasant acquaintance makes a grave error of judgment. The years to come are not a summer holiday. They mean happiness or sorrow, to bless or blight all the after life.

Too much thought and consideration cannot be given the vital subject of matrimony. We are bound to agree that there is such a thing as mutual attraction at first sight, but it does not necessarily follow that there should be a speedy courtship ending in marriage.

There is such a thing as a change of sentiment. Those who believe themselves deeply in love should make it a point to see if Father Time agrees with them that it is indeed love instead of a fleeting attachment.

The wise girl may attract a lover in summer, but she will not wed him until the roses of another summer bud and bloom.

Would that all summer girls would take warning.

She Is Unreasonable.

"Dear Miss Libbey: I am a young man and have been keeping company with a girl of the same age. One Sunday she saw me with another girl—my cousin. Monday night when I went to her home her sister told me she was angry at me for being with another girl. Whenever I see this girl on the street I tip my hat and speak to her, but if she feels like speaking she does so; if not, she snubs me. I always have thought highly of this girl, and think I could learn to love her if I only could win her back. R. W."

The girl seems unreasonable in her treatment of you. I think the better plan would be to let her alone for a few weeks until she realizes how unreasonably she has acted.

* *

Brown Eyed Blond.

"Dear Miss Libbey: My heart appeals to you for a little advice. I am 32 and desperately in love with a little brown eyed blonde girl of 22. I met her last summer, but she was keeping steady company and objected to me seeing her. Finally she allowed me to call every other Wednesday for some time. Later on she gave me permission to call on her Wednesdays and Saturdays. I spoke to my roommate (a friend for many years) of her witty ways, as men do, being fond of her. About one month ago I introduced them. Now I find him neglecting his intended wife and trying to win this little girl. I know she still loves her first beau, as she gives him every Sunday and turns me down on Saturdays when he asks her to see a show. I asked my roommate his intentions with his fiancée, and he is willing to give up all, after three years of steady company, just to win this little girl I have tried so hard to make understand my feelings. I fear to ask her to marry me, as she is the only child of a wealthy family. Besides, she has said she loves no one. In what way can I win this little heart? My roommate is seeing her regularly. JACK H."

Your friend is a poor excuse for a man, and any girl who gets him would not win much of a prize. The only way you can win is by bulldog tenacity—taking every opportunity of going about with the girl, being courteous and attentive to her, and dressing neatly, so that she will not be ashamed of your appearance.

Parents Object.

"Dear Miss Libbey: I have been going with a young man since I got through school, and during that time I have learned to care very much for him. We were sweethearts when we were too little to realize what real love was. However, we are grown up now and the same affection is still with us. My parents are opposed to our being friends, and tell me he is only fooling, joking, etc. I am not pretty, and am working out; have been supporting myself since I was 14, so why should he do that? If I were rich or pretty I should notice their warning more than I do. I have tried to quit him for my parents' sake, but it hurts him so because they will not think otherwise. Of course, he doesn't know what they dislike him for. He asked me about two years ago to be his wife. I was too young and hadn't seen enough of the world to satisfy me yet. I asked him not to mention marriage for several years. We were to be the best of friends, anyway. Of course, later I would know more about what I really wanted to do. How can I get my parents to think differently of him?

"PEGGIE."

I think your parents' attitude unreasonable. Tell them frankly you love the man and intend to marry. I am sure with a little tact on your part you can readily win them over to your side.

* *

In Her Mind for Eight Years.

"Dear Miss Libbey: I want your most confidential advice on the following: I am 22 and think much of a young man four years my senior, whom, in fact, I have had in my mind for the last eight years, since I have been acquainted with him. Now, I can safely say that I feel that this young man is the only man who will make the right husband for me. He doesn't call on me—in fact, seldom see him—still I feel the way as above described. Now, what I want to know is if it is proper for me to go to a cousin of mine (man) by marriage and a first cousin (blood relation) to this young man, and whom I have known long before he was married, feeling as though I could go to him like a brother, and tell him that I think a great deal of this young man and see if there is any probability of my feelings being mutual. Now, I know that this young man confides a great deal in this cousin, and I feel that he is the only one I could go to in this case. I am the sort of a girl who is quiet and of course modest and have not the courage to do anything like that; therefore, I want your most confidential advice as to whether it will be proper for me to do so—that is, if it will not show boldness on my part. B."

Yes, I think it would be all right to go to your cousin and tell him what you write me. Of course, a great deal depends on the kind of man your cousin is. If he were inclined to make fun of such a proposition or you felt he would not care to broach the subject to the man it perhaps would be wiser not to ask his aid in the matter.

Economical Housekeeping.

The Tasteful Casserole.

CASSEROLE cooking is old, yet new. It is possible to buy today almost a perfect duplicate of the unglazed covered dish with its uncouth handle which the French peasant used long ago. He put it, filled with some simple food, into the hot ashes overnight, and there was his breakfast, savory and delicious, waiting for him in the morning. Even today there are those who prefer the unglazed dish to that of the finest finish.

The casserole has of late so grown in popularity that we now have the most wonderful and fascinating variety of these eastern cooking utensils of French, German, and home manufacture. Some of them are as finely enameled as jewels and are set in wonderful frames of silver and other precious metals, an ornament to the finest table. There is a great saving of flavor in thus serving meat directly from the utensils in which it is cooked. The principle of casserole cooking is about the same as that of fireless cooking. The casserole is used for things which are cooked slowly and long—stews and near relatives of meat pies—and it allows none of the precious juices to escape.

A casserole of rice with meat with some of the famous French cooks means a rice container for a stew. This is made of boiled rice, molded into a form and baked. In this case the casserole itself is eaten. This method of serving the meat is one of the ways of extending its flavor and is therefore economical.

To make such a casserole for the stew, use rice in the following proportions: Put one pound of rice washed clean into a clean stewpan with one quart of cold water, one-fourth pound of butter, one large onion, a teaspoon of salt. Bring this to a boil and simmer gently for one hour. When done it should be dry and tender to the finger. Take out the onion, which need not necessarily have been used in the first place, and mix the rice well with a wooden spoon until it clogs together, as it will do if sufficiently cooked; then pound it in a wooden bowl until it is but one mass. Pour this into a buttered baking tin and form into the shape of a deep pie. If the rice sticks to your fingers, dip them in cold water. Pat the top round and smooth and if so disposed take a wedge of crisp carrot or turnip and make fancy impressions around the edge. Brush over with melted butter and bake in a hot oven until it is a light yellow. If this is well made it will keep its shape and any design made upon it. When done, run a knife around the top a half inch or a little more inside the rim and take off the top, which may be used for a cover. Scoop out the rice until the dish thus made is about a half inch thick all around, and pour in your meat.

Casserole of Rice and Meat.—Cook one-half pound of rice until tender, not soft, drain, and line buttered casserole with same to thickness of one inch, then fill center with meat prepared as directed: One pound veal shoulder, one-half pound boiling beef, and onion. Put meat through grinder and place in pan over fire with two cups of hot water. Add a little salt and the onion chopped and cook fifteen minutes. Drain off water and add it slowly to one teaspoon butter and one teaspoon flour previously blended in another pan. When smooth, add meat, mix the two well, and put in casserole.—G. G. C., Chicago.

Round About Chicago.

The Man Beautiful.

BY RICHARD HENRY LITTLE.

THERE is, there always has been, there probably always will be too much emphasis laid upon the Woman Beautiful. There is nothing said about the Man Beautiful. To supply a long felt want the "Round About Chicago" department has secured Mr. Bill Dorgan, rightfully considered the most strikingly lovely bartender of Chicago, to conduct the "Man Beautiful" column for "Round About Chicago."

Bill's personal pulchritude already is so justly celebrated that no more need be said about it at this time except to point with pride to the fact that Mr. Dorgan is one of the present features of Chicago which Mr. Charley Wacker and his associates in the City Beautiful movement have marked out as worthy to be preserved in the carrying out of their great plan.

According to the new book issued by the City Beautiful committee, the following are the only institutions in Chicago today considered worthy of being preserved from change and of forming a part of the Chicago of tomorrow:

The Art institute.
Lake Michigan.
J. Ham Lewis' whiskers.
The Logan statue on the lake front.
Bill Dorgan.

This honor heaped unsolicited upon Mr. Dorgan warrants, if nothing else did, our selection of him as the most fitting person to write the "Man Beautiful" column for "Round About Chicago."

The man of today, like the man of yesterday, has false notions regarding the proper cultivation of beauty of face and form. Yet nothing is of greater importance. In this column from week to week Mr. Dorgan will speak to men on all subjects related to the great question of true masculine beauty. Mr. Dorgan will write on the use of cold and sweet cream, how to remove disfiguring freckles and mustaches from the face, the laws and usages of the several states regarding whiskers, how to remove warts from the hand and whisky, onions or other deleterious substances from the breath, and how a perfect complexion may be obtained without the use of grease paint.

Later on "Round About Chicago" has arranged with the distinguished Doc Day, author of "Rainbow Vests and How to Pick 'Em Out," who will write a series of articles on "Lavender Vests with Green and Purple Stripes the Correct Thing for This Year" and "Should the Socks Match the Necktie?"—a burning question on which a great deal has been said, both pro and con. Doc Day will support the con argument.

The work of preparing this series has been fraught with great effort and considerable personal risk. It was thought well to have as the first installment of the "Man Beautiful" column something of vital importance to all we boys who would be considered truly lovely, and the editor suggested to Mr. Dorgan that he prepare an article dealing with the subject of the deadly peril of using a cucumber bleach on a dark mustache and also giving full directions on how to massage the neck with the cream of young violets in order to produce that plumpness which shows so well in the wearing of outing shirts carelessly unbuttoned at the throat with the collar omitted.

Your editor spoke to Mr. Dorgan on this subject, and then left immediately, not more than two jumps ahead of the ice pick which left Mr. Dorgan's hands with considerable violence. It was then decided to interview Mr. Dorgan over the telephone and tease the article away from him one word at a time.

"Mr. Dorgan," asked the "Round About Chicago" editor, "will you please say that your ingratiating beauty is owing to the fact that all your life you have carefully rubbed your features with a combination of cocoa butterine and mock turtle soup, applied just before you retired and held in place with a heavy coating of varnish which could be removed readily by a little hacking with a safety razor and a quart of turpentine in the morning?"

Mr. Dorgan's reply was too rapid to be taken down in full, but it is safe to say that the above treatment ought to be the cause of Mr. Dorgan's youth and beauty, even if it is not. If this treatment should fail to produce the desired result after a few years' trial, the following suggestion, which has been sent in by Launcelot de Lancy, one of our constant readers, seems worth trying:

Take powdered plaster of paris and mix rapidly over a slow fire with two ounces of attar of roses, one sliced potato, oil of wintergreen, and just a trace of limburger cheese. Mix until you have a fine paste and apply rapidly to the face at night. Most of it can be removed in the morning with a common fret saw that you can get at any hardware store. The limburger cheese will wear off of itself in time.

To remove mustaches or whiskers from the face rub briskly with the oil of benzine into which you have dropped a little eau de cologne. Then apply a thick coating of liquid asbestos to the rest of the features and permit it to harden.

Now take a common match, which can be secured at any grocery store; or by dropping a penny in the slot you can get a whole boxful.

Light the match slowly and apply to the mustache. If you wait until the Fourth of July before applying this treatment you can give the family a fine pyrotechnic display without incurring the cost of skyrockets and Roman candles.

How to remove the "morning after look" is one of Mr. Dorgan's million dollar beauty recipes. First surround the look. Then chase it into a corner. Grasp it firmly between the thumb and forefinger and peel gradually until it is completely removed. Simple, isn't it.

Dark eyes are much admired by the fair sex these days. A beautiful span of eyes in a the darker shades from black to navy blue may be easily acquired. One simple method is to go out to White Sox park and yell loudly for the Cubs.

Large feet trouble us men probably as much as the dear girls. But for men this perplexing question is solved quickly because they are not so tightly bound by conventionalities. Any man troubled by the fact that his shoes look like the packing cases for exported hams can try this exercise, which will enable him to have neat and graceful "trilbies" in a few months. The reason that your feet get so outrageously enlarged, dear boys, is because you are walking or standing on them.

Practice walking on your hands. In coming downtown on the street car stand on your hands and put your feet in the straps above. Always walk on your hands in the store or office, and you will be delighted to observe your feet becoming so small and dainty.

Next week Mr. Dorgan will tell us a good exercise to insure deep breathing and cure the spring halt, and also how to make and apply his wonderful garlic lotion for the ingrowing face.

PLAYERS' PLANS FOR NEW SEASON

Hackett to Open at the Blackstone in "The Grain of Dust" Sept. 18.

EDDIE FOY AT OLYMPIC.

Comedian Due on Labor Day in Musical Comedy; "Louisiana Lou" at La Salle.

James K. Hackett has been selected to impersonate that inexplicable barrister, the hero of "The Grain of Dust," when Louis Evan Shipman's dramatization of the story reaches the footlights. The Blackstone theater, Chicago, is named as the scene of his forthcoming, and Sept. 18 as the date. "The Grain of Dust" is the tale by the late David Graham Phillips which ran so long in the Saturday Evening Post.

Mr. Askin, tiring of play titles with the word "girl" in them, has decided on "Louisiana Lou" as the caption for the coming Donaghey-Burkhardt-Jerome musical comedy at the La Salle. Of coprse the name is only tentative and will be revised, no doubt, before Aug. 27, the date of production. Bernard Granville, Alexander Carr, and the sweet singing Miss Sophie Tucker are among the expensive artists engaged by Mr. Askin for his new enterprise.

Local option in the middle west is the theme of a new play by Henry Blossom with "Brought Home" as its vividly definite title. Messrs. Cohan and Harris purchased the rights to it in the open market last week and will produce it ere long.

In New York it is announced that Eddie Foy, under the auspices of A. H. Wood, will begin anew his stellar career at the Olympic theater here on Labor day in a musical piece called "The Pet of the Petticoats." Aiding Mr. Foy will be Miss Maude Lambert, Harry Foy, the Misses Millership, Miss Belle Ashley, William Sellery, and the eight Berlin Madcaps.

Lew Fields has sailed to seek recreation in quiet places on the continent. Mr. Fields and William Collier were discussing a name for Mr. Collier's new farce as the ship was about to leave and the "All ashore" call had sounded. "Take my advice, Willie, and get off," said Mr. Fields. "We can settle the name by cable." "That will be the title," shouted Mr. Collier, as he ran ashore. 'Take My Advice,' just fits the play."

"The Master of the House," adapted from the German by Edgar James, is scheduled for production at the Cort Nov. 5 by Messrs. Woods and Frazee.

The dramatic rights to a sensational novel, "The Wife Decides," attacking divorce, written by Thomas McKean, a Philadelphia novelist, under the nom de plume of Sydney Wharton, have been acquired by the Rex Amusement company, which will produce it in September. "The Night Rider," the initial production to be made by the Rex Amusement company, Inc., will open its season before "The Wife Decides" is sent on tour.

The play in which Miss Henrietta Crosman has been appearing throughout the west has been renamed "The Real Thing," for the purposes of the east, and it will be seen next season in New York with Miss Grace Elliston in a leading rôle.

Miss Mabel Barrison has so far convalesced as to be able to sail for Europe, where she intends to remain until autumn.

Andreas Dippel, general manager of the Chicago Grand Opera company, has returned to his home in the suburbs of Vienna after a trip of several weeks through France, Italy and Germany, and is now occupied in arranging the répertoire for the coming season. He announces that the first performance of the season in Chicago will be Saint-Saëns' "Samson et Delila" and will mark the debut of Mme. Jeanne Gerville-Reache. Final arrangements have now been concluded with Mme. Louisa Tetrazzini for her appearances during the Chicago season. Her first appearance will take place on Friday evening, Nov. 24, in Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor" outside of the regular subscription. The other works selected for her engagement will be "La Traviata," "Rigoletto," "Lakme, and "Crispino a la Comare."

U. S. VAUDEVILLE AFTER PATTI.

American Manager Offers Her Big Salary—She Hesitates Over Two "Shows" a Day.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, June 24.—An American vaudeville manager is negotiating here with Patti for a seaon of twenty weeks in a vaudeville house. Patti is to give her answer within ten days.

The phenomenal salary that has been offered the singer is entirely satisfactory to Adeline, but it appears that she has not quite consented to give two "shows" a day, as they say in the vaudeville world. The manager says that she is willing to give one.

If the difficulty can be overcome, Patti will go to the United States in January next.

NEWS OF THE SOCIETY WORLD.

At the reception to be given tomorrow afternoon and evening by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kitchell Webster and Miss Estelle Frances Ward at the Webster residence, 1403 Maple avenue, Evanston, an interesting collection of paintings by Lawton Parker is to be exhibited.

This collection has been painted from time to time within the last two years by Mr. Parker at his summer house on the north shore, and he has called them his out of door portraits. All were painted in his garden. They are not technically portraits, however, Mr. Parker insists, though most of them come within that nomenclature, according to the few friends who have seen them, and all agree that the out of door portrait, which is something a bit unusual, is a most attractive novelty.

The drawing rooms at the Webster residence have been stripped of their hangings and furnishings, and the walls are to be hung with vines, swansonia, and bridal wreath against a background of white, as a fitting setting for the paintings. The hours are from 4 until 11 o'clock.

The marriage of Miss Nellie Opal Wray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Wray, 639 Roscoe street, to Leroy Newbert took place Saturday evening in the Evanston avenue Methodist Episcopal church, the Rev Stewart Edmundson officiating. Miss Fay Richardson of Milwaukee was maid of honor and Mrs. Park Wray was matron of honor. The bridemaids were Miss Juanita Wray, sister of the bride; Miss Harriette Gregg, Miss Myrtle Pierce, and Miss Edith Williams. Allan Polk Houston, Jr., served as best man and the ushers were Park Wray, Charles Kob, Raymond Hawkins, Arnold Schneider, and John McVoy. Edwina Litzenger and Maxine Stresenreutser were flower maids. A reception at the residence followed. Mr. and Mrs. Newbert went east to spend their honeymoon and will reside in Aurora after Nov. 1.

Mrs. Frederick Eames and Mrs. Edward S. Worthington will leave on Thursday to visit their sister, Mrs. Charles MacDonald, at Roslyn, L. I.

Dr. and Mrs. Robert H. Harvey and family have opened their residence at Mackinac Island.

The engagement is announced in Boston of Miss Anne Lindsay, daughter of Mrs. John Lindsay, to Lowell Blake. Miss Lindsay is a sister of Thomas Lindsay, who married Florence Field, niece of Marshall Field. Mr. Blake is a brother of Francis Stanton Blake, who married Miss Jean White, formerly of Chicago.

The marriage of Miss Madenne Dougherty, daughter of Mrs. Honora M. Dougherty, 6542 Woodlawn avenue, to Roy O. Faust took place Wednesday evening at St. Claire's Catholic church. The service was read by the Rev. Father Lawrence.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Grace Dougherty, as maid of honor. Maurice P. Smith served as best man. The bride's gown was of white crêpe meteor trimmed in baby Irish lace. Her tulle veil was fastened with white sweet peas and she carried a shower bouquet of lillies of the valley and white sweet peas. The maid of honor wore a gown of pale blue crêpe meteor, and carried an arm bouquet of pink sweet peas. At home cards were issued for Aug. 15 at 1327 East Sixty-fourth street.

Lee W. Spratlen and Mrs. Emma F. Fernald were married Saturday afternoon at the residence of the bride's parents, 4201 Vincennes avenue. Mr. Spratlen has been connected with the Burlington railroad for many years. The bride is the daughter of Frederick W. Bueckheim. Mr. and Mrs. Spratlen left last evening for an extensive wedding trip.

"LA BOHEME" IN ENGLISH OPERA

Aborn Company Will Close Season with an Abridged Production.

PRAISE GIVEN BY GUNN.

Principals in Sunday Appearance Make Excellent Showing in All.

BY GLENN DILLARD GUNN.

For the final week of their engagement at McVicker's theater the Aborn English Opera company present Puccini's "La Boheme" in judiciously abridged version. It can not be said that the cuts improved the work, but neither did they detract noticeably from its effectiveness; and in view of the company's numerical weakness they supplied convincing evidence of the advantages of discretion over unconsidered courage. At least by avoiding such difficulties of ensemble in the second act as might have proved insurmountable to the chorus it was possible to give a performance that the audience which last night filled the theater found thoroughly enjoyable.

Further evidence of the artistic sincerity of the producers was to be discovered in the augmented orchestra. The demands of the score in the matter of wind instruments were met and the lonesome cellist was at last given a companion. Therefore, the performance developed adequate instrumental support for its abundant vocal excellence.

It can not be said that Conductor Nicosia showed a great measure of refinement, or interpretative distinction. For that the necessary time for rehearsal was not found, a circumstance which is said to explain the replacing, at the last moment, of Miss Ephra Vogelsang, who was announced for the part of Musetta, by Miss Louise Brown. Miss Vogelsang is reported to have felt two rehearsals insufficient for a debut in a difficult rôle.

Rehearsals are an expensive adjunct of opera, as the directors of the Chicago opera have discovered. That they are essential to artistic completeness the Aborn company has shown us by the shortcomings of their productions. But the public cannot expect everything for a dollar and the audience seemed to find last night's offering worth the price of admission.

The principals were excellent without exception, though they varied in the finish and precision of their several performances from the finished and authoritative singing and acting of Louis Kreidler as Marcel to the earnest and well meaning efforts of Mr. Battain as Rudolph. Miss Ewell made a somewhat lankuid Mimi and her voice showed signs of weariness. Sundry faults of method reminded the hearer that this gifted soprano is closing a long and trying season. But the voice retains its rarely beautiful quality.

Mr. Kreidler, on the other hand, has gained in each appearance. His consul, in "Butterfly," was merely worthy. As Athanael he developed a larger measure of authority, and last night his art was easily the most commanding that has been observed on the stage of McVicker's during the present engagement. Mr. Schuster and Mr. Bozzano completed the quartet of artists who delivered the concerted numbers in the first act with fine effect. Mr. Solomon, as Benoit and Parpignol, attended industriously to the comedy element.

Miss Braun, who made her first appearance here with the company, was a vivacious Musetta. Her voice, though light and somewhat thin at times, is fully equal to the demands of the part. In fact, she may be favorably compared with several interpreters of the rôle who have been heard in the past in productions of the work by the forces of the Metropolitan company.

The translation used by the Aborn company is miserable

MR. KOHLSAAT EXPLAINS MR. LORIMER.

Mr. Herman H. Kohlsaat, editor of the Record-Herald, in his testimony before the senate subcommittee, gave briefly the reason why almost all the newspapers of Chicago have been opposed to William Lorimer almost all the time he has been in public life. It has been because Mr. Lorimer, from the beginning of his political activity, has so determined his course of action and so directed his efforts as to be in opposition to every interest of the public.

Mr. Lorimer, as Mr. Kohlsaat said, has played politics for partisan and personal benefit, regardless of the general public damage resulting therefrom. One of the reasons Illinois is not a more conspicuous example of a machine ridden, politically gagged, and politically spoiled state even than Pennsylvania is because the majority of the newspapers have not been tolerant or indifferent in this regard.

It has resulted in a monotonous reiteration of the name "Lorimer" in connection with projects designed for no public good, but the newspapers have had no choice in the matter. Mr. Lorimer never has been inactive.

THE COST OF A SENATOR.

The Hartford Times is sternly opposed to the direct election of senators, and puts forth as its first reason the following:

The cost of a senatorial candidacy will be much increased. Nobody can be a candidate for the senate without expending a large amount of money in what are called legitimate ways. The opportunities for political corruption will not be decreased. In many cases they will be increased.

This warning must give the most headlong progressive pause. If it took $100,000 to "put over" a senator under the present system, we are not anxious to have the rate rise. In Illinois we are enjoying no illusions as to who finally pays that bill nor how. An investment of $100,000 by a few patriots who modestly shun publicity is better than a lucky mining stock—for the promoters. But its 1,000 per cent dividends are paid by the plain people indirectly, but no longer unconsciously. For those interests concerned with the preservation of present conditions in our de facto system of government by and for privilege, every dollar spent in putting a Lorimer over is paid back by the public ten thousand fold.

WHITE PHOSPHORUS.

Last January the Diamond Match company canceled its patent for the sesquisulphide composition. That enabled every competing company to use if it saw fit a harmless substitute for poisonous white phosphorus. It disposed of the argument that the enactment by congress of a law forbidding the use of white phosphorus would be equivalent to giving the Diamond company a monopoly.

It might seem as if the action of that company had made legislation unnecessary, but it has not. There is still imperative need of it. It is said that white phosphorus is still used in every match factory in the country, even in those of the Diamond company. The United States will have to do what the leading nations of Europe have done—prohibit absolutely the use of the poison. They began with attempts at regulation. They did all they could in the way of warning and guarding the employés in the factories, but they found at last that protection could be had only by prohibition.

It is by prohibitory legislation alone that the workers in American match factories can be protected against "phosphorus necrosis," otherwise "phossy jaw." The fumes of white phosphorus attack the jaw bones of the workers, and sometimes an entire jaw has to be removed. A man can occasionally hide the disfigurement by growing a beard, but that is denied the women sufferers.

The workers are not the only victims. White phosphorus is deadly when taken into the stomach, and there is on record case after case of children who have eaten matches in play and died as the direct result. If children are allowed to play with matches at all it should be with safety matches. They could not poison themselves with them, for they contain no phosphorus, and would be less likely to set their clothes afire.

It is through national, not through state legislation, that a stop can be put to the use of white phosphorus. This is a nonpolitical question, and a Republican senate and a Democratic house should not find it difficult to agree on a law.

ELECTRIFICATION OF TERMINALS.

The corporation counsel says that the city under its police power can force the railroads to give up the use of locomotives which emit smoke and noxious gases. Whether the courts would agree with him is uncertain. The only way to find out is to give them an opportunity to pass on the matter.

There are no signs of an abatement by the railroads of the nuisance they have created. They may be ready to spend money, but not for that purpose. Thus the Illinois Central, which is the most conspicuous violator of the smoke ordinance, has money to spare for improvements at its Burnside shops, for the building of roundhouses at different points, and for laying some new tracks. When electrification is suggested the answer is the road could not afford it.

Presumably whenever the city shall make a serious attempt to put an end to the locomotive smoke nuisance the roads will appeal to the courts. No matter how long the city may wait, there will be litigation. Therefore the sooner it begins the better. The result would give no more information about the city's rights and powers than we now have. There is an ordinance before the council requiring the railroads to use some other motive power than steam, if they do not within a specified time put an end to the smoke nuisance. Why not pass it and find out whether it can be made to hold?

They are more progressive down east in the matter of electrifying railroad terminals than we are. A bill providing for the electrification of railroads in the metropolitan district of Boston has passed one branch of the legislature and is expected to pass the other. The roads will be given until September of next year to submit electrification plans to the board of railroad commissioners. If it approves them it will fix a date for the beginning of the work. It is believed the roads will be benefited in the long run, but the public benefit is considered first.

A SHORT LIVED MINISTRY.

He is a bold man who takes the premiership in a French cabinet and attempts to drive the wild horses of the chamber of deputies. It was said once that the members of the house of commons were the best trained voting cattle in Europe. The most unruly are to be found in France. The combine or "bloc" on which a premier relies may fail him through a sudden defection. An imprudent speech was the end of Clemenceau. Briand met an adverse vote when he least expected it. Now a question which is really academic has doomed the Monis ministry after less than four months of office.

France does not want war and does not look for it—would do much to avoid it. Nevertheless, there sprang up a lively debate in the senate and chamber of deputies over a statement made by the minister of war that the present organization of the army did not provide for a commander in chief in time of war. A council, he said, made up of the minister and the generals of the army would direct operations. It would be beyond the power of a single man to manage everything. The upshot was a vote of lack of confidence in the ministry.

No such question could arise here. The president is the commander in chief. Even when Lincoln put in the capable hands of Grant the control of all the armies he remained commander in chief. If there were a war today the president, the secretary of war, and the general staff would direct operations. When France was a monarchy the king sometimes sought to manage everything. Louis XIV. did and his last campaigns were disastrous. While Napoleon was for some years a brilliant illustration of the advantages of one man power, he came to a bad end.

There are Frenchmen who are opposed to the direction of the armies by one man, because they see in him "the man on horseback"—the military dictator. They are not so sure of the stability of the republic as to be willing to expose it to the shock of the return of a general from a successful campaign.

The Monis ministry is out and the way is open for a new one whose position on the question of army control may be more satisfactory to the deputies.

A HARD WORKED COURT.

Shortly after Chief Justice White's appointment some old friends called on him and asked him to deliver an address. His answer was to take them into his workroom where they could see the stacks of briefs and piles of volumes of evidence that had to be studied. He said he had to keep at them early and late, and had no time for anything else. What is true of him is equally true of the other members of the court.

Most persons found the chief justice's opinions in the oil and tobacco trust cases too long for reading. Think of the time it must have required to prepare them—not the mere writing but the preliminary study of documents and the long deliberations with associate justices. There must have been hours of argument to convert some of them to his views.

These two opinions were but a fraction of the work accomplished by the court. During the term which has just ended 509 cases were filed, of which 454 were decided. During the preceding term 508 cases were filed and only 395 cases disposed of. So, in spite of the industry of the court, it is unable to keep up with its work. There is a summer vacation, but, unlike most judicial vacations, it will not be a perfect respite from toil. There will be under advisement during the summer about a dozen cases which were argued during the last term, but have not been decided. Some of them are of sufficient importance to give the justices much food for thought.

It is apparent that there will soon have to be more legislation for the relief of the court. There is a full bench and all the justices are hard workers, but it is impossible for them to cope with the increasing volume of business.

DANGER IN VOTING MACHINES.

Chicago has got into a pretty tangle over its voting machine project, and it is more than likely that the embarrassment and delays involved will turn out to be a blessing in disguise.

For the desirability of voting machines is fairly challengeable. It is by no means certain that they do not represent a step backward, not a step forward. This is the deliberate opinion of the Short Ballot organization, which it expresses thus:

The voting machine is a device to make voting expeditious and easy for the busy citizen, and otherwise to simplify the process of ballot casting and ballot accounting. As a mechanical labor saving device it is doubtless entitled to its meed of praise, but in another view the whole system is at best a makeshift escape from a very aggravated condition. The Chicago ballot needs simplifying sure enough, but you must work from the other end of the problem, not worrying especially about the superficial influence in the electoral system, but tracing the present trouble back to its true cause.

The real need of Chicago is the short ballot, in the accepted sense of the term. If you could manage to take off the ticket those insignificant offices which bring nothing but bewilderment and confusion into the election, you will not only recast the government of the city and state into a responsible and responsive organism, but you will as a consequence have solved more than half the electoral difficulties. Place the appointment of these minor officials in the hands of luminous official leaders, and the whole system of government will be better for it. But it would be a sorry mistake to simplify elections by making it still easier for the voter to fall back upon a mechanical device instead of using his own intelligence with deliberation on each office to be filled.

Unquestionably, there is great danger in employing any simplifying or automatic device by which the ignorant voter can vote under the easy instruction of a boss. And as THE TRIBUNE has said recently in another connection, what is needed perhaps more than anything else in behalf of efficient administration and responsible representation is to reduce the number of men we have to pass upon at elections—and hold those men to account.

ALDERMANIC PASSES.

It is said that the Chicago railroads are tired of giving passes to aldermen for themselves, their families, and their friends. Then why do not the roads stop giving them? If they were to agree among themselves to end a vicious practice, the agreement would not be a violation of the anti-trust law. If the roads, while complaining of aldermanic passes, shall continue to give them, the presumption will be that they buy aldermanic favors, such as switch track permits, with passes, or that they are afraid the council would assume a distinctly hostile attitude if passes were cut off—might even pass an immediate electrification ordinance.

The roads should of their own motion cut off all passes, and thus make it unnecessary for the general assembly to legislate on the subject. They should be cut off for reasons of economy. The other day the Burlington road appealed to every employé to save it a nickel a day. The passenger agent of that or any other line could save for his company much more than that lowly nickel by putting an end to deadheading.

EVEN now it is hard work to find competent juries to try Lee O'Neil Browne. After a while it will be impossible.

MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

[Copyright: 1911: By the Brentwood Company.]

VISCOUNT MOUNTGARRET, who has just received a barony of the United Kingdom on the occasion of the king's coronation, which will give him a seat in the house of lords, is a Liberal in politics and for this reason never has been elected as one of the representative peers of Ireland, the overwhelming majority of Irish peers who have a voice in these elections being Unionists.

Mountgarret and the barony of Kells, to which he has hitherto been restricted, are Irish peerages, dating from the middle of the sixteenth century, when they were bestowed upon a younger son of the eighth Earl of Ormonde by Edward VI.

Lord Mountgarret, therefore, represents a junior branch of the great Irish house of Butler, of which the present Marquis of Ormonde is the chief, and is a rich man, having inherited a large fortune from his mother in addition to that which came to him through his father.

The latter was the defendant in the famous Mountgarret peerage case, which was one of the causes celebres of the nineteenth century. He was a grandson of the eleventh viscount by that peer's third son, the Hon. Henry Butler. Henry, after eloping with a married woman and then deserting her, became the lover of a widow, a Mrs. Colebrook, described as one of the most beautiful and fascinating women of the day. She had a large income, bequeathed to her by Col. Colebrook on condition of her not marrying again.

One child was born to Henry Butler and to Mrs. Colebrook, and then a certain John Taaffe (a member of that noble Irish house to which the late Viscount Taaffe, at one time prime minister and an Irish peer, belonged) came upon the scene as a rival of the Hon. Henry Butler.

One night Henry Butler broke into Mrs. Colebrook's house at Edinburgh while John Taaffe was there. Mrs. Colebrook locked Taaffe in a cupboard in order to conceal him and then went downstairs to try to pacify Henry Butler.

Nothing would satisfy him but that a ceremony should then and there take place which should bind her to him for all time, according to the law of Scotland. So the servants were summoned upstairs to the bedroom, and there in the presence of them all Henry Butler and Mrs. Colebrook joined hands and proclaimed themselves man and wife, John Taaffe being meanwhile locked up in the cupboard and kicking at the door in vain.

Then Butler took his departure and Taaffe came out of the cupboard. Five months later, utterly regardless of this ceremony, Mrs. Colebrook married John Taaffe, whose father thereupon disinherited him, and immediately afterwards Henry Butler wedded a Yorkshire lady, a Miss Anne Harrison, in the parish church of Harrowgate in England. It was this wife who was the mother of the late and thirteenth Lord Mountgarret.

On the death of the twelfth Viscount Mountgarret, who had been created Earl of Kilkenny, and who left no children, his nephew, the son of his younger brother, the Hon. Henry Butler, and of Miss Anne Harrison, assumed the viscounty of Mountgarret, and took possession of the estates.

He soon found his retention thereof was contested by Pierce Somerset Butler, the son of his father's youngest brother, who claimed the honors and the property on the ground that Henry Butler's English marriage to Miss Anne Harrison had been invalid by reason of his previous Scotch union to Mrs. Colebrook.

The case, that is to say, the suit for the ownership of the estates, was tried at Kilkenny in 1884, and a decree was granted in favor of the plaintiff, Pierce Somerset Butler. But this judgment was reversed in the following year on appeal, the courts declining to believe the extraordinary story of the Scotch marriage, of which there was no documentary evidence.

Lord Mountgarret has disposed of most of his extensive estates in County Kilkenny to his tenantry under the Irish land act, retaining, however, Mountgarret castle and the park by which it is surrounded, and spends most of his time at Nold hall, one of his three places in Yorkshire.

Aretas Akers-Douglas, who was created a viscount on Monday last by King George on the occasion of his coronation, was the secretary of state for the home department in the last Unionist cabinet, is a member of the bar, and has been prominently identified with the Conservative party for more than thirty years, being in charge of the party machine as far back as in 1883.

He made his name as a whip, being indeed the most successful party whip of modern times, and was credited a unique knowledge of the forms and usages of the house of commons, of the individual views, weaknesses, foibles, strength, and the capabilities of the various members of his party. It is said the late Lord Salisbury never adopted a policy nor appointed a minister without consulting him.

He is the only son of the late Aretas Akers of Malling Abbey, near Maidstone, in Kent; was with Arthur Balfour, Lord Rosebery, and Lord Esher at Eton, and with Lord Gladstone at University college, Oxford. About thirty-seven years ago he succeeded to the beautiful and valuable Chilston Park estate in Kent, as well as to a large fortune under the will of his cousin, Stoddard Douglas, Tory member of parliament for Rochester. At the same time, in obedience to the testamentary requirements of the bequest, he assumed with the consent of the crown the arms of his cousin and his patronymic. That is how he happens to be Akers-Douglas.

Chilston park is about ten or fifteen miles from Maidstone, stands on the far side of an extensive lake, the principal source of which is the River Stour, which flows through it on past Canterbury and Sandwich, finding its way into the sea at Pogwell bay.

The older part of the house dates from the fifteenth century and is of stone, while the newer portion, of the early Georgian era, is in red brick, dating from 1727. The house is famous for its magnificent old oak paneling, hundreds of years old, as well as for its wood carvings, and its old masters; while the great park is full of majestic trees which were already old in the days of Queen Elizabeth.

Akers-Douglas is distinguished for his imperturbable temper, his tact, and his great charm of manner, all of which go to blind both friends and foes to his lack of genius and of brilliancy. No man is reckoned better company in the smoking room, none is a more welcome guest in a shooting party, which rarely includes a better gun than himself, while where he particularly shines is in the plowing matches and other rural diversions of East Kent.

He married a daughter of Horatio Austen Smith of Hayes court, another Kentish territorial magnate, and has a number of children, so that the continuance of the peerage just bestowed upon him is well assured.

The only other prominent Conservative politician who was raised to the house of lords during the last week in connection with the coronation is Sir Alexander Acland Hood, who received a barony. He was vice chamberlain of the royal household during the last year of Queen Victoria's reign and for twelve months following the accession of Edward VII.

He is a soldier by profession, served with the Grenadier guards in the Egyptian campaign of 1882, and spent two years out in Australia as governor of Victoria.

Beaucoup Wedding and Then Quelque.
[From the Sumner, Ia., Gazette.]

What is more beautiful than a pretty June wedding? June, the month when all nature seems most grand. Five miles northeast of Sumner is a beautiful villa, surrounded with nature's green foliage and studded here and there with God's most brilliant gems, the flowers of June. Such is the home of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Frisch where their son August was united in holy wedlock to Miss Clara Koelling of Toprif, Colo. The ceremony took place June 15, 1911, at 5 o'clock in the evening. To the sweet strains of the wedding march, which was played by Esther Frisch, sister of the groom, the contracting parties marched to a easy nook on the front porch which previously had been beautifully draped with lace, decorated with mock orange blossoms. There Rev. Schroeder in his grand stately bearing, proceeded to tie the nuptial knot, making the ceremony beautiful as well as impressive.

I have grown tired of rapture and love's desire;
Love is a flaming heart, and its flames aspire
Till they cloud the soul in the smoke of a windy fire.

I would wash the dust of the world in a soft green flood;
Here, between sea and sea, in the fairy wood,
I have found a delicate, wave-green solitude.

Here in the fairy wood, between sea and sea,
I have found the song of a fairy bird in a tree,
And the peace that is not in the world has flown to me.

SUNSHINE SCATTERS TEARS.
[From the Galesburg Republican-Register.]

While the ladies assisted the hostess in preparing luncheon the gentlemen of the party made the beautiful maple grove ring with old time songs. The ladies then assumed charge, the large French windows were thrown open, from which came the sonorous notes of "The Bout En Train," a duet finely rendered by Mrs. Mathers and Mrs. Pittman. Then came the soul inspiring "O Restless Sea," and as the echoes died away in the treetops the silence of true appreciation made applause conspicuous by its absence.

To restore hilarity Mrs. Pittman rendered "The Lady in the Shoe Store."

IT appears to be a common way of putting it. A line from London reports a sign in a haberdasher's window in the Strand: "These ties will last only a few days."

Viler still was George the Second;
And what mortal ever heard

And when from earth the Fourth ascended,
God be praised, the Georges ended.

ELECTING PRECINCT COMMITTEEMEN.

Chicago, June 23.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I have yours of the 21st, inclosing a postal signed "Subscriber," and containing the following question, which you have asked me to answer: "Kindly tell me when the election for precinct captains will be held, and what formalities must be done to run for one."

I beg to advise that the election for precinct committeemen will be held on April 9, 1912, and every two years thereafter. Precinct committeemen are not candidates in the usual sense of the term, as the voter makes his selection at the time he marks his ballot, by writing or attaching to such ballot in the space provided for that purpose the name of some qualified elector of that party residing in that precinct for the office of precinct committeeman. As a practical fact, of course, there are in every precinct one or more candidates for precinct committeemen who generally distribute stickers bearing their names for the convenience of the voter.

ALLEY TO BE KEPT CLEAR.

Chicago, June 24.—[To the Friend of the People.]—The contractor for the building immediately in the rear of my house, 1515 North State street, has virtually taken possession of the alley for his mixing of concrete and other work. Is there no means of limiting him, so that free access may be given to wagons for regular deliveries to the abutting dwellings?

CHARLES A. MAIR.

The inspector in this district reports that the contractor will keep alley clear and that he will see that he does so. F. W. SOLON,
Acting Superintendent of Streets.

NO PROCEEDINGS.

ELMER H. SPRINGER,

There's no record of any proceedings pending for this work. It is up to the property owners to petition the board of local improvements if they wish it done.

SIDEWALK TO BE IMPROVED.

Chicago, June 24.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Please tell me through the columns of your paper what can be done about a cement sidewalk that is so low that when it rains the water is about ankle deep on it in places. The sidewalk on Irving Park boulevard just east of Sheridan road is sunken in several places and it is often necessary to lay a long board in order to get over some of the places. Is it the place of the city or the owner of the property to fix it?

F. A. C.

We have a special assessment ordinance covering this property and expect to file an assessment roll on same in court before July 1. After this roll is confirmed by the court we will be in position to put this walk in condition, providing the property owner does not do so before that time.
N. E. MURRAY, Superintendent of Sidewalks.

RIDING AROUND THE LOOP.

Chicago, June 24.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I boarded a State-Seventy-third street car on the corner of Randolph and Wabash last night, handing conductor No. 2510, car No. 5214, my nickel, the conductor told me it would only take me to State and Lake streets, the end of the line, where I would have to pay another nickel to go south.

M. H. WEYER.

The Chicago City Railway company assures us that this matter will be investigated.

TRAIN INTERVALS ON THE N. W. L.

June 5 the Friend of the People printed a communication concerning the alleged delay of Evanston trains on the Northwestern Elevated road caused by their following Wilson expresses which made "all the stops." The Northwestern Elevated officials say the Wilson trains make but four stops, and they exhibit a tabulation of twenty trains passing the Chicago avenue tower during the rush hour in the evening. This table shows an average interval of about one and a quarter minutes.

This certainly shows a continuous procession of trains coming off the loop as fast as others can be let on, with the stub trains sandwiched in between. The through expresses are following the Wilson expresses, they cannot pass them. The locals are not in the way, as they clear at Chicago avenue. The local headway is four to five minutes, and the express headway one and a half to one and three-quarters minutes.

CONDITION OF SOUTH PARK AVENUE.

Chicago, June 24.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I wish you would bring conditions existing in South Park avenue north from Thirty-third street to the attention of the proper authorities. I understand that the portion of the thoroughfare between Thirty-third street and Twenty-ninth street was placed under supervision of the south park commissioners several years ago and their efforts to boulevard it were made at that time. This brought a storm of protest from the residents of Prairie avenue, which was included in the ordinance and the case was fought up to the Supreme court, which decided in favor of the commissioners.

Lately I understand that the case is again in litigation and I have observed the neglected condition of the street. North of Thirty-first street there are about two gas lamps that burn brightly enough to throw a shadow and piles of cleanings lie neglected in the gutters on either side of the street. All kinds of teams use the street regularly, and the pavement is in utter ruin.

TAXPAYER.

South Park avenue, between Twenty-ninth and Thirty-third streets, has been in bad condition for many years. The south park commissioners were unable to secure the confirmation of an assessment for the improvement of the boulevard. It will not be allowed to go into a dangerous condition, but no improvement can be made until an assessment is made therefor. The street as a boulevard is kept clean and otherwise in good condition the same as it has been ever since it has been under the jurisdiction of the south park commissioners, and it will not be neglected in this particular.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

LAW AGAINST GUN TOTING.

Quincy, Ill., June 22.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I note the plea made by McDougal Hamilton of Chicago in your columns for the abolition of the revolver as a means of prevention of killing and maiming by professional "gun toters." His purpose is laudable—that of decreasing crime of this kind—but is the means practicable? I think not. The passing of a law preventing the sale of revolvers in Illinois would have a much more far reaching effect than Mr. Hamilton has perhaps realized, and would fall far short of bringing about the result he desires. Does the law against the promiscuous carrying of concealed weapons that now is in force keep the lawless element from carrying and using these weapons? It does not. Is it then reasonable to believe that a law preventing the sale of revolvers in the state of Illinois would prevent the lawless element from securing and still carrying, as before, these weapons, and, incidentally, using them, to the same extent as previously? It is not. There would always be plenty of places where revolvers could be secured, but the trouble and price consequent on making the sale an illegal transaction, and also a desire to remain law abiding, would prevent peaceable and law abiding citizens from securing weapons of defense that might be the means of saving life or property on many an occasion, while the lawless class would be supplied with the death dealing instruments, although possibly at much greater trouble and at a highly advanced price, neither of which would be taken into consideration by those who desired them for lawless purposes.

But the greatest effect of the law would not be that of depriving an honest citizen of the means of self-defense in an emergency, but would be the sense of security that would at once begin to be felt by the criminal classes. This class would at once become many times as active in various ways as heretofore, as it would feel much less fear of successful resistance or danger in the business of holding up lonely wayfarers or burglarizing homes. Knowing that the average citizen would not buy a revolver in defiance of a law against it, and knowing himself possessed of one, would not a thug, holdup man, or burglar feel a far greater freedom and far less fear in his calling than under present conditions? Would not his operations increase proportionately? If such a law be passed it will be an interesting though undoubtedly costly experiment to compare the lawlessness in this state with that in others; also to compare the amount of crime with that in other years.

PARK IN CENTER OF THE WARD.

Chicago, June 24.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The Sixteenth ward is going to have a new park. Why not build the park in the middle of the ward, instead of the proposed site, Blackhawk, Bradley, and Noble streets? There is plenty of cheap property in North avenue, Wabansia, Paulina, Marshfield, and Hermitage. That is the center of the ward.

NO FAITH IN REDUCED TARIFF.

Valparaiso, Ind., June 24.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I notice that in all the controversy on the tariff great stress is laid upon the interests of the poor, dear consumer. Now to show the hollowness and hypocrisy of such pretenses it is only necessary to recall the effects of the Wilson-Gorman tariff, which placed wool on the free list (under the pretext of benefiting the dear consumer), ruining the wool growing industry of this country, and when we, the dear consumer, baught our winter supplies of the retail dealer we did not get our goods a half of one per cent cheaper than before. I have transacted business under the different tariff policies of this country more than sixty years and know what I am talking about.

JOEL C. PAINE.

SCIENTIFIC TREATMENT OF CRIME.

Chicago, June 24.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The question of crime and the best scientific method of dealing with it is occupying the attention of the greatest thinkers of modern times.

The antiquated school still clings to the superstitious notion that crime is due to the misuse of the individual's free will. The modern school seeks to inquire into the causes, biological and social, that breed crime.

Criminologists argue that some people are born with criminal tendencies, and that these tendencies bulge out at the earliest opportunity. These atavistic criminals who are incapable of leading socially integrated lives, as well as those suffering from a functional disturbance, ought to be treated pathologically. A writer on this subject said that "the law deals with criminals as quacks deal with disease. If a person suffers from a mild form of a disease they prescribe an ounce of rhubarb; if he suffers from a severe attack of the malady, they apply two or three ounces."

In medicine such treatment is justly designated quackery; but in law it passes off as science.

The solution of this vital problem can only in reason be hoped for when scientific principles will be applied in legal proceedings. Then, and not till then, will crime be reduced to a vanishing point.

MR. BURKE AND HIS REBUKE.

North Manchester, Ind., June 22.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Your editorial in your issue of 21st inst. on Mr. Burke's rebuke is a wholesome one to put before the public. While it is wrong to dismiss these criminal cases, the effect of Mr. Burke's action and his rebuke taken together may be worth much to this country in the interest of common decency in public affairs and in the strengthening of the foundations of this government. Mr. Burke has been a faithful official to an ungrateful people and certain of the press who, from the unfaithful juror to the indifferent citizen of Illinois, should hide their faces in shame for the indorsement that has been given to corruption by their refusal to or their indifference in bringing it to justice.

A WOMAN REPELS A ROBBER.

Chicago, June 23.—[Editor of the Tribune.]—Reading in THE TRIBUNE this morning of the attempted robbery of Mrs. Harrison, President Harrison's widow, in Paris recently, reminded me of a similar incident I witnessed at the corner of State and Madison streets last Monday afternoon. One of a team of horses had fallen down, and there was quite a crowd and jam. An elderly woman, possibly as old as Mrs. Harrison, was standing near the curb, waiting to cross the street. Suddenly a man grabbed her silk handbag and tried to jerk it off her arm. Before I had time to say anything, or even to scream, she hit him such a blow on the hand with the heavy handle of an umbrella she was carrying in her right hand that the fellow let go and shrunk away into the crowd. I went to her, told her I had seen it all, and inquired if I could do anything for her. "O, no," she replied; "I'm going over to Marshall Field's as soon as I can get across the street," apparently not a whit frightened. I wish all women were like her; then we would carry leaded handled umbrellas and be safe in going out alone.

TAFT URGES DELAY IN TARIFF ACTION

Believes Revision Should Wait Upon Report from Board of Experts.

HE HAS SERVED NOTICE.

Reciprocity Veto Certain if Bill Is Loaded Down with Amendments.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., June 25.—[Special.]—President Taft has served notice that he is opposed to any tariff revision at this time.

The president objects not only to any amendment to the Canadian reciprocity bill lowering tariff rates, but believes the program for passing an independent bill revising the schedules is ill advised.

His attitude, which has become known since his return last night, will have a still further depressing influence on the efforts of Senator Wesley Jones and others looking to a plan of tariff revision in which Republican regulars and insurgents were to unite and relieve the consumer and confuse the Democrats.

The plan already had met the disapproval of some Republican leaders, who point out nothing could come of such a Republican legislative program while Democrats control the house.

Would Await Tariff Board Report.

The president believes tariff revision should wait upon the reports of the tariff board. It is believed now he will outline a plan of tariff revision based on the board's reports when congress meets in regular session in December. In the next important speech he is to deliver at Indianapolis on July 4, the president will deal with the general subject of tariff revision.

It is regarded as certain that he would veto the Canadian reciprocity bill if it came to him loaded down with amendments dealing with tariff revision, and there is little doubt that he will decline to approve the farmers' free list bill and other tariff measures of Democratic origin, if these pass the senate.

The president's friends believe he will be the gainer politically by turning his back on tariff revision plans and withholding his support until he has a written report from experts.

Lively Debate Ahead in Senate.

The Canadian reciprocity bill probably will be debated with some earnestness during the week. Senator La Follette's amendments carrying general revision are expected to be unfolded before the senate's gaze within a few days.

The Democratic senate conference also will shed some light on the situation.

While matters still are chaotic the president has been advised by the senate leaders that a vote on the Canadian bill will be reached earlier than had been expected. As to how long the tariff bills may be before the upper house there still is nothing definite. The Root amendment will be voted on tomorrow and undoubtedly will be rejected. The president has been so advised by his friends in the senate.

The possibility of a coalition between Democrats and insurgent Republicans in the senate on the tariff revision program is more remote than ever. The insurgents are beginning to turn against their allies, the Democrats.

Insurgents Accuse Democrats.

The progressives are charging that the Democratic leaders in the senate are working in harmony with the regular Republicans to pass Canadian reciprocity without amendment and then get away after a show of considering the other tariff bills. The insurgents say the Democrats do not want to see legislation enacted revising tariff schedules downward at this time.

OUSTED FOR FLING AT TAFT.

Winnipeg, Man., June 25.—E. L. Borden, leader of the conservation party in Canada, has retired his lieutenant, J. G. Bergeron, who at Moose Jaw used the illustration of Samson and Delilah in connection with President Taft and Minister Fielding during the course of his argument against reciprocity.

Mr. Borden has moved on, with his lieutenants, to southern Alberta to continue the campaign against reciprocity. Here, after Manitoba and Saskatchewan, he found the farmers a unit for ratification of the agreement. His first stopping place was MacLeod, where he received a memorial from the United Farmers of Alberta in that district, representing the unanimous feeling of forty-six branches.

They desired the obstruction to the agreement on the part of Borden's supporters in the Canadian parliament to cease. They deprecated so much flag waving on political platforms, and asked the speakers to discuss practical issues.

At Weyburn, Saskatchewan, on Friday, one speaker, whose opinion was cheered, said, "The farmers are prepared to take the west out of the confederation of provinces if reciprocity is denied us."

Other speakers pictured the Chicago meat trust coming in and gobbling up cattle at the trust's own figures.

SWAT THE FLY! IT'S A DEADLY PERIL.

AMERICA'S summer problem is the housefly and how to exterminate it. If it were merely an annoying insect the problem could be contemplated with equanimity. But the element of danger to health makes it a serious one and one which we cannot lightly dismiss.

A large part of the public still looks upon the fly with amusement or apathy or does not consider it at all. Chicago is behind in its ordinances concerning the disposal of garbage and manure. Its laws are old and inadequate. But, such as they are, if the public regarded them they might do much to prevent the breeding of disease by means of the fly. In thousands of homes open garbage pails are still used, although the law prescribes the size and insists that they shall have closely fitting covers.

Every day when garbage is to be collected thousands of exposed receptacles, many of them filthy, broken, and uncovered, may be seen waiting on the walks for the collector's visit. Around these cans and pails on a hot day thousands of flies collect, to then fly off on their visits to screenless homes.

What follows has been often described in this department. It need not be repeated here, but the neglect of the laws of common decency on the part of Chicago citizens is disgraceful. Nor is this neglect confined to what is called "the poorer districts." Indeed, the law is quite as often broken by otherwise self-respecting citizens of means as by those of poorer estate.

There needs an awakening of the civic conscience in this matter, primitive as it may appear to be. District improvement associations should spread the gospel of cleanliness into every street and alley. Personal appeals to self-respect and decency should be made when other arguments fail. The precincts of each ward should vie with each other in setting houses and yards in order. The Woman's City club has a fine organization. Some committee should busy itself with this important subject.

U. S. GIVES MILLION PATENTS

Number in New Series Will Be Issued on Aug. 1.

HONOR PLACED BY TAFT.

Fire in 1836 Destroyed Records and Caused New Figures.

Washington, D. C., June 25.—[Special.]—The United States government will issue its one millionth patent for an invention on Aug. 1 next, and the honor will go to an inventor who has been designated by President Taft.

Commissioner of Patents Edward Bruce Moore has been lookng forward for some time to a celebration of the issuance of patent No. 1,000,000. It was his hope that this distinguished number should go to some epoch making invention. Several weeks ago President Taft received a letter from an American inventor saying he had perfected a device which he intended to patent, and that he would like to have the honor of receiving No. 1,000,000. The president asked the commissioner to comply with the request if it were not incompatible with the regulations of the office.

Number Placed in Reserve.

The commissioner reported to the president that the device was meritorious and would constitute a valuable addition to the list of American inventions and that patent No. 1,000,000 would be granted the inventor. The number was placed in reserve and will be officially recorded on the first issue day of August.

The United States patent office will be 122 years old when the coveted number is issued. The bureau was established in 1790 as an adjunct to the treasury department. Early in 1836 there was a fire which destroyed not only the building of the patent office, but every record, all the important drawings and papers, and every model owned by the government. Prior to the fire the office had issued 9,937 patents.

First Patent on Cotton Gin.

The destruction of the records compelled an entire reorganization and therefore the system of numbering was started with No. 1 again.

The first strictly American invention to receive a patent from the original United States patent office was the cotton gin. The patent was issued March 14, 1794, to Eli Whitney. The number of the Whitney patent was not preserved. Neither was the number of Fulton's steamboat, for which a patent was issued Feb. 11, 1809.

Following the resumption of a regular system of serial numbers for patents the first important American invention to be granted a patent was the Colt revolver.

The next great American invention to receive a patent was the Morse telegraph instrument. The patent, No. 1,647, was issued June 20, 1840. The patent issued to Charles Goodyear, June 15, 1844, acknowledged his invention of the process of the vulcanization of india rubber. The basic patent of the pneumatic air brake was issued to George W. Westinghouse, April 13, 1869. It bore serial number 88,929.

AIDED LORIMER; LOSES SEAT

Paynter of Kentucky Withdraws from Race for U. S. Senate.

JAMES WILL GET PLACE.

Campaign Made on Opponent's Aid to "White Wash" Report.

Frankfort, Ky., June 25.—[Special.]—The Lorimer forces received a heavy blow when Thomas H. Paynter, one of the committeemen who "whitewashed" him in the last investigation, withdrew last night from the race for the Democratic nomination in the United States senate. His announcement means that Ollie James will go to the senate without opposition.

Ever since the Lorimer inquiry was opened in Washington, Kentucky Democrats were interested in the outcome, and when Senator Paynter cast his vote clearing the Illinois man it was predicted that he would never return to the senate.

Chance for Victory Gone.

After carefully going over the ground and finding that there was no possible chance for his reelection, Senator Paynter announced that conditions were not such that would induce him to continue the race and that for the best interests of the party he would withdraw.

During the campaign the Lorimer case was much in evidence, as Ollie James had fought Lorimer while Paynter had supported him. This carried the tide of popularity to the congressman and caused the ultimate withdrawal of Paynter.

Congressman James could not be found today after the withdrawal of Senator Paynter, but it is easily discerned that the nomination of James without opposition will go a long way toward cementing the Democratic party in the state, as Paynter's presence in the field was bringing about general dissatisfaction.

Clark Will Aid James.

Washington, D. C., June 25.—Speaker Clark will stump Kentucky next fall in the interest of Representative Ollie E. James for the United States senate. Mr. Clark reached this decision today when he learned that Senator Thomas H. Paynter had withdrawn from the contest and that Representative James would receive the nomination at the Democratic primary July 1.

BOUNTY ON FLIES; CHILDREN SWAT

Youngsters of Worcester, Mass., Join in Killing Contest for $600 in Prizes.

VAST NUMBER ARE SLAIN.

Little Ones Invade Stables, Alleys, Garbage Heaps; Measure Insects by Quart.

Boston, Mass., June 25.—[Special.]—An endeavor to rid Worcester of flies through a fly killing contest is under way in that city and scores of children have entered the competition.

Many prizes, aggregating more than $600, are being offered to the children producing the greatest number of dead flies within the time limit of the contest, and during the few days the competition has been going on several hundred thousand of the germ carrying insects have been slaughtered.

Measure Insects by Quart.

The insects are measured by the quart as they are brought in and throughout the city the little ones are daily engaged in a wholesale fly massacre.

One boy tells of catching 10,000 flies in an old cow stable and thousands more around garbage cans. In their hustling for the prizes the children are invading back alleys, stables, markets, setting traps among garbage and dirt of all kinds, and patroling various insanitary places where the most flies are found.

Few contestants are confining their attention to homes, for they can gather comparatively few flies there. Some parents look at this feature of the contest with decided disapproval. They fear the children are very likely to contract diseases in invading such places and handling the flies.

Must Dry the Flies.

Another feature is that each child must kill the flies and then dry them carefully before turning them in. In this way the children directly handle the germ laden insects.

Traps of every shape and description as well as all manner of ingenious methods to kill the insects are being used. Fly catching devices are selling at a premium, and men and women appear as much interested in the affair as the children.

THIRD VICTIM LOSES LIFE AS RESULT OF BARNES FIRE.

Valet Dies from Injuries He Received When He Attempted to Rescue Two Young Women.

Nantucket, Mass., June 25.—[Special.]—A third victim of the boathouse fire at the country home of William Barnes Jr. of Albany died today. He was Ulysses Pahud, Mr. Barnes' valet, who received the fatal burns while attempting to rescue Miss Helen Wilson and Miss Mildred De Haven, both of whom were burned to death.

Thomas Kerr of New York and Thurlow Weed Barnes, second, of Albany are still in a critical condition as a result of burns they sustained. There was reason for hope tonight, however, that their injuries will not prove fatal. Both Kerr and Barnes received their burns, as did Pahud, in an attempt to rescue Miss De Haven and Miss Wilson.

Miss Ruth Wilson and Harry Wilson and Miss Phoebe Judkins, who escaped from the burning boathouse by jumping into the water, were said today to be prostrated as a result of the mental shock.

It is generally agreed that the fire was started by a cigaret stub or a match thrown on an oil mop which had been used to oil the floor.

You Need Not Use Cold Storage Butter

TROUBLES AHEAD FOR WICKERSHAM

Department 'Neglect' Blamed for Result of Harriman Merger Suit.

PREDICTION OF FAILURE.

Democratic Action Possible Following Statement of Expert on Case.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., June 25.—[Special.]—The Democratic majority in the house of representatives may go after the department of justice as a result of the decision of the United States Circuit court of the Eighth district declaring legal the merger of the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific railroads.

Thomas C. Spelling, clerk of the committee investigating the department of justice, has brought to the attention of his Democratic chiefs a statement he prepared for the attorney general when occupying the position of a special attorney of the department.

Mr. Spelling predicted the failure of the government suit in consequence of what he termed "the inexcusable neglect" of the department officials to name the Chicago and Alton railroad, Illinois Central, and the Rock Island as a connecting link between the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific systems.

Objects to Great Expense.

Mr. Spelling's memorandum is interesting not only because of its criticism of the department's failure properly to prepare its bill, but because of what he claims the decision of the court forecasts. He also objects to the great expense to which the government has been put in the conduct of litigation which he predicted in advance might be ineffective because of defective preparation.

"The question of whether the stock and bond control in common by the two lines constitutes a combination in restraint of interstate commerce," Mr. Spelling said in a memorandum he has prepared, "will finally turn to the question of whether the Southern Pacific and the Union Pacific are competing roads. Now it cannot be denied that they compete for Atlantic seaboard business in a general sense, just as every great system, either directly or indirectly, competes with any other.

"But it is, to say the least, doubtful if a case is made out by showing an arrangement for a common control of two carriers whose competition with each other is of such indirect character. For instance, there could be no doubt of direct competition between the Santa Fé and the Rock Island from Chicago to Kansas City. But it is doubtful if direct competition within the meaning of the statute exists between the Rock Island and the Illinois Central, both starting from Chicago but running in different directions.

Refers to Railway Exposures.

"So in the case of the Union and Southern Pacific. They start at common points on the Pacific coast, but one extends easterly to Council Bluffs while the other reaches the Gulf of Mexico in a southeasterly direction.

"Now it will be remembered that in 1906 and 1907 the interstate commerce commission, at the instigation of Mr. Roosevelt, investigated the whole matter of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific merger with a view to and in preparation of a possible suit to dissolve it under the anti-trust act. It will also be remembered with what spectacular effect the Chicago and Alton, the Illinois Central, and the Rock Island interests of Harriman were uncovered and exposed.

"These investments and interests were the connecting links which, when shown, constituted the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific merger an unlawful combination or trust beyond peradventure. A holding company merely controlling the stocks and bonds of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific companies could not control the competition of the one with the other in business between the east and Pacific coast, and between Chicago and New Orleans.

Where the Joker Comes In.

"But such a company controlling also the Rock Island, Alton, and Illinois Central could control it, and hence was clearly illegal. Now for the joker. The last three companies were not made parties to the suit nor were the Harriman (Union Pacific) deals in and control of their stocks and bonds mentioned in the complaint.

"The interstate commerce commission investigation was closed and a report made before the suit was started, and the defendants were allowed to delay answering month after month. After Mr. Wickersham came in I submitted to him a document pointing out the omissions as well as the consequences to which it might lead. It was my understanding that the defendants had not then answered. At any rate, no evidence had been taken.

Ample Time to Amend.

"There was ample time to have amended the complaint and brought in the other companies as parties defendant, fully authorized by the anti-trust act.

"But nothing was done. Thousands of dollars were spent taking evidence under the original complaint. But there remains to be stated something giving it the complexion of something worse than neglect. The testimony taken by Commissioner Lane and transcribed at great cost has all mysteriously disappeared. No doubt several copies of it were made, but in the spring of 1909 I could not find any trace of a copy."

OBITUARY.

MRS. FLORENCE OTIS BUCKINGHAM, wife of Henry W. Buckingham of Pittsfield and a daughter of the late Joseph E. Otis of Chicago, died yesterday morning at her home, 155 Pomeroy avenue, Pittsfield, Mass. She is survived by her husband, one daughter, and three sons. Mrs. Buckingham was a sister of Joseph F. Otis Jr., Ralph C. Otis, and Mrs. John E. Jenkins, all of Chicago. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon.

He had lived in Chicago for the last forty years, emigrating to American from Scotland in 1865. Surviving him are the widow and six children, Maud, May, George, Forest A., Mrs. George G. Chatfield, and Mrs. Rufus G. Collins. Funeral services will be at the home at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Interment will be in Mount Hope.

CALL SHERMAN LAW A WRECK

Noted Jurists and Publicists Say Decision Nullified It.

WAS INEFFECTIVE BEFORE.

Bryan Hints Bench Was Packed; Grosscup and Others Urge New Act.

"The Sherman anti-trust law, before its recent interpretation, was ineffective and impracticable, and no conscientious effort was made to enforce it impartially. On the other hand, the Standard Oil and Tobacco decisions making the law applicable only to monopolies which unreasonably restrain trade has practically nullified the act, rendering it impossible of enforcement for the purpose intended by its framers—viz.: to destroy the trusts."

This is practically the unanimous view of William J. Bryan, Samuel Untermyer, Judge Peter S. Grosscup, James M. Beck, Frederic R. Coudert, and other jurists and publicists, as expressed in a symposium in the North American Review for July.

Mr. Bryan takes the point of view that the court had no right to reverse itself, and hints that the bench of judges had been packed. He says:

"If bias is admitted—bias in the president, as well as in the judge—it is entirely possible that a president might unconsciously select judges who would, without any previous pledge, agree quite naturally with those who represent their side of the great fundamental issues that divide society."

"In the light of this decision, who is likely to be convicted of a criminal violation of the anti-trust law? We may as well recognize that we now have no criminal law against the trusts."

Views of Samuel Untermyer.

Mr. Untermyer, after asserting that the government by giving tacit assent to violations of the Sherman law has condoned all criminal offenses, says:

"From the very beginning the execution of the law was intrusted to unfriendly hands, and so it has continued to this day. That is the key to all our present difficulties and to the many worse ones that are to come."

Mr. Untermyer then proposes as a remedy the federal incorporation of all interstate trade corporations and the creation of a federal commission with control over the corporations, similar to that exercised by the interstate commerce commission over the railroads, the commission to have power to authorize and approve pooling or syndicate agreements for regulating competition, such agreements, however, not to restrict competition unreasonably or act in direct restraint of trade.

Law Never Enforced, Says Grosscup.

Judge Grosscup also points out how ineffective the old law was. He says:

"There was never a day that the Sherman law was executed, or that any one intended it should be executed, against all who fell literally under its condemnation.

"From the viewpoint of a large number of those to whom this inquiry is a matter of deep concern, perhaps a large majority yet, the Sherman act, as it now stands interpreted, will look like a gun from which the load has been extracted."

Only Largest Combines Sued.

Mr. Beck frankly admits the law could not be enforced. He says:

"The Sherman law was impossible of enforcement. To avoid committing a great, practical industrial nation to a policy of hara-kiri, successive attrneys general necessarily ignored its impartial enforcement, and as a sop to a supposed public sentiment brought suit only against a few of the larger and more unpopular combinations. A government of caprice was thus substituted for a government of law."

TRADE COMBINES CANNOT BE ENDED

President Hutchins Says Business Will Suffer if Trusts Are Killed.

REGULATION AS REMEDY.

Graduates of Michigan University Urged to Fight for Higher Morals.

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 25.—[Special.]—President Hutchins of the University of Michigan, in his baccalaureate address today, discussed the trust question. He said the great combines were here to stay; they cannot be eliminated, and the only solution of the question is to so regulate them that the rights of the public shall be conserved.

The speaker also warned the graduates to beware of the evils which they must face in the business world. He said the modern tendency to strike for results by any means has resulted in a loss of morals in business.

Over 900 seniors and several times that number of their friends crowded University hall to listen to the baccalaureate address.

Must Apply Their Education.

President Hutchins took for his subject, "The Spirit of the Times." "Commencement day marks for you the transition from the period of preparation to the period of actual experience in the affairs of life," he said.

"Knowledge and appreciation of the spirit of the times and an ability to adapt one's self thereto are necessary for the proper discharge of the obligations that every educated person owes to the public."

President Hutchins urged the graduates to get into sympathy and touch with the spirit of the times, but said: "I do not contend that you should accept the present as representing ideal conditions, or that you should always conform to the spirit of the times. In many ways the dominant spirit is wrong. The business world of today sanctions many methods that are indefensible, and much of your time must be given to an attempt to correct as far as you are able present tendencies and improve present conditions."

Makes Plea for Progressiveness.

He also urged progressiveness. "The life about us," he said, "is one grand, all embracing, forward movement in every field of activity. One characteristic of the times without which the progressiveness of the present could never have accomplished the marvelous results we see all about us is the tendency to combine interests and capital for the purpose of covering larger fields.

"We must be alive to the evils which may come from this combination and be ever on the alert to keep them within the bounds of proper control. We must realize that to do the business of the day these combinations are absolutely essential.

"Private means, individual effort, and control are no longer adequate for carrying out the many and far-reaching projects the modern brain conceives. Combinations have come to stay. To attempt to eliminate them would be futile, to destroy them unwise; for their destruction would be a fatal blow to modern progress. But to regulate them so that individual rights and interests and the rights and interests of the public shall be conserved is the great problem of the present and will be the continuing problem of the future."

DEFENDS 'BIG BUSINESS MEN'

College President Says They Are Victims of Public Error.

AMAZED AT NEW VIEWS.

Luther Declares Trust Magnates Are Honest and Good Persons.

Hartford, Conn., June 25.—In his baccalaureate sermon at Trinity college today, President Flavel S. Luther condemned indiscriminate attacks upon men because of business transactions.

"We read and hear much today," he said, "of evil, grasping selfishness in the business world. Men are held up by name to scorn and derision of the reading and listening world. Their methods of business are denounced in many quarters as of devilish origin and of fatal effect.

Men Are Personally Upright.

"There is something in all this, but the curious thing is that these men, whose names I suppose occur to you as I am speaking, when you come to meet them are honest, straight, upright, loving fathers, faithful husbands, Christian gentlemen, charitable, lovers of men and lovers of good.

"There is something pitiful in the genuine surprise with which, in the last few years, Christian gentlemen of the sort which I have described discovered that the things which they have done are regarded by the world as evil.

Good as Other Humans.

"I do not believe that these men are sinners above other men. They are the victims of the imperfect standard which has been placed in their hands. I believe that there is great danger in the indiscriminate attack upon men who have innocently worked themselves into an unhappy relation to their fellow men."

DEFICIT FOR SAENGERFEST MAY CAUSE PROGRAM CHANGE.

English Tongue Probably Will Be Recognized in Future as Result of $10,000 Loss at Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 25.—[Special.]—As the result of a deficit which probably will reach nearly $10,000 in the Milwaukee Saengerfest, there may be radical changes in the plans for the next fest, to be held, according to today's vote, at Louisville.

The eastern delegations are advocating a change of system, by which the English tongue will be recognized in fest programs. At present every number is in German.

Today was devoted to the annual meeting at which the officers were elected. Then came the fest parade and the Volksfest at a local amusement park.

Charles G. Schmidt of Cincinnati was re-elected president. Other officers and directors elected follow: First vice president, William Ahrens, Chicago; secretary, Adam Linck, St. Louis; treasurer, John P. Frenzel, Indianapolis.

Two Hurt in Elevator Shaft.

Robert Carroll, 3309 Congress street, and John Treat, 2225 Spaulding avenue, were injured yesterday at the Harris Trust building by a descending elevator. They were working in the pit of the shaft.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Chance's reconstructed warriors fought their way through rain, flood, mud, sunshine, and Pirates back into a tie for the league leadership yesterday when they won the last round of the six day go as you please with Pittsburg by a score of 4 to 2.

Probably no combat fraught with so much importance to each combatant ever was played under conditions anywhere nearly resembling those with which Cubs and Pirates contended in this scrap. The field, already sodden from twenty-four hours of soaking, resembled at the start of the game the man who went through a thrashing machine. Their condition was "as good as could be expected." A light shower right ahead of game time did not improve that condition any, nor did it make it much worse, so the battle was begun with the umpires under sealed orders to go to a finish no matter what happened. There was no chance for Pittsburg to stay over and play the game off today and no future date could be agreed upon for a postponement without the aid of the board of directors of the league.

Fans Look for Shelter.

Before the third inning was half over it began raining, and for a while it sure did pour some. The box seat holders and the more plebeian bleacherites were driven to cover and were given shelter in the roofed sections of the plant. But the umps and players paid no more attention to the downpour than if it had been so much applause showered on them. As Ump Johnstone afterward admitted, he was not going to stop that game as long as he could see over the top of the water. It was for that reason he went behind the bat instead of Eason. He is taller than Eason and could see in deeper water.

By the fifth inning the flood began to subside gradually and then the mud appeared. It was deeper than the Culebra cut in spots. If you don't believe it, ask McKechnie of the visitors. He slid into it trying to steal a base in the fifth inning and came up resembling a cross between a drowned prairie dog and a muckraking hog. Considerable of the real estate so carefully manicured by Charley Kuhn went back to Pittsburg last night in McKechnie's suit roll, for it was impossible to find a vacuum cleaner open on Sunday, and no other process would eliminate half what McKechnie's uniform picked up.

Cubs Lead Before Deluge.

The Cubs were leading by two runs when the deluge started, and, of course, they were anxious to finish a legal game. When that had been done the conditions were no worse than in the previous round and there was promise of slight betterment, so the umpires kept the game going, despite the willingness of the Cubs to stop with enough innings to give them the victory and, incidentally, invalidate the rain checks. Then the sun came out and they had to play to the end, although another drizzle or two kept the dough on top of the ground well moistened.

Twice during the combat Joe Tinker waded in from short field and dug Richie out of the hole into which he had pitched himself. The first time Joe used nothing but his spikes to scrape away enough mud to let Richie see the plate. That was in the fifth, when Lurid Lew was passing Pirate after Pirate because his front hoof sank so deeply into the mound that he could not see the plate when he let go of the ball.

The second time Joe acted as groundkeeper was in the sixth, and this time he was furnished a shovel by the vigilant Red Gallagher, and the vigorous way in which the actor shortstop used the implement of toil indicated that some of his ancestors must have helped bury or dig up Cap. Kidd's treasures. Each time Joe turned digger he saved the game, for each shovelful of mud excavated a Pirate batsman's grave.

McKechnie Aid to Champs.

The same McKechnie who robbed us of so much costly real estate helped mightily to win the game for us. His attempt to steal second in the fifth was all that enabled Richie to get the side out without a run. Lew passed four Pirates in that session, and if McKechnie had stood still on first base there is no telling what might have happened. Perhaps he thought he could swim the last half of the distance under water and so elude being touched. That was what he tried to do, anyway. Perhaps he thought the curtain of rain was so thick that Archer would not see him. Perhaps he thought it would be impossible for Jimmy to peg that wet ball any straighter than Richie was pitching it.

Whatever his thought, he had two thinks. Archer pegged the wringing horsehide as straight as an arrow. Zimmerman plucked it out of the rain and splashed headlong into the Sargossa sea surrounding second base, stabbing the amphibious McKechnie somewhere between the ivory and the spikes, and saved disaster. That was all that kept four bases on balls in one inning from producing one run, with the chance for a lot more.

After two innings what is known as baseball was practically impossible. The batsmen could not hit anything on the ground that would go safe unless it splashed mud in the fielders' eyes. The ball could not travel fast enough. The only way to hit it safe was on a line or in the air, as the fielders could not excavate themselves from their tracks quickly enough to go far for anything that was moving fast.

Luck Favors P. L.'s Men.

It was purely a matter of luck, and both teams staked their chances on their luck. The Cubs were the luckier, in that more of their swipes went safe. Neither pitcher could do more than get the ball over with about as much on it as Mary Garden wears when impersonating Salome, and frequently they could not do even that.

Richie was the more successful in escaping safe swats, as the Pirates made only seven hits off him while the Cubs were touching Leifield for eleven hits, but Lefty had better luck in getting the ball over the plate, perhaps because he is taller. He gave only one pass to seven issued by Lurid Lew.

The finish was so close that when Hans Wagner stepped to bat in the ninth inning two Pirates were waiting to score, two runs would tie the count, and two were out. Moreover, Hans had made four straight hits off Richie in his previous trips to the pan. This time he soaked out another liner, but this one, fortunately, went in the direction of Good, who did not have to move for it but gracefully gathered it in and ended the combat.

The Cubs got two of their runs while conditions were partially sane. Zimmerman opened the second inning with a two bagger and was sacrificed ahead by Doyle. Tinker gave Zimmy plenty of time to paddle home by soaking a double into the left field temporary seats. Good scored Joe with a single. Archer followed with a safety, but Good was nipped at the pan when he tried to score on Richie's rap to Wagner. Sheckard flied out.

Tinker Rescues Richie.

With that short lead they played right into the teeth of the storm that broke in the third inning. Things were so sloppy in the fifth that it looked as if the advantage was going to slip through the Cubs' slippery fingers. McKechnie drew a pass, but Wilson struck out. With Gibson up McKechnie started to steal second, with the finish already inadequately described. Then Gibson, Leifield, and Carey walked, because Richie could not get one ball in six over the pan. Here Tinker dug Richie out of the first hole, and as a result Clarke flied to Schulte, leaving the sacks full.

In the sixth inning Richie had more trouble. He passed Byrne. Wagner rapped out his third single, and Miller walked, filling the bases, with nobody out. Tinker took the shovel to dig Richie out this time, and performed so well that only one run trickled over the plate. McKechnie popped out, but Wilson drove a fly far enough into right to let Byrne swim home. Gibson hit to Richie and was third out.

The Cubs annexed a run in the seventh on singles by Archer, Richie, and Sheckard and a long fly by Schulte. It took four blows of the bat to get a runner around. In the eighth singles by Hofman and Good and a double by Doyle, with a suicide by Zimmy in the midst of the hitting, pushed another tally home.

It was well, for the Pirates rallied a bit in the ninth. Gibson doubled to start it. Flynn, batting for Leifield, was thrown out at first. Carey walked, and Clarke singled, scoring Gibson. Byrne forced Clarke at second and put Carey on third. Right there Wagner walked up and fouled off one, then soaked a liner straight out to where Good was standing. Goody! Goody!

CUB SYDELIGHTS.

Off day today.

Next home game next Sunday.

Wagner fell flat on his back across the foul line after catching Good's foul fly back of first base in the seventh.

Several times when a foul ball splashed into the dough around the home plate Archer had to remove his mask and wipe the splash out of his eyes before he could continue the game.

The Cubs will go to St. Louis tonight for three games in two days, beginning with a double header tomorrow. They jump to Cincinnati for Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

The Pirates have the advantage of one game in the season's series with the Cubs today. Pittsburg has won eight games and Chicago seven, with seven more battles to be fought.

There would have been no worry in the ninth if Sheckard's spikes had not slipped when he started after Gibson's fly. Before he could get under way it was too late and the hit went for two bases.

One speculator, who did not believe the weather predictions, was stuck plenty. Ten minutes before game time he was trying to dispose of twenty or twenty-five box seats at the Polk street L station at cut rates and everybody gave him the laugh.

Richie was the victim in an unusual double play by the Pirates in the seventh. The bases were full and one out when Schulte lifted a fly to Clarke far enough out to let Archer score from third. Richie tried to make third, but Clarke threw the ball there instead of to the plate. The result was Richie's finish.

The Cubs pulled a freak double play in the second. Wagner was on second with one out. McKechnie hit to Richie, who threw to Doyle ahead of Hans. Wagner gave them a chase, but finally was tagged by Tinker, who slipped and fell after the touch. While seated in the mud Joe tossed the ball to Zimmy in time to get McKechnie, who tried to make an extra base on the play.

Wagner used a bat with a flattened space near its end the first two times up. When he came to bat in the sixth Archer called Johnstone's attention to the stick and it was ruled out. Wagner grabbed another and stung his third straight single into left just to show that it made no difference to him whether he batted with a barn door or a toothpick.

Doyle sacrificed to advance Zimmerman from second to third in the second inning. Wagner picked up the bunt and tried to tag Doyle out, but Jimmy toddled back with Hans in pursuit until he reached the plate. There Doyle stopped and Wagner, standing a step or two away, blew a deep breath at the runner, trying to blow him out apparently. Doyle retreated a couple of steps beyond the plate and Wagner turned his back. Doyle then tried to sneak up and pass Hans, but the umpire ruled that he went out of line when he retreated across the plate, consequently was out anyway.

ALEXANDER "PLAYS UP STAGE."

Phillie Hurler Informs Owner Fogel That Moore and He Are Only Real Pitchers with Team.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 25.—[Special.]—Grover Cleveland Alexander, the Phillie hurler who just broke into fast company but who has been doing wonderful work on the mound for the Phillies, is "in Dutch" with President Horace Fogel of the team, and all because Grove thinks he knows more about running a baseball team than does the said Horace.

The trouble started yesterday afternoon. "Say, Horace," said Alexander, "you are making a great big blunder. All you need is to carry two pitchers only. If you will figure it out all you need is Alexander and Moore. If you will make Moore go out and pitch as he knows how and should, we will alternate every other day and we will go through this National league as water goes through a sieve."

The other players looked at Alexander in surprise. Fogel still is wondering if Grover Cleveland really meant what he said or was just kidding.

Coss Back to the Cubs.

Bloomington, Ill., June 25.—[Special.]—Because his salary demands are above the Three Eyes limit, Pitcher Bernard Coss, the Mendota semi-pro turned over to Danville by the Chicago Cubs, will be turned back. He insists upon receiving major league pay.

ST. LOUIS TAKES SECOND, 2-1.

Golden's Effectiveness in Last Gives Bresna Hens Contest.

Cincinnati, O., June 25.—St. Louis and Cincinnati broke even in a double header, the locals winning the first game 5 to 1, and St. Louis the second, 2 to 1. Hoblitzel's batting and Suggs' pitching featured the opening contest, while Golden's effectiveness defeated Cincinnati in the second. It rained during the first game, the contest being called for fifteen minutes during the fourth inning. Score:

MR. PAGE THREATENS TO FIGHT.

Rustler Official Says He Will Not Permit Sale of Sweeney and Herzog by Russell.

Boston, Mass., June 25.—[Special.]—If President Russell of the Boston National league baseball club attempts to sell Bill Sweeney and Charley Herzog of the present team, as reported, he is apt to run into a legal fight. It has been intimated that L. Coues Page, the club's vice president, would never stand for the sale of these players. Mr. Page is the insurging member of the board and would try hard to win over others to his point of view. Boston fans would back him up, as these two players are all that is left of the original fighting team.

DOVES WIN; ARBITER BEATEN.

Umpire Given Beating by Baltimore Mob for Handing Boston Advantage in Close Decision.

Baltimore, Md., June 25.—The Boston Nationals defeated Baltimore of the Eastern league at Back River today, 6 to 5. A close decision at the plate in the eighth inning by Umpire Pensmith cut off a run for Baltimore that would have tied the score. When the game ended a rush was made for Pensmith by a mob of bleacherites and he was struck several times but not seriously injured. A missile struck a spectator and caused a scalp wound. Several arrests were made.

MRS. LEACH'S DEATH MYSTERY.

Wife of Pittsburg Ball Player Said to Have Attempted Suicide on Two Occasions.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 25.—[Special.]—Mystery surrounds the death of Mrs. Thomas W. Leach, wife of the center fielder of the Pittsburg baseball club. Mrs. Leach, who is reported to have committed suicide, died last night at the suburban general hospital at Bellevue, where she was taken several days ago from the Leach farm near Emsworth. It is said Mrs. Leach attempted suicide twice before. Mrs. Leach, whose maiden name was Trask, was the player's second wife.

BRENNAN HURLS NO-HIT GAME.

Former Phillie Southpaw Shuts Out Jersey City Without a Bingle or a Run in Contest.

Jersey City, N. J., June 25.—[Special.]—The former southpaw of the Phillies of the National league did not allow a hit or a run in the Eastern league game which his team, Buffalo, won from the locals today, score 1 to 0. Jones, who twirled for the Jersey City, was also effective, permitting the Bisons only four hits. It was Brennan's safety in the eighth inning which scored the only run of the game. Both flingers received errorless and at times sensational support.

SHAY FEELS UMPIRE'S FIST.

Arbiter Hayes Swings Right on Kansas City Man's Jaw During Game at Columbus.

Columbus, O., June 25.—Manager Shay of Kansas City was taken off the field twice in the third inning of the first game with the local team today and just before the second one began. Before going the first time Shay trampled on Umpire Hayes and got a right swing on the jaw in return. Alleged use of profane language brought his final banishment. Umpire Eddinger ejected Shortstop Barbeau in the eighth inning of the first game.

CHARGE HOLMES WITH MUTINY.

Southern Officials Hold Former Mobile Manager Attempted to Keep Players from Park.

Memphis, Tenn., June 25.—[Special.]—"Ducky" Holmes, former National league player and American association manager, may be asked by the national commission to explain why he should not be indefinitely punished for what the Southern league officials charge as "inciting baseball mutiny."

Southern League President Kavanaugh has called a meeting to probe charges made by Players Fiene, Smith, Fox, Rian, and Campbell that they enjoyed "side contracts" promising bonuses from Holmes, which is in violation of the Southern salary agreement. They signed with Holmes as manager of the Mobile club. Mobile official deny knowledge of any "side contracts," and make counter charges that Holmes attempted to keep players from the park to cause forfeiture of games by Mobile.

Mobile recently dismissed Holmes. Both sides claim they will appeal to the national board and then to the national commission if necessary.

RECRUIT FOR RED SOX IN FIELD.

President Taylor Signs a San Francisco Collegian in the Hope of Strengthening Third Base.

Boston, Mass., June 25.—[Special.]—President Taylor is scouring the country for infielders, as he realizes the Red Sox infield is lamentably weak. If he can assure himself that any player reported has sufficient class he endeavors to sign him up. The latest recruit is a youngster named Giannini. He played third base this season for a San Francisco college. He reported here yesterday afternoon. The third sack is one of the weak spots.

Rain Prevents Semi-Pro Games.

Semi-pro players were drowned out again by the rain yesterday, only one game on the big circuit being played. On the north and west sides rain fell steadily for an hour before the games and whatever chance there was of playing was prevented by the sloppy condition of the fields. Almost without exception the prairie games were called off.

SAM WELLERISMS.

Sox and Tigers again today and tomorrow. The prediction is there'll be no shower to help out today.

"Young Cy" Young or Jesse Baker, the Puget Sound southpaw, will do the slabbing today for Chicago.

Rollie Zeider's split finger has healed sufficiently to permit his coaching. He'll be able to play the utility role again by the end of the week.

Ed Walsh never pitched more effectively against Detroit than in the four innings he worked. He gave only two hits, one made by Schaller and one by Jones. He struck out six men, one of them being Ty Cobb.

McIntyre took his third swing at a wild pitch in the eighth inning and got to first base. There was a man on second at the time and the mistake put him on third. Two were out, however, and the next batter hit a fly ball to Cobb.

Ty made an attempt to catch a liner by Walsh to right center in the sixth inning that no other outfielder in the league would have thought of catching. After a splendid run, he dived after the ball, barely getting a hand on it, and sliding at least ten feet on his stomach in the wet grass. Walsh got two bases on the hit.

Cobb tried to trick "Shano" Collins out at second in that fifth inning rally. Collins was on first, when Tannehill hit a short low fly to center. Cobb came in as if making a desperate effort to catch the ball. This caused Collins to stop midway between the bases. Cobb didn't have a chance to get the ball, but nabbed it on the first bound and shot to Bush at second, Collins getting there just an instant ahead of the throw.

Sullivan was on first when Walsh made his double in the sixth inning and got up such speed that he couldn't stop at third. Manager Duffy was coaching on the bag and stopped him and after they had talked it over midway between the bases "Sully" tried to go on home, but was thrown out by ten feet. On dry ground Sully probably would have been able to have set the brakes at the third corner.

GIANTS SWAMP JOLIET, 14 TO 3.

Local Team Sews Up the Game in Third Round, When Seven Runs Cross the Plate.

American Giants defeated the Joliet Standards at Schorlings' park, 14 to 3. The contest was played on a heavy field and during a drizzling rain. The Giants sewed up the game in the early innings on heavy hitting, the third session being especially disastrous to the visitors, when the home team batted around, scoring seven runs. Lindsay fanned fourteen of the Joliets. A catch by Duncan and stops by Inglis and Carney were the fielding features. Score:

BY SAM WELLER.

One might justly accuse Charles A. Comiskey of controlling the wind and weather after what happened at the south side ball park yesterday afternoon. A most timely shower entered into the contest between the White Sox and Detroit Tigers, and with its aid the Chicago athletes trimmed the league leaders handsomely by a score of 8 to 4.

The part played by the rain was really remarkable, for it came just at the right time and left at the right time. With close to 14,000 persons present it meant quite a sum of money had been taken in at the gate. In order to keep the money four and on-half innings of a game had to be finished. Otherwise the patrons' rain checks would be good. Before the game began it seemed it would rain at any moment, and the managers stole about five minutes, starting the game a bit early with the hope of holding the cash.

Detroit batted in two runs in the first two innings, while the Sox were helpless to score in the first four. Just as the Tigers began the first half of the fifth it began raining lightly, but threatening to break into a downpour in a few minutes. Detroit had two men on the bases and only one out, and unless that half inning could be finished rain checks would have to be given to the crowd. Ty Cobb was at bat. He bounded one to the second baseman, forcing another runner at second, and Tyrus deliberately loafed to first base, allowing himself to be doubled, and thus end the four and a half innings.

Story of the Six Runs.

But the rain was not yet heavy enough to stop play, so the Tigers took the field and the Sox went to bat. John Collins bunted one toward third base, and because of the slippery grass Moriarty dared not hurry after the ball, so "Shano" beat his throw to first base. Tannehill rapped a single to center field. Then Sullivan bunted toward first base and Delehanty came in, scooped the ball, and slipped and fell in the wet grass, kicking the ball out of his reach.

This filled the bases and the rain was coming down hard, but there's no umpire in the world who would feel like calling time under such conditions, though they were unfit for playing. Doc White followed with a slashing single to left field, though on dry ground Ownie Bush easily would have gathered up the ball. This let two runs home and tied the count and left two men on the bases. McIntyre smashed one past the pitcher and Bush managed to get it, but Delehanty dropped the wet ball at first base and the bases were filled again and still no one was out. Capt. Lord laced a single to right field, bringing in two more men, and when Bush tried to relay the wet ball to third base he heaved it to the grand stand, letting a third man come in and permitting the captain to reach third. A sacrifice fly followed, which brought Lord home with the sixth run of that round; then the Tigers managed to get the side out.

Shower Over After Rally.

By this time the shower was practically over. As soon as the Sox took the field the wind shifted to the northeast, the sun came out, and the water ran off the diamond, and, though they put up a desperate fight to the finish, the Tigers couldn't overcome that lead and the Sox and weather won the game.

Without that rain, that caused the Tigers' defense to crack in the fifth inning, it is doubtful if the Sox would have won. Detroit managed to get a couple more runs in the sixth inning, but Ed Walsh was called to the rescue when Doc White seemed to weaken, and Big Ed shut them off, winding up the game in the ninth inning by striking out Ty Cobb.

White was hit hard enough in the five and a fraction innings he slabbed to have let the Tigers score half a dozen times, but partly because of their carelessness and mostly because of some sharp fielding by the Sox, the visitors were held to two tallies. Nine of the eleven base hits were made while the doctor was on the mound. Billy Sullivan broke up one rally in the third inning by throwing out Ty Cobb and Sam Crawford at second base. A first inning rally for the Tigers was stopped when one of them was run down between the bases. Another rally in the fourth was broken when Matty McIntyre captured a vicious line drive to right field, and the rally in the fifth was ended by Cobb's loafing into a double play to help the club owners keep the gate money.

Willett Strong at Start.

Willett was slabbing for Detroit and set the Sox down in order for three rounds. In the fourth McIntyre opened with a triple over Cobb's head, but Willett tightened and the Sox couldn't get Matty home. It seemed Willett would go through the whole game in fine shape, but when the rain came everything was turned upside down in a hurry. He called for no less than five dry balls in pitching that one round, but it did no good.

Willett gave his place at bat to a pinch hitter in the sixth and young Mr. Lafitte finished the pitching for the Tigers. The Sox piled up base hits on him, but were able to get only two more runs around the circuit.

Cobb started the first attack for Detroit in the opening round after two men were out. He lashed a single to left field and Crawford beat out a high bounder over White's head. Delehanty drove to right field for one base, sending Cobb home and Crawford to third. Del then started a double steal, but was cleverly run down without letting Crawford go home from third.

In the second Moriarty began with a single and O'Leary sacrificed. Stanage rolled out to Bodie, but Willett lined to the flagpole for two bags, scoring Moriarty. Drake's pop to Lord ended the round.

With this good start and rain threatening every minute the Tigers had no reason to expect the unexpected in the Sox fifth. But a four run lead isn't much for the Tigers to overcome and they set about to do it at once. Sam Crawford belted one to center field for a single. Delehanty raised a long fly to left field and Dougherty backed up almost to the fence, then dropped the ball. This let Wabo Sam reach third and Del second. White put an extra twist on the ball and hit Moriarty in the shoulder, filling the bases. Then Doc was canned and Walsh called to the mound. Walsh fanned both O'Leary and Stanage, but Schaller was sent up to bat for Willett and singled to center, scoring Crawford and Del. Then Davy Jones replaced Drake and Walsh fanned him.

Sluggers Out in Order.

In the seventh the Tigers' sluggers, Bush, Cobb, and Crawford, died in order. The Sox then did some fancy base running in their half of that round and scored two more runs. One was out when Lord beat out an infield hit. He promptly stole second and Jimmy Callahan drove him home with a single to center. Bodie scraped a single past second, putting Cal on the middle bag, then the two stars executed a clever double steal. This enabled Callahan to score when Dougherty flied to Cobb, though he would have been out if Stanage could have held on to the ball, which took a bad bound. Collins' fly ended the round.

In the final effort the Tigers got a man on first base with one out, but Walsh fanned both Bush and Cobb and the game was over.

Brady, Simpson, and McDermott to Tackle Knot for Open Golf Honors.

"DOPE" SHOWS NO CHOICE

Work of Three Men in Event Just Closed Indicates the Fight Will Be Close.

BY J. G. DAVIS.

Monday, generally a blue day for the golfing fraternity, is today one of the banner days of the year, the national open championship being set for decision at the Chicago Golf club.

This afternoon at 1:30 o'clock George O. Simpson of the Wheaton Golf club, M. J. Brady of the Wollaston Golf club of Boston, and John J. McDermott of the Atlantic Country club will play eighteen holes to decide first, second, and third places. These three players tied in the regular play at seventy-two holes with scores of 307, a remarkable feature of the tie being that Brady and Simpson had exactly similar scores each round, these being 76, 77, 79, and 75, something that never has happened in any of the sixteen previous competitions for the title. On Saturday Brady also had 75 and 79.

Today's triangular battle looks like an even proposition. George Simpson, who was with the La Grange club last year, won the amateur championship of Scotland in 1907 and subsequently turned professional. His first performance of note on this side of the water was gaining the position of runner-up in the Western Open championship at the Beverly Country club last year, when he was defeated by Charles Evans Jr. of Chicago in the final.

Brady Made Fine Showing.

Brady is a Boston boy who for several years has been climbing nearer the top of the championship ladder. On Friday and Saturday, both on the dry course of the first day and the saturated surface of the second, he played remarkably consistent golf, and on this performance he seems to have an equal chance today.

McDermott, a former Philadelphia caddie, has had a spectacular rise in the golfing world. Last year he was runner-up to Alec Smith in the national open event, after the playoff of a triple tie, and in the Metropolitan open championship he again was second to Alec Smith, getting 303 to 301 by last year's champion.

Alec Smith, who was shorn of his title last Saturday, fell out of the money list for the first time in the last six times he has competed. He was first in 1906 and 1910, second in 1905, and third in 1908 and 1909. Among the others who cut in the prize list on Saturday were several veteran campaigners. Fred McLeod was in the money in 1907-'08-'10, Gilbert Nichols in 1906-'07-'10, Jack Hutchinson in 1908-'10, H. H. Barker in 1909-'10, Peter Robertson in 1907-'08-'10, A. Ross in 1906, and G. Sargent in 1909.

Vanguard to Grand Rapids.

The advance guard of the local professionals who will compete in the western open championship at the Kent Country club of Grand Rapids tomorrow and the three following days left last night, George O'Neil of Beverly, Jack Croke of Westward Ho, Walter Fovargue of Skokie, Jack Folly of Chicago, and J. L. Daray of Ridge going, with W. C. Sherwood of Memphis. Secretary E. A. Eulass, who left at midnight, announced that entries will be received at the Kent Country club until this afternoon. He received the entries of Richard Jackson and E. L. Warner by wire and was handed those of Robert McWatt of Baltimore and C. P. Nelson of Battle Creek. He expects nearly a dozen more by this morning's mail, and these with those sent to Grand Rapids will bring the field to over sixty.

It is quite likely that McDermott and Brady, now they have had to remain over to play off their tie in the national event, will make the Michigan trip. Brady had his entry made out last week, but when he found some of the eastern men were not going he withheld it. As McNamara, Campbell, and Hutchinson are entered the little Boston player may change his mind. Pairings for the event will be made at Grand Rapids this afternoon.

Evans May Play in Tourney.

There is a possibility that Charles Evans Jr., the western open title holder, may arrive in time to play. In a letter received by his mother he stated he was going to London and Paris and expected to sail for home on the 17th. It is possible he may remain to compete on the British open championship, which starts at Sandwich tomorrow. Evans played at the North Berwick course, getting 36 and 33, par for the course being 40 each way.

First prize in the western open is $200 and second $100, the other six running from $50 to $10. Four prizes will be awarded for the best four scores at 72 holes. The sixteen players having low scores at the first 36 holes will qualify for match play for the championship, the other contestants continuing at 36 holes medal play for the consolation prizes. The entry fee is $5.

TRY OUT FOR LOCAL BIRDMEN

Aviators Who Will Compete in August Meet to Fly July 4.

TRIALS SET FOR AEROVILLE.

Kreamer, Young, and Brodie Among Those Who Will Perform on Holiday.

BY KEENE GARDINER.

An aero meet in the nature of a tryout for aviators to represent Chicago in the coming August meet will be staged by the Aero Club of Illinois at its new aviation field, Aeroville, Fifty-second avenue and Sixteenth street, on July 4.

Between fifteen and twenty aviators who have been practicing in Chicago will participate. No attempt will be made to break records and the meeting will be held principally to show members of the club and local enthusiasts the progress which has been made in the flying game since the new field was completed.

Among the local aviators who will compete are Kreamer, in his prototype of the Curtiss biplane; Claude Young, in a Curtiss mounted with an engine of his own design, and Otto Brodie, a well known aviator who has had much experience with a Farman biplane. Kraemer and Brodie have made successful flights, Kraemer having passed some time making exhibition ascents in the southern states. He is also credited with making the first perfect flight on the new field.

Brodie a Well Known Flyer.

Brodie is well known in Chicago, Washington, and New York as an aviator. His biplane is the same flyer that Grahame-White used in England and in America and has done some excellent work.

The July meet will consist of contests in starting, grass cutting, jumping, turning on the ground and in the air, and flying at a low altitude. Prizes will be awarded the winners. While the public is invited, the directors of the new field are unwilling to make the affair assume more than "'trial" proportions.

The aviation field is being scraped and leveled. About twenty aeronauts have entered for the August event and are anxious to secure trials before entering the contest. It is with the object of affording the foreign birdmen an opportunity to become familiar with local conditions, and also give the local men as much practice as possible that the work on the new field is being pushed to the limit.

Officials to Visit Detroit.

James E. Plew, Harold F. McCormick, and a number of local aero fans are expected to go to Detroit, Mich., next week to attend a meet which is scheduled for that city. A number of aviators who have entered the local event will contest in the Detroit meet and the Chicago men are anxious to get a line on them.

NEED $1,000 FOR A. B. C. MEET

That Amount Must Be Raised to Secure Tourney.

COMMITTEE MEETS JULY 8.

Subscription Now Being Secured to Get the Championships.

Boosters who are working to bring the 1912 tournament of the American Bowling congress to this city must raise another $1,000 this week in order to complete the legal organization of the Chicago Bowling Tournament company before the members of the national executive committee meet here on July 8 to sign a contract for the tournament.

Over $500 in cash was raised in the loop district on Saturday, bringing the total now on hand to over $1,300. A fund of a trifle over $2,000 must be in the bank by the time the committee meets the local promoters.

Charles Horndorf, Gus Burkhardt, and Mattie Faetz have been constituted a north side committee to get subscriptions in that part of the city, while Adam Dernbach and Louis Jiruska will act as a committee on the west side. Jimmy Blouin, the national champion, is taking care of Blue Island, while L. L. Vandersyde is drumming up contributions from Roseland and surrounding territory. All checks should be mailed this week to A. Lipman, treasurer, 123 North Clark street.

Over 700 of the $10 shares have now been sold, but the raising of the cash to pay for them is proving somewhat harder. The local subscription already has reached St. Louis' total sale at the time the 1911 meet ended and little fear is expected that the $10,000 will be sold before Sept. 15. So far the stock has been limited entirely to active bowlers and alleykeepers, and the promoters hope to keep all of it in their hands.

OCEAN TO OCEAN TOUR STARTS FROM ATLANTIC CITY TODAY.

Four Private Cars to Compete in First Transcontinental Tour of Its Kind Ever Planned.

New York, June 25.—[Special.]—The first transcontinental automobile tour every attempted in this country starts tomorrow morning from Atlantic City, where the rear wheels of each car will be rolled in the surf and no more salt water will touch the cars until the front wheels are driven into the Pacific ocean.

There have been more than a few cars that have crossed the American continent, but never before has there been a regularly scheduled tour planned, and the fact that fourteen private owners of cars of one make have become enthusiastic over the prospects of a run of such magnitude presents a new situation in private automobiling.

The first stop of the tour tomorrow will be Philadelphia, and from there on until the Pacific ocean heaves in sight there will be no attempt made to burn up the roads or shove each other off the sides into ditches just to get by. The tour has been laid out in easy stages, and the California coast is scheduled for July 27.

Tuesday's stop will be at Baltimore, then the route includes Washington, Cumberland, Md., Uniontown, Pa., Columbus, Indianapolis, Chicago; from Chicago the route taken by L. L. Whitman in his run of ten days and a half will be adhered to.

PARIS AUTO RACE TO BABLOT.

Drives Delage Car to Victory in Grand Prix with Average Speed of 55½ Miles Per Hour.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

BOULOGNE, June 25.—Bablot won the grand prix race for motors today in a Delage car in 7:02:41. Beillot was second in a Peugeot. The speed for the winner was at the rate of 55½ miles an hour.

The Ford, the only American car entered, was not allowed to start, as the officials considered it did not comply with the regulations of the race. The committee said the car was not absolutely a stock model and demanded that it be loaded up to the full weight of the others. Henri Depasse, the Ford agent, declined to carry 400 pounds dead weight and was compelled to withdraw.

Thirteen of the competitors finished. There were no fatalities, though two of the cars were smashed. The drivers were not injured.

KIEL, Germany, June 25.—The emperor's yacht Meteor again was successful in today's race, defeating Germania, owned by Lieut. GARY JULY 4 BOUT ATTRACTS Interest Keen in Coming Thompson-Brown Fight.

BOTH TRAINING FOR CLASH.

Affair to Be Staged at Open Air Arena, Seating 5,000 Persons.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Local fistic fans already are taking a keen interest in the ten round bout between "Cyclone Johnny" Thompson and George "Knockout" Brown, which will be held before the National A. C. of Gary on July 4. Although the members of the Gary A. C., which held the last show, nearly made a farce of the affair, the National A. C. claims it is in a position to make "good" any offers which it extends to the fighters, and there will be no delay in staging the bouts such as featured last Friday's bill.

Realizing he has a chance of climbing another rung in the ladder of pugilistic fame, Brown is working out every day at O'Connell's. The Greek boxes with any one who cares to don the mitts and fights in realistic style, landing punches as if he were in the ring.

According to reports from Sycamore, where Thompson is doing his work, the farmer is doing a lot of training to get into the best possible shape. Johnny knows Brown is a tough, rugged fellow who can take a lot of punishment and land a stiff wallop, and wants to be in the best of shape for the contest.

The bout will be staged in the open air in the arena which is under construction. When completed the arena will seat nearly 5,000 persons and will be covered with a portable roof shielding the spectators from the weather. The arena is seven minutes' ride from the center of the city and three railroads run within two blocks of the battle ground. After July 4 officials of one of the railroads have promised to run special trains to the steel city which will land the patrons one block from the arena. Sam Sax, president of the National A. C., has received assurances from the authorities the bouts will not be interfered with if they are conducted within the law.

President Sax has taken steps to protect his patrons against thieves and pickpockets, and other precautions will be taken to add to the comfort of those who patronize the shows. It is the intention of the promoters to hold shows at least once a month, and the prices will be in accordance with the talent of the fighers who meet in the main bout. Tickets for the July 4 show can be secured at Bloom & Mayer's, 134 Clark street.

Packey McFarland, the stockyards lightweight, will begin training today at O'Connell's for his bout with "Young" Ahern at Albany, N. Y., on July 3. Packey was not crazy to fight again until fall, but the inducements were such that the south sider could not refuse.

Charley Lavigne, who has assumed the management of "Kid" Broad, the Philadelphia fighter, is after any of the middleweights who wants his protégé's game. Broad is a tough, husky fellow who can stand a lot of punishment.

Danny Goodman and Jack Roberts have been matched to box twenty rounds in private in the vicinity of Chicago within the next two weeks. A lot of feeling exists between these fighters and a good mill should result.

AS D'ATOUT WINS FRENCH FEATURE

Marquis de Ganay's Colt Given Hard Race by Frank J. Gould's Combourg.

FAVORITE NAG IN RUCK.

Alcantara II., Baron de Rothschild's Entry in Prix de Paris, Outclassed.

PARIS, June 25.—The Grand Prix de Paris, the blue ribbon event of the French turf, was won today by Marquis de Ganay's black colt As d'Atout by MacDonald II. Frank J. Gould's bay colt Combourg was second, close up, and Michel Ephrussi's English horse Matchless a bad third. Yvette, owned by Mason Carnes, a New Yorker who resides in Paris, ran.

President Fallieres of the republic, accompanied by the members of his cabinet, attended the races, which were the closing event of the Paris season, notwithstanding the lowering clouds and two sharp showers of rain. Many diplomats and a great gathering of society people as well as a host of Americans who had come to Long Champs from the coronation, witnessed the race, which proved a spirited struggle between As d'Atout and the Gould horse.

Both Horses at Long Odds.

Both horses were at long odds, the former at 16 to 1 and the latter at 15 to 1, but in the stretch they had the race to themselves. Coming home to the wire the two raced head and head, but Combourg was in a bad position against the ropes and Reiff, who had the mount, was compelled to give way and was forced to go to the outside, losing the race by a bare length. Three lengths separated the second and third horses. Reiff promptly filed a protest against the winner on the ground that the rider of As d'Atout had forced him to the ropes, but the stewards refused to sustain the objection.

The Prix de Paris is a 3 year old event at 1 mile and 7 furlongs. The value of the stake this year was $70,200. Alcantara II., owned by Baron de Rothschild, which early in June won the French Derby, was a hot public favorite in the betting at 9 to 10. Alcantara had captured the derby from Frank J. Gould's Combourg by six lengths, eased up, and looked to have a splendid chance for another great victory today.

Alcantara Leads at Start.

At the start Alcantara came out of the field with a swinging stride, close pressed by As d'Atout and Combourg. They maintained these positions into the final straightaway, when the favorite weakened, falling into the ruck.

The display of gowns today in the paddock was brilliant, but was hardly considered up to the standard of previous years on account of the lack of novelties. A remarkable feature was the total disappearance of the hobble and harem skirts.

COLONEL APPERSON DIES ON FARM AT JOHNSON, ARK.

Noted Racing Judge Who Officiated on Chicago Tracks Passes Away After Lingering Illness.

Col. Apperson was born in Mount Sterling, Ky., in 1854 and moved to Arkansas several years later. He held a position under President Roosevelt's administration as an official assayer of the Philadelphia mint and for years was a prominent figure on southern and western tracks. For a time he resided in Kansas City during a venture in the brokerage business.

He was a member of the Memphis Jockey club and the Tennessee club and a personal friend of J. H. Rees of Memphis. He was widely known around Chicago, where he was known as the typical southern gentleman. Two daughters who were educated at Waterman hall at Monmouth, Ill., survive him.

ATHLETES GATHER FOR MEET

TRYOUT FOR 1912 OLYMPIAD.

Provisions Made to Accommodate 40,000 to 50,000 Spectators.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 25.—Athletes from all parts of the United States are beginning to reach this city to participate in the National Amateur Athletic Union junior and senior championship games, to be held at Forbes field June 30 and July 1. Ranking in importance to any previous sporting meet for size and talent ever held in this country, special interest attaches to the forthcoming affair because from the winners will be selected the American representatives to the Olympic games next year at Stockholm, Sweden.

Under the direction of the National association officials the various courses have been measured and arrangements made to utilize every corner of Forbes field. With the departure of the Pittsburg baseball club on Wednesday night the final details will be completed on Thursday for the opening of the meet on Friday.

Provision has been made to accommodate between 40,000 and 50,000 spectators during the two days. A unique feature is the fact that no admission fees are to be charged. Everett C. Brown of Chicago, president of the National A. A. U., will act as referee. Gov. John K. Tener of Pennsylvania will make an address of welcome to the athletes a few moments before the games start.

Among the places which will be represented by 600 athletes are the following:

BADGER OARSMEN SET FOR REGATTA

Both Eights Enjoy Rest After Strenuous and Nerve-Racking Week.

FRESHMEN GIVEN SHOW

Easterners Look with Favor on Yearlings, but Hold No Hopes for Varsity.

BY W. D. RICHARDSON.
[Wisconsin Coxswain, 1909-'10.]

Highland, N. Y., June 25.—[Special.]—After a strenuous and nerve racking week the members of the Wisconsin varsity and freshman eights are glad to accept the rest which the Sabbath brings with it. All day long the men lounged around the quarters, reading and writing letters and doing everything to get their minds off the race.

The monotony of the day was varied somewhat by long walks in the country, the freshmen taking the road leading south from the village to the great bridge of the Central New England railroad. Some of the members of the varsity took a ferry across to Poughkeepsie and visited the Vassar college grounds and other points of interest in the city.

Coach Vail said tonight the work tomorrow would be confined to short rows with a few racing starts to limber up the men. That will complete the long training siege until they leave the boathouse for the start on Tuesday. The hospital squad is decreasing and the men who are slated to represent Wisconsin in two races are in good condition for the row.

Rideout Back in Boat.

Rideout, the freshman oarsman who was out Saturday with the boils, will resume his place in the shell tomorrow. Easterners give the youngsters an even show to win their event, but no hope is entertained by them for the varsity.

The big eight, however, is hopeful of springing a surprise after its splendid showing late yesterday afternoon when it covered the course in 19:57, with water conditions none of the best. It was the fastest time that the Badger crew had ever made on the Hudson. The freshmen without substitute went their two miles in 10:00, forty seconds faster than the Cornell youngsters traveled last year when they won.

Everything is now in readiness for the regatta. In the three weeks of training there has been such a marked improvement in the crews that the coaches expressed themselves as easy in their minds today regarding the qualtiy of the work that will be shown in the three events, although of course there is the usual air of uncertainty in all cases.

Cornell Again Favorite.

Cornell, as in previous years, is the acknowledged favorite. This year, however, Columbia has loomed up larger than ever in the speculation on the result. The experts seem to agree Columbia will be a big factor and there are many who would not be surprised to see a general shakeup in the final markings. Pennsylvania is though to be nearly equal to Cornell and Columbia, and Syracuse with its good crew is not left out of the reckoning.

The change in the course, by which all crews will have to pass under the same arch of the big bridge, is declared by the coaches to be a move calculated to induce an unusually fine race.

Already spectators have begun to arrive for the races and hotel accommodations are at a premium.

E. A. W. Power Boat Winner.

With a time allowance of thirty-nine minutes E. A. W., owned by E. A. Wagner of Chicago, yesterday won the first race of the season of the McHenry Power Boat club over its regular six and one-half mile course. Humsum, owned by G. Bickler of McHenry, was second and George Cramer's Comet was third. The winning boat covered the distance in 25:46.

U. P. DECISION TO AID MERGED ROADS

Gives Confidence in Combinations Such as Took In Southern Pacific.

NEGOTIABLE PAPER CALL.

Pressure of Bank Funds Seeking Employment Puts Demand Above the Supply.

[NEW YORK TIMES FINANCIAL LEADER.] New York, June 25.—[Special.]—At the close of last week the announcement of the decision of the United States Circuit court upholding the legality of the Union Pacific's control of the Southern Pacific infused life into a dull market and brought about advances which more than offset the results of reactionary markets of the earlier days of the week.

The decision of the United States Supreme court in the American Tobacco and Standard Oil cases had greatly strengthened the expectation that the government would lose its suit against the Harriman lines, for the trial of the suit was generally considered in the financial district as having gone far toward bearing out the contention of the Union Pacific that its acquisition of the Southern Pacific was in no wise for the purpose of restraining trade, but to obtain possession of the Central Pacific, which was the Union Pacific's natural outlet to the Pacific coast.

Favorable Influence Expected.

It is reasonable to expect this decision will have a favorable influence, as it will help to give practical effect to the principles laid down in the cases recently decided by the Supreme court.

The influence of this decision extends beyond the roads directly concerned in it and helps to strengthen confidence in the security of other railroad combinations which were prompted by the same general motives which led to the Union Pacific's acquisition of the Southern Pacific.

The money market last week presented some features of considerable interest, including bidding here by German bankers for loans over the end of June and the decline in our own commercial paper market to as low a level as has yet been reported during the period of easy money through which the markets are now passing.

The needs of the Berlin money market with the approach of the first half of the year are great enough to induce bankers there to bid 5 per cent or more in this market for loans running to July 1 or until the end of that month. Some of our bankers' free balances are being employed in such loans in Berlin.

Demand Exceeds Supply.

The incident is one which throws additional light on the favorable position which New York holds in reference to the other money markets of the world. Here the pressure of bank funds seeking employment at the moment is so great that the demand for commercial paper is exceeding the supply, with the result that last week saw distinct easing in the already low rates which had been previously quoted.

Banks in the interior, notably those of Chicago have competed with eastern institutions in absorbing the current offerings of prime commercial paper. This is a situation which denotes clearly the belief on the part of lenders of money that the ease is pretty sure to continue for at least several months to come.

IN FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.] PARIS, June 25.—The last week held the record for dullness on the bourse on account of the fact that the London exchange was closed and partly because declining unsettled Wall street and crop reports tended to make operators mark time, pending developments. The only encouraging feature was furnished by the copper market and the introduction of two new American securities, Telephone and the Jumper California mines. Money was plentiful. Although there is hope for better business this week, the general feeling is that nothing great may be expected for a few dys. The sudden fall of the cabinet was unexpected and affected the market, and rentes will probably show hesitation until the new premier is named.

Depression in Berlin.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.] BERLIN, June 25.—Weakness and depression characterized the Berlin stock exchange last week. Trading was narrowly limited. A heavy drop in securities of the Warsaw and Vienna railway, due to the report that the Russian government intends to take over the control of the road, was the chief unfavorable factor which affected the stock transactions generally throughout the week. Mining shares were dull, reports regarding profit taking and conditions in the German iron and steel industries contributing still further to depress the market. Trading in Canadian Pacific was fairly active on the strength of reports of a lively demand for its shares in Wall street.

Bright London Outlook.

DOMINION OF CANADA

Canadian Northern Railway

ISSUE OF 5 PER CENT INCOME CHARGE CONVERTIBLE DEBENTURE

STOCK

$103 per share, with accrued interest from May 2d, 1911.

The following is an extract from the address of Mr. R. M. HORNE-PAYNE, Resident Director Canadian Northern Railway, London, England, concerning the issue:

"The stock with which we are most lately associated is the Canadian Northern Five per cent. Convertible Debenture Stock, which I feel is the most attractive investment that I know, or perhaps have ever known, for any persons who are not absolutely dependent for existence on the income derived from their stock. It may be regarded as a safe investment, being a direct mortgage security, redeemable in 20 years, and consequently no new class of security and no ordinary creditors can be placed ahead of it.

"The advantage is given to the stockholder of being able to convert his stock into the Ordinary shares of the Canadian Northern Railway, if he so desires, after January, 1916. The possibilities of the Canadian Northern Railway are absolutely limitless.

"Whatever the course of events may be during the next four or five years, one cannot have the slightest hesitation in saying—not the smallest doubt—that in six or seven years the ordinary shares of the Canadian Northern Railway will be exceedingly valuable. Fifteen years ago I bought Canadian Pacific shares at 42½. It seems scarcely credible, but nevertheless it is a fact, that I bought those shares then not because I particularly wanted them or expected to make a lot of money out of them, but because that greatest of all Imperial enterprises—the Canadian Pacific—needed all the support that its friends could give it, and I well recollect that I was put to some inconvenience to find the money to pay for the shares. Less than ten years ago Canadian Pacific shares were selling under 90; today they are worth something like 200. Within five years' time the Canadian Northern will be a Transcontinental system—or, rather, a world-wide system—as fully equipped by land and water as the Canadian Pacific is today. The younger system will for some years to come have many disadvantages compared with the older system, and it will also have several advantages over the older system. They will not interfere with each other to any great extent. Canada is a big country, and I prophesy, confidently, that in two or three years after the completion of the Canadian Northern Transcontinental line the Canadian Northern shares will have gone a long way towards catching up the price of Canadian Pacific shares. In buying Canadian Northern Five per cent. Convertible stock today, I think you are buying something that will be worth a very high figure in six or seven years' time, and meanwhile you hold a safe investment."

NOTE. Present quotation Canadian Pacific Railway shares, New York Stock Exchange, 243¼.

The Canadian Northern System has a present mileage in operation of 6,063 miles, and to be constructed and in operation by 1916, 12,000 miles, construction of which is already provided for by guarantees of the Dominion and Provincial Governments of Canada. The System includes the Canadian Northern Atlantic and Pacific Steamship Lines, Montreal to Liverpool. also Vancouver to Hong Kong and Yokohama.

Advice on Safe Investments

¶ You may wonder why there is a field for the special kind of banking services that we have been advertising—advice on the safe investment of money. ¶ The answer is that a person with money to invest cannot afford to make mistakes in the matter of investments. ¶ In caring for the good health of yourself and family you follow the advice of a physician. ¶ To save yourself worry over legal questions you secure the advice of a lawyer. ¶ In placing your money at interest it is just as important that you obtain the advice of some one with years of experience in such matters, so that you may be sure the principal and interest of your investments are properly safeguarded. ¶ We have been giving such advice satisfactorily for the past twenty-nine years. ¶ Ask for our booklet, "Bonds for Safe Investment," or our special descriptive circulars.

ATTACK KANSAS RISK RULING

COMPANIES WILL APPEAL.

Take "Private Contract" View; Point Favorable Nebraska Decree.

The decision of Judge Pollock of the United States court at Topeka in sustaining the Kansas law providing for the regulation of fire insurance rates, caused considerable surprise in insurance circles and has served to strengthen the position of the advocates of state acts for supervision of fire insurance rates. In Kansas fire insurance companies are required to file their basis schedules and local tariffs. The insurance superintendent has the authority to increase or decrease rates after a hearing. The companies have a right to appeal to the courts if they feel that the ruling of the insurance superintendent is unjust.

The companies decided to contest the constitutionality of the Kansas law and filed the suit in the federal court. Their attorneys took the position that insurance is a private contract which analagous to a merchant selling his goods. They also contended that the law was in violation of the constitution of Kansas and the fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States.

Hold Act Unconstitutional.

It was also declared that the law gives the insurance superintendent legislative power while the constitution vests it only in the legislature. The attorneys also set forth the plea that there was discrimination in that farmers' mutual companies were exempted from the operation of the law. The point was also made that fire insurance is more or less of a technical business and the basis of all rates is made from years of study of condition and risks. It was held that it requires trained men to determine a reasonable rate, and that the insurance superintendent did not have the required experience and is not qualified to determine the reasonableness of a rate.

The court held that there is nothing in the constitution of Kansas or in that of the United States conflicting with the new law. The court decided that the legislature had the power to delegate the authority given in the law to the insurance superintendent. It also held that regulation of fire insurance rates comes within the police power of the state.

Judge Relies on Supreme Court.

The court relied largely on the decision of the United States Supreme court last winter in upholding the Alabama law, which requires a company to pay 25 per cent more on a loss claim if it is a member of a tariff association. Fire insurance companies have confidently expected a decision in their favor and thought that Judge Pollock leaned favorably toward the companies until the Alabama decision and the recent decisions of the Supreme court on anti-trust cases.

The companies have all along taken the ground that the state gives them no special rights, as it does railroads. There is no monopoly in fire insurance, in the opinion of underwriters, as a property owner does not have to deal with any one company or one class of companies. The fire insurance men argue that the state simply licenses the insurance companies to transact business in the state, and this license carries with it no privilege other than the right to grant indemnity to the citizens of the state.

Kansas and Nebraska Judges Conflict.

Judge Pollock's decision conflicts with the decision of Judge Munger of the United States Circuit court of Nebraska, who decided a case under the statutes of that state, holding that the state could not fix the price of surety bonds issued by surety companies. While this was not a fire insurance case, yet the court declared that the fourteenth amendment to the United States constitution protects the right of those engaged in a purely private business to fix the price at which they will sell their service or commodities.

The fire insurance companies no doubt will appeal from the decision of Judge Pollock, as they desire to have the question decided finally, once for all. Missouri, Texas, and Louisiana all have rate regulation laws, and the Kansas decision has been awaited with interest before most of these other states were attacked. Even he decision of Judge Pollock does not satisfy the underwriters, for they feel that the higher court may look at the question in a different light.

Illinois State Board Meeting.

The Illinois state board, composed of the field men of union fire companies, will hold its annual meeting at Lake Delavan tomorrow and Wednesday of this week. The Illinois Field club met at the same place last week and elected Wallace Mink of Chicago as president. There has come a break between the two organizations and it is stated that there will be no further joint meetings regarding granting relief rates.

I APPRECIATE ACCOUNTS OF HONORABLE people [men employed or in business, ladies with allowances from their husbands or income from other sources], who, while not in a position to borrow money from a bank, realize that exorbitant interest charged by professional money lenders is high and extortionate. I am connected with the Indiana Loan Credit and Trust Company of Chicago, co-partners, 4303 Grand-blvd., and, having private means of my own, I am willing to loan money with or without security and at a consideration but a trifle above bank rates, and never more than the interest legalized by the states of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, the precise rate being determined by the amount loaned and risk assumed. My location [15 minutes from loop district via South Side elevated] assures a privacy not possible to those who deal with brokers in downtown office buildings, where lenders congregate. Always best to telephone Drexel 54 for private appointment. Ask for MR. S.

MONEY FOR SALARIED PEOPLE — IF YOU hold a permanent salaried position we will loan you any reasonable sum from $10 upward WITHOUT security or knowledge of employer or friends. Our rates are LOW, payments easy. REBATE IF paid before due. QUICK SERVICE; long time if desired; no red tape; no extra charge; nothing taken out of loan in advance. Office hours 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. Will receive courteous treatment whether you borrow or not.
